The 9/11 project is being supported by the Baltimore Writers' Alliance, the Maryland Writing Project, the Maryland Poetry and Literary Society, and various other organizations. All proceeds generated by this project will be donated to various relief funds in support of the victims of the tragedy.

The purpose of the projects is to collect, document, and preserve the reactions of Maryland residents for historical purposes so that future generations can read the words of those who lived during this experience, VanWestervelt said.

The deadline for entries is May 15, 2002. Entries may be submitted by mail to the 9/11 project, P.O. Box 6881, Towson, MD 21285, or by e-mail to rusvw@yahoo.com. Submission guidelines and entry forms are available by mail (requesters should include a 10-inch self-addressed, self-stamped envelope) or are available at the web site: www.the911project.org. The entries will not be returned.

IN A NUT SHELL

Did you know? Coltsfoot is probably our most common roadside harbinger of spring. Its flower looks much like the dandelion. It will be found before the dandelion makes its appearance. Unlike the dandelion, the coltsfoot first flowers, then puts its leaves out. The supposed resemblance of a leaf to a colt's foot gives reference to its name. The coltsfoot comes to us from Europe.

Sinusitis and a New Runny Nose Medicine

Sinusitis is an inflammation of the sinus passages. The combination of sinus blockage and infection can produce facial pressure and congestion, headaches, runny or stopped up nose, and fever. Many acute sinus infections are misdiagnosed as "head colds" or the "flu." Chronic sinusitis can produce symptoms that could be confused with chronic fatigue syndrome or arthritis. Acute sinusitis usually is caused by bacteria but can develop after a viral infection of the upper airways.

The most appropriate way to deal with sinusitis is to prevent or treat underlying problems, such as allergies or nasal polyps — and keep the nasal passages open with frequent, gentle nose blowing. A nonprescription saline nose spray can provide relief and help clear blockage. Medicines often prescribed for sinusitis include nasal decongestants and antibiotics.

Because a runny nose could be caused by a viral infection, some researchers are trying antiviral medicines for this symptom. One antiviral agent is still in clinical trials. Interestingly it has been shown to provide runny nose relief in many individuals.

Fresh Air Fund Day Proclaimed By Glendening

To commemorate the 125th anniversary season of the Fresh Air Fund's Friendly Town Program, Governor Parris Glendening proclaimed Wednesday, March 20, "Fresh Air Fund Day" throughout the state of Maryland.

Families who participate in the Fresh Air Fund's Friendly Town Program open their homes to New York City children for two weeks or more in the summer. There are more than 300 "Friendly Towns" located throughout 13 northeastern states from Virginia to Maine and Canada. "By sharing their homes with New York City children, our host families tell us that they gain a new appreciation for their own communities and form relationships that last a lifetime," said Jenny Morganthau, executive director of the Fresh Air Fund. "This year, we are looking for new host families to continue our 125-year-old tradition of giving youngsters a summertime break from the sometimes dangerous city streets."

First-time Fresh Air visitors are 6 to 12 years old. Reinvited youngsters ean participate in the Friendly Town Program through age 18. Host families often request boys or girls close in age to their own children. Volunteers want to share what they have with city children and introduce them to suburban or country life.

Over 65% of all Fresh Air children are invited to visit host families year after year. "Fresh Air hosts range from young families to grandparents," explained Michelle Harris, volunteer fund representative in Maryland. "There is no age limit. All it takes is the willingness to open your heart and home to a New York City child."

The Fresh Air Fund, an independent, not-for-profit organization, has provided free summer vacations to more than 1.7 million inner-city children since 1877. For more information about becoming a Fresh Air volunteer, persons may eall Michelle Harris at 301-759-4757, or the Fresh Air Fund at 800-367-0003. The web site address is www.fresh air.org.

Westernport Church Slates Easter Cantata

The Westernport Church of the Brethren will present the Easter cantata Lamb of God on Easter Sunday, March 31, during a service that will get under way at 10:40 a.m.

The 25-minute cantata was arranged and orchestrated by Russell Mauldin, and the choir is directed by Carol Lee Kelly with accompaniment provided by Donna Grogg on piano and Travis Clayton on drums. The program will be narrated by Linda Whitlock.

The cantata is open to the public, and the church is located at 200 Oak View Drive. For further information, persons may call Robert Shimer at 301-359-0378.

Free Trees To Be Available To "Green" Schools

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) announced this week a new partnership with the Maryland Community Forest Council that will provide free trees to Maryland schools for planting. To qualify for the grant, the school must be a recipient of the Governor's Green Schools Award.

The Maryland Association for Environmental and Outdoor Education's Governor's Green Schools Awards are granted to schools that meet strict environmental education standards. All schools in the state receiving such awards are eligible to receive a grant of free trees from DNR's Tree-Mendous Maryland. Through this new program, for each tree purchased for planting through DNR, Tree-Mendous Maryland will match it up to 25 trees. Sixty-two schools within the state have been awarded the Governor's Green Schools Award.

The goal of this new partnership is to encourage these schools which have already made steps to a bright environmentally sound future to take pride in maintaining and developing more environmental projects. "The planting of new trees is especially beneficial to schools because trees add beauty, reduce noise, clean the air, and help lower temperatures during the summer months," stated a DNR spokesperson.

To find more information on purchasing trees, persons may contact Terry Galloway, director, Tree-Mendous Maryland at 410-260-8510 or by e-mail at tgalloway@dnr.state.md.us.

NOTICE
GARRETT COUNTY TAXPAYERS!

According to the laws governing my office (Section 14-808/Tax Property), the Tax Collector must advertise and sell properties for delinquent County, State, Town and/or taxes due other taxing agencies.

Delinquent notices were mailed Feb. 1, 2002. We have included all taxes on the property as a required by law. However, only delinquent taxes (2000-2001 and prior years) must be paid to avoid a tax sale on the property. (If you are involved in a bankruptcy proceeding, please contact our office as soon as possible.) TAX BILLS MAILED JULY 2001 ARE NOT DELINQUENT! Also, personal property taxes for 2000-2001 and prior years are delinquent and become a lien on the real estate (Section 14-808).

According to legislation (Annotated Code 14-809), the county collector shall proceed to advertise and sell any real property located in any municipal corporation in, county on which municipal corporation taxes are delinquent. Unpaid amounts for municipalities or other taxing agencies were shown at the bottom of the notices. At this time, all delinquent town taxes must be paid at the County Tax office in order to guarantee collection of additional costs.

The annual tax sale will be held in May 2002 instead of June this year. Due to the busy work schedule in printing tax bills for the July 1 mailings, we felt it necessary to move the sale up one month. Additional attorney cost are being assessed at this time. Please contact our office for the correct figures. After approximately April 15, additional fees for advertising will be included in the total amounts due.

If you should have questions or if we can be of assistance to you, please don't hesitate to call anytime between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

RAM Notes

LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

The Leadership Academy offers suggestions to live by. The following are weekly suggestions for all students and staff to make part of our everyday lives at Southern High School: for March 18-22, "Treat people the way you want to be treated"; and for March 25-28 "Keep Promises."

MR. NOVAK WILL BE MISSED

It is with great sadness that the SHS community notes the passing of retired teacher Matthew Novak. Mr. Novak taught in the Garrett County school system for 26 years. He served students in various capacities and at nearly every school in the county.

In 1999, Mr. Novak retired early from teaching history at Southern because of health problems; however, after his retirement he became extremely involved in the ongoing Oral History Project sponsored by the Garrett County Historical Society. Over the last three years, Mr. Novak was responsible for arranging over 80 interviews between SHS history students and Garrett County World War II veterans, as well as interviews with Korean War veterans, Vietnam War veterans, and survivors of the Great Depression.

Mr. Novak is the person most responsible for the publication of a oral history book coming out later this year which will commemorate the experiences of Garrett County World War II veterans. Anyone who has read the stories of veterans and their families realizes the importance of Mr. Novak's vision.

Mr. Novak was also very instrumental in promoting participation of Southern students in the National History Day competition. He regularly attended the regional, state, and national competitions, where SHS students have won many awards. Just this past year, Mr. Novak worked closely with sophomores Kasey Bell and Willie DeWitt, who helped write and sponsor legislation that would allow Korean War veterans the same right to receive a high school diploma as WWII veterans currently receive.

Though his formal employment at Southern had ended three years ago, Mr. Novak provided valuable learning experiences to students that they will carry with them. He will be greatly missed, and is remembered as a kind and dedicated teacher, historian, and person.

AFTER-PROM MEETINGS

The next two after-prom planning meetings will take place on Thursday, March 21 and Tuesday, April 2 in Mrs. Bender's room at the high school. All parents are encouraged to attend. The SHS Prom date is Saturday, April 27, so much help is needed to keep this tradition going.

SHS CHRISTIAN CLUB

The SHS Christian Club holds prayer meetings every morning from 8 to 8:20 a.m. in Room 2133. Everyone is welcome. Stop by or drop off prayer requests.

50TH ANNIVERSARY ACORN AVAILABLE

The April/May Acorn is dedicated to the 50th anniversary of Southern High School. Students have researched the history of athletics, academics, clubs and activities, adding Southern trivia and significant events that have shaped all who have come through the halls in the last 50 years. If you are interested in purchasing a 50th anniversary issue please send or drop off $2, cash or check, and your mailing address to SHS Acorn, c/o Heather Savage. Papers can be ordered until Friday, May 3, and mailing of the 50th anniversary issue will take place the second week of May. All proceeds from sales support the SGHS Acorn and Journalism program.

GRANT FUNDS WEIGHT ROOM IMPROVEMENTS

A special thanks is due to the Oakland Exxon/Subway gas station and convienence store, which secured a $500 Exxon Mobil Educational Alliance grant for the SHS Athletic Department. The money will be used to purchase equipment for the weight room, benefitting all athletes. Funded by the Exxon Mobil foundation, the Educational Alliance program is designed to provide Exxon retailers, like Jacob's Petroleum, with an opportunity to invest in the future of their community through educational grants to neighborhood schools. A special thanks to Mr. Richard Stuck for helping make this happen.

TV-PIPELINE

Grace star back on comedy club circuit

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Brett Butler

Q: What is Brett Butler doing? I thought she was one of the most talented comics around, and I loved Grace Under Fire. –Ruth Campbell, Ambler, Pa.

A: After Grace shut down abruptly in 1998, reportedly due at least in part to Butler's problems with prescription painkillers, the actress and comic took some much-needed time off to rest and put her life back in order.

Now she's trying to get her career back on track the same way she originally got started: in stand-up comedy. At 44, the talented Butler is touring comedy clubs on what she calls "The Gravel-Throated Harpy Tour" and keeping in direct touch with fans via her official Website, brettbutler.com.

Peers still consider her a whip-smart lady to reckon with, and if you haven't read her autobiography, Knee Deep in Paradise – out of print, but you can find used copies at Amazon.com – seek out this brutally frank and funny book as soon as possible.

Q: Recently, Oz featured an actress named Betty Lynn Buckley as Ryan O'Reilly's mother. Is that Betty Buckley from Cats? If so, why the "Lynn"? –Jack Mullins via e-mail.

A: It's the same actress, who also starred in TV's Eight Is Enough. A passionate singer and actress who seldom does things by half-measures, Buckley reportedly was so moved by the unflinching air of honesty and candor on the set of the HBO prison drama that she began using her real middle name professionally as a way of "claiming her individuality" (her mother also is named Betty, an HBO publicist says).

No word yet on whether the change is permanent, but fans of the Texas-born artist know that she informally uses "Betty Lynn" frequently, including on the warm and chatty Website (bettybuckley.com) she uses to keep in touch with her friends and admirers.

Q: In a recent column item on Mary-Louise Parker, you refer to the upcoming Silence of the Lambs movie prequel, Red Dragon. Some readers might want to check out the original 1986 movie version of that book, released as Manhunter and starring William Petersen of CSI: Crime Scene Investigation. –Michael J. Manning, Rouses Pt., N.Y.

A: I originally included a Manhunter reference in that answer, then cut it in the interest of making room for another question. You are one of many readers who took the time to make note of this excellent 1986 thriller, which co-starred Emmy winner Brian Cox (Nuremberg) as Dr. Hannibal Lecktor (a variant spelling used in Michael Mann's screenplay).

Send questions of general interest to TV Pipeline, TVData Features Syndicate, 333 Glen St., Glens Falls, NY 12801, or e-mail to tvpipeline@tvdata.com. Only questions selected for this column will be answered. Personal replies cannot be sent.

Lawmakers Boost Child Safety Restraint Laws

by Diane Mote Morgan
Capitol News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Child booster seats save lives, say sponsors of bills this year to close the gap in Maryland child safety restraint laws by requiring children age 4 to 6 ride in safety seats. Under Maryland law, and in most states, children under 4 must use safety seats in motor vehicles, but after 4, children may use adult seat belts. That law doesn't protect older children, who, research shows, still need more restraint than an adult seat belt provides.

After 4 years or 40 pounds, children typically outgrow traditional child seats and use vehicle seat belts, which don't fit properly, said Delegate William A. Bronrott, D-Montgomery, sponsor of the House bill.

Vehicle fatality rates for children have dropped in all age groups but those age 4 to 8, where the rate has plateaued, Bronrott said.

There's ample evidence, he said, that using booster seats could push that age group's fatality rate down. He cites statistics showing 4- and 5-year-olds in booster seats are about 70 percent less likely to suffer significant injury in a crash than those with seat belts.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration agrees. Booster seats, it said, "can help prevent injury by making adult-sized seat belts fit correctly." It recommended the seats be used until children reach 80 pounds and a height of 4 feet, 9 inches.

The agency has testified that lap belts can ride over a child's stomach and the shoulder belt can cut across a child's neck, resulting in serious or fatal injuries, including damage to spinal columns, spinal cords, livers, spleens, and bowels.

"Maryland still has a dangerous gap in child safety," Bronrott said. "Improper fit can be lethal."

So far, Maryland senators agree. A similar bill sponsored by Sen. Jennie M. Forehand, D-Montgomery, unanimously passed the Senate Friday.

The law would be effective Oct. 1, 2003, for Marylanders and two years later for out-of-state vehicles. The $48 fine and court fees can be waived if parents prove they obtained a booster seat.

Seven states have booster seat laws, and this year 24 more plus the District are considering them. The National Safe Kids Campaign, in 2001, gave Maryland an "F" rating for its child protection safety laws.

Education, strong laws, and active enforcement are needed to increase the use of boosters, Bronrott said.

The Partners for Child Passenger Safety found in a recent study that Maryland has the highest booster seat usage of 15 states studied, yet only 14 percent of children age 4 to 8 are secured in them. More than 90 percent of the seriously injured children in the study were not in booster seats.

Each year, seven Maryland children in this age group die and 700 are injured in motor vehicle crashes, the Montgomery County Division of Consumer Affairs testified at the bill's hearing.

Many parents and caregivers do not understand the risk that adult seat belts pose for children between 40 and 80 pounds and rely on state laws for guidance, according to a NHTSA research project.

All 50 states and the District have child restraint laws, but they are not uniform and many are not up-to-date.

Christine Guarino of Germantown credits a booster seat for saving her son's life three years ago.

Seven miles from her home, their van was totaled by a Mack dump truck. Stephen, then 5, received the brunt of the impact, Guarino said. Still buckled in his booster seat, his foot rested on the truck's bumper. Yet he only suffered facial lacerations and a concussion.

Booster seats have many other advocates. The Alliance of Automobile Manufacturers, a trade association, supports the seats as "the most cost-effective solution," said Eron Shosteck, a spokesman.

But the legislation also has its foes.

Last year's measure was gutted by amendments from Delegate Dana Lee Dembrow, D-Montgomery. He called the legislation "grossly excessive" and said it undermined parents' authority. It also would make Maryland the only state, he said, to give parents without booster seats tickets.

Dembrow required that the law wouldn't take effect until two adjacent states passed similar laws or until the state purchased booster seats for all parents.

States, Dembrow said, now are passing less restrictive versions of Bronrott's 2001 bill, thus proving, he said, "We did the right thing by not passing it last year."

Bronrott has tried to address Dembrow's concerns in this year's legislation, and the foe seems pleased. This year's bill, Dembrow said, is "substantially more narrow," mandating boosters up to age 6. However, he said, he is reserving judgment until he studies it.

Dembrow, too, has some support in his opposition. Emphasizing boosters is a "misplaced priority," according to an Insurance Institute for Highway Safety report. While its research shows booster seats improve belt fit in some instances, benefits depend on "the specific child, the specific booster seat, and the specific car model."

A clear booster seat definition, said the institute, doesn't exist.

AMBASSADOR RECEIVES DONATION — David William Goldsborough Jr., a Southern Middle School student, is one of 29 middle school students from Maryland and Pennsylvania chosen to participate in the People to People Student Ambassador program in Australia this summer for three weeks. He recently received a letter from Tony Blair, prime minister of England, congratulating him upon his acceptance in the program. Goldsborough is shown above on the left receiving a check from Floyd R. Baker, treasurer of the Garrett County Democratic Central Committee. The donation will be used to help defray Goldsborough's program tuition costs. Check donations for his program tuition, due May 1, may be made payable to Australian Discovery 2002, Dave Goldsborough #608352, and forwarded to him at 109 B Street, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550. Goldsborough is also a Life Scout in Boy Scout Troop 31 and is currently working toward his Eagle Scout rank.

Conservative Sen. Committee Wields Power

by Krisseh Williams
Capitol News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Sen. Delores G. Kelley was disappointed, but not surprised, when a bill she sponsored died in the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee last week.

Kelley, D-Baltimore, brought national experts and prominent Marylanders, including former U.S. Sen. Joseph Tydings and former state Attorney-General Stephen H. Sachs, to testify in favor of the bill, which would have reduced the need for bail bondsmen in the state. Kelley's bill was one of more than 20 that died in voting sessions last week. The committee voted on more than 50 bills.

Other legislation shot down included everything from stricter drunken driving laws to qualifications for a notary public.

Led by powerful Sen. Walter M. Baker, D-Cecil, Judicial Proceedings is one of the Senate's most conservative committees. Baker, a frank former state's attorney, wields his power as chairman forcefully at times. Hot-button legislation often died only minutes after hearings held in his committee.

Judicial Proceedings swiftly shot down legislation sponsored by Sen. Brian E. Frosh, D-Montgomery, to require gun owners to obtain licenses.

"It's disappointing. It's not totally unexpected given the makeup of the committee," Frosh said. "Everybody knows the committee is conservative leaning."

Baker, an opponent of further tightening of gun laws in Maryland, voted against a bill titled "The Machine Gun Act" earlier this session, even though it simply would have re-codified existing law. He was afraid senators could tack on floor amendments tightening gun laws.

"There will be no vehicles," Baker told the committee. "I can control it when it's here; when it gets to the floor it's out of my hands."

Frosh was also before Baker's committee last Wednesday arguing for legislation increasing the standard for the administration of the death penalty. The legislation would have required juries to attest to being sure "beyond a reasonable doubt" that a person should receive the death penalty.

"I'm for the death penalty," said Baker, who voted against the bill.

A controversial bill sponsored by Sen. Chris Van Hollen, D-Montgomery, was among the bills the committee passed last week. The legislation curbs the amount of time judges have to reconsider sentences to 15 months. Under current law, Maryland's judges have unlimited discretion to shorten sentences. The bill had previously failed to pass the committee.

"A lot of people began to focus on the issue," Van Hollen said. "Maryland was out of step with the rest of the country."

The committee also passed so-called "safe haven" legislation, which would allow distraught mothers to legally abandon their babies.

Bill sponsors who watched their legislation die this session said they would try again next year.

"There was no logical reason for it not to come through," Kelley said. "We need to have more people pressure."

Saw Palmetto for an Enlarged Prostate

Problems related to an enlarged prostate (called BPH or benign prostatic hyperplasia) most often occur in men after age 45. However, symptoms typically do not appear until age 60 or later. Up to 40 percent of men aged 70 years and older have symptoms that include an urge to urinate and difficulty emptying the bladder completely. If BPH is allowed to continue without treatment bladder infection and possibly kidney damage can occur. Prescription medicines used to treat BPH symptoms include finasteride (Proscar) and terazosin (Hytrin).

According to a recent report in The Journal of the American Medical Association, an extract from the saw palmetto plant may provide a safe and effective alternative to treating BPH.

Side effects from the herb were mild as compared with prescription medicines. They concluded that saw palmetto was effective in improving BPH symptoms and the flow of urine.

The lily is almost too exquisite to be real. It comes in nearly endless colors and varieties, scenting the air with delicate perfume. Each glorious bloom enchants us for a day. Easy to grow, the lily demands nothing but our delight.

When the lilies are all gone, we miss them. Yet, new leaves and stems will rise next spring and the lilies will emerge again, demanding little but our delight.

As the lilies return to life once more, you may see them in a new way. Perhaps they are there to remind us that God sent His Son, Jesus, to transform the world with His message of love; to die on the Cross for the forgiveness of our sins, and to arise from the grave to appear on the earth before ascending to live with God for eternity. We read in Psalms 35:9... "Then my soul will rejoice in the Lord and delight in His salvation."

Worship this Easter. Delight in our Savior, Christ Jesus.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

JUST THE BEGINNING

March 24, 2002

Background Scripture: Romans 5.
Devotional Reading: Psalms 32:1-5.

Paul used legal analogies to speak to the Christians in Rome on the subject of salvation. He used the term "justification," which means the act by which a person is held to be righteous in the eyes of the law. In Romans 5:1, Paul says: "Therefore, since we are justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." Though we are deserving of condemnation, by faith we grasp the gift of justification which ushers us into a new relationship with God.

Unfortunately, some of Paul's interpreters have misunderstood him and, instead of seeing justification as an analogy, have essentially interpreted justification in a very legalistic way. The offender breaks the law, is apprehended and arrested, brought before the judge and, like a Monopoly player with a "Get Out of Jail Free" card, is declared innocent and released. Thus regarded, salvation is seen as a means of escaping the trouble into which we have gotten ourselves. There have been more than a few notable sinners who have waited until their last days to convert to Christ and avoid the consequences of their lives.

A Radical Change

That, however, is not what salvation means in the gospel of Jesus Christ. It is not just escape from our sins, but the doorway to a new life. Justification is just the beginning of salvation. Salvation is not a declaration of loyalty to Christ as much as it is a whole new relationship with him. Albert W. Palmer affirms this: "Salvation is not something that is done for you, but something that happens within you. It is not the clearing of a court record, but the transformation of a life attitude."

Theologian William Temple has written of this need. "The worst things that happen do not happen because a few people are monstrously wicked, but because most people are like us. When we grasp that, we begin to realize that our need is not merely for moving quietly on in the way that we are going, our need is for radical change, to find a power that is going to turn us into something else. This is what the Gospel offers to do."

Salvation, therefore, does not mean just that the charge against us has been dropped, but that we have offered our lives to be transformed. Paul's legal analogy is fine, so long as we don't think of salvation as a legal transaction. It is really so much more than that. As Charles Clayton Morrison put it, "The love of God is no mere sentimental feeling; it is redemptive power."

Fruits of Salvation

So, salvation means "peace with God" (5:1). God is not reconciled to us, but we are reconciled to him because we were the ones who broke off our relationship with him. Salvation also means our entrance into grace—"Through him we have obtained access to this grace" (5:2). All life is a gift from God. Salvation also changes our attitudes toward suffering, which we now see as an opportunity to grow in grace (5:3). We also realize that salvation is offered to us at a time when we were least worthy of receiving it (5:6-9). More than that, salvation signifies that we shall be "saved by his life" (5:10). What this means is that in this new relationship we participate in the present life of Christ as the risen Lord. If we are "saved," we will open our lives to Christ so that he can live in us and through us. Salvation, then, is not just an adjustment of our legal standing before God, it is something that transforms our lives. What we are saved from is not just condemnation before God the judge, but a life that is fruitless and futile.

Sin is one of the most powerful forces in the world, but God's grace is even more powerful. "Where sin increased, grace abounded all the more." (5:20). No life is beyond redemption because, no matter how powerful the grip of sin may be in us, the transforming power of grace is always that much more powerful.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• In high school, country singer Garth Brooks lettered in football, basketball, baseball and track.

• It was Lillian Day who observed, "A lady is one who never shows her underwear by accident."

• Think you love your morning cup of java? You're not alone — Bach loved it so much he wrote a "Coffee Cantata."

• In the 19th century, a Russian woman, Mrs. Fyodor Vassilet, gave birth to 69 children — and in only (!) 27 pregnancies. She gave birth to four sets of quadruplets, seven sets of triplets and 16 pairs of twins. And she is not the only woman to have reproduced so prodigiously; in the 19th and early 20th centuries, Mrs. Bernard Scheinberg of Austria also gave birth to 69 children. The truly amazing thing is that she, too, had four sets of quadruplets, seven sets of triplets and 16 pairs of twins!

• The word "mafia" came into the Italian language (and, after that, many other languages) from the Arabic word "mahyah," which means "boasting."

• A humpback whale's heart is more than 6 feet wide.

• A remarkable boy, William J. Sidis, Jr., was born in 1898. By the age of 6 months, he knew the alphabet; he could read and write by the time he was 2; and by 8 years of age he had finished grammar and high school. He entered Harvard University the next year, and graduated with honors at the age of 16. Three years later he was made a full professor of mathematics. He never fulfilled his early academic promise, though; at the age of 26, he was working at a New York store operating an adding machine.

• Comedians, too, have a patron saint: St. Vitus.

In the more than two decades since the accident, not a single new nuclear power plant has been ordered in the United States.

• On March 30, 1981, President Ronald Reagan is shot in the chest outside a Washington, D.C., hotel by a deranged drifter named John Hinckley Jr. The .22-caliber bullet just missed his heart. • On March 29, 1990, recording companies agree to put a warning label on music products that contain potentially offensive lyrics. Some companies had already started using labels to warn buyers of lyrics containing objectionable references to sex and violence.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q. While cleaning out an old barn, I discovered a box that contained nine old Coca-Cola bottles. I would like to date them if I can. — Steve, Wapello, Iowa

A. Coca-Cola items are among America's most popular collectibles.

The product began in Atlanta in 1886 as a cocaine-laced patent medicine. From the very beginning, the company recognized the importance of advertising and saturated the marketplace with elaborate campaigns and premiums. The advertising budget for the first year was $150, which was an astonishing amount at that time to launch a new product.

Cola-Cola collectibles are popular throughout the world. Some of the more scarce items have become almost as valuable as 7-X, the original secret formula. Since reproductions are plentiful, collectors should be especially cautious.

Recent online auction results of Coca-Cola memorabilia have included a 1930 calendar, $450; a "Have a Coke" cardboard sign from 1944, $390; an ashtray from 1955, $25; a 1910 tip tray, $1,800; a 1936 tin thermometer, $190; and a syrup can, unknown age, $30.

A fascinating account of the company's history, "For God, Country and Coca-Cola: The Definitive History of the Great American Soft Drink and the Company That Makes It" by Mark Pendergrast has just been issued in soft cover by Basic Books and is available for $16.50 at most major bookstores.

The Cola-Cola Company Archives can help you date your bottles. The address is P.O. Drawer 1734, Atlanta, GA 30310. The toll-free telephone number is (800) GET-COKE. More than 7,000 collectors subscribe to the Coca-Cola News, an excellent source. You can request a copy of the publication by writing P.O. Box 49166, Atlanta, GA 30359. The e-mail address is webmaster@cocacolaclub.org.

A Dish of One's Own

Q. I have a dog that is sweet most of the time. She has a problem with growling, though. If she has food and anyone goes near her, she will growl, bark and sometimes bite. I have tried everything to stop the growling, but nothing works. Please help me.

A. Growling at anyone (or anything) who approaches a food dish is a common dominance behavior. It's a way of saying, "This is mine; get your own food."

This behavior is not limited to feeding time, either. Some dogs get upset if you stare at them while they're napping.

Is it acceptable? That depends on the level of aggression your dog shows at feeding time, and whether she is demonstrating this at other times as well.

Most dogs, with an instinctive pack mentality, accept the authority of their owners. But many can be aloof or downright rude to visitors or other family members, who they see as being "lesser pack members." If these "lesser" folks try to pet the dog or mess with her food, she gets annoyed (and perhaps fearful). Imagine how you would react if a child, or a parent, hovered around you at dinnertime, tugging your hair, prodding you, or sticking his or her fingers in your mashed potatoes. Annoying, isn't it?

In addition, your dog's aggression around the food dish may be a way of letting you know where she stands in the pecking order. You can reduce the growling and biting through specific training methods that reassert your authority and make her feel more secure at feeding time. Talk to your veterinarian about aggression-reducing therapies.

Even with training, your dog probably will always be possessive of her food dish. In the short term, don't disturb the dog while she's eating. That means no petting, no playing, no correction from you, the kids or any guests.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Navy Ensign Christian H. Jenkins, a 1991 graduate of Northern High School, recently was commissioned to his current rank after completing Aviation Officer Candidate School at Naval Aviation Schools Command, Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

At the school, Jenkins received intensive training in naval warfare, seamanship, navigation, engineering, naval leadership, naval history, military indoctrination, and physical fitness.

U.S. Marine Corps Pvt. Samuel J. Miller, son of Gerry E. and Larry G. Miller, Grantsville, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

Miller successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Miller and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m. by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Miller spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments, which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat, and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Miller and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values — honor, courage, and commitment.

Miller and fellow recruits ended the training phase with the Crucible, a 54-hour teameffort, problem-solving evolution which culminated with a ceremony in which the recruits were presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and were addressed as Marines for the first time since boot camp began.

Miller is a 2001 graduate of Northern Garrett High School.

St. Paul's Slates Special Services For Holy Week

Special worship services to commemorate the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus will be led with sermons by T. Patrick Kerr, pastor, at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland during Holy Week. Services will be held at 8:30 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. on Palm Sunday, March 24, and on Easter Sunday, March 31. The Maundy Thursday service will be at 7 p.m. on March 28. The public is welcome to attend these services.

Denise Kerr will give the children's message, and Denise Shay will lead children's church for children ages 5 through fifth grade at the Palm Sunday and Easter services. The 8:30 a.m. Palm Sunday service will feature special piano music by Jim Shepherd.

In addition, under the direction of Jeannette Fitzwater, superintendent of the Sunday school, the children from nursery age through fifth grade will depict the Easter story with a program titled "Dangerous Journey" at both services on Palm Sunday. Then, from noon until 1:30 p.m., there will be an Easter egg party for the children and their families in Fellowship Hall, after which they will deliver Easter baskets and cards they made to members of the church who are in various nursing homes.

Also at the 10:45 Palm Sunday service, the chancel choir will lead the processional hymn — "All Glory Laud and Honor" — and will sing "The Palms" and "He Has No Hands." The choir's benediction response will be the Latin "Adoramus Te Christe" (We Adore You, O Christ).

The Maundy Thursday service will commemorate the sacrament of the Last Supper that Jesus had with his disciples. At this communion service, the choir will sing "Remember Me" and "Eat This Bread." In lieu of a Good Friday service at St. Paul's, church members and the community may attend the ecumenical service sponsored by the Mt. Top Ministerial Association from noon until 3 p.m. at St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland.

On Easter morning prior to services at St. Paul's, Pastor Kerr will deliver the message at the Sunrise Service at Garrett Memorial Gardens at 7 a.m. St. Paul's Early Singers will present special music at the 8:30 a.m. service on Easter Sunday. Under the direction of Donna Lee Shogren, they will perform selections from There Is Room at the Cross, plus other familiar hymns.

The 10:45 a.m. Easter worship service will open with the processional hymn "Christ the Lord is Risen Today" led by the chancel choir. With soloists Ann Leighton and Karen Winkelvoss, the choir will perform several anthems, including "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones, a seventeenth century hymn arranged by Ralph Vaughn Williams. Following the recessional, the choir will close the service with "My Peace I Leave You." Don Richter, trumpeter, and Phil Emery and Herb Lambert, trombonists, will accompany the choir.

St. Paul's United Methodist Church is located at the corner of Fourth and Oak streets. A nursery is provided at all services. Doris Gaskill is the organist for the 8:30 services. Muriel Frane is the minister of music, organist, and pianist for the 10:45 service, which can be heard live on radio station WMSG, 1050 AM.

Cecil Snyder was brought to his home on Ben DeWitt Road last Friday and his family has assumed his care.

Erma Gnegy is recuperating from last Thursday's surgery at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, in her home at Amboy.

Jared Uphole, infant son of Will and Jessica (Shaffer) Uphole, Aurora, was taken to a Morgantown hospital last week for tests and treatment.

Jane Bachtel of Eglon remains a patient in Ruby Memorial Hospital following the birth on Saturday of her and her husband Larry's daughter, a 2½ pound little girl who is reportedly progressing well.

Word was received that Rebecca Teets, formerly of Eglon and now a resident of the Goodwill Mennonite Home at Grantsville, fell there on Sunday morning as she attempted to answer the phone. No further information as to the injury is available at this time.

Grant Memorial Opens New SCU

Grant Memorial Hospital, Petersburg, will celebrate the opening of a new Special Care Unit (SCU) with an open house this Sunday, March 24, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The new unit will feature "state-of-the-art" equipment and ample space to care for four patients at any given time. The SCU has four rooms, a nurses' station, break room, a utility room, staff bathroom, and a television in each patient's room.

There is a negative-flow air system in one of the SCU rooms for patients with communicable respiratory diseases such as tuberculosis. H-P monitors will be used to monitor unit patients.

A new family waiting room is located adjacent to the SCU and will provide families with an in-house phone connected directly to the unit. This will allow for continued communication between SCU staff and the patient's family members. Special care patients will be moved to the unit April 9. Family visitation policies will remain the same.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF GLEN O'BRIEN

APRIL 22, 1920 - MARCH 22, 2001

God saw he was getting tired and a cure was not to be.
So he put his arms around him and whispered, "Come with me."

With tear-filled eyes we watched him suffer and fade away.
Although we loved him deeply
we could not make him stay.

A golden heart stopped beating hard-working hands put to rest,
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

Sadly missed,
Wife, Children, Grandchildren and Sister

Northern GOP Women's Club Sets Meeting

The Northern Garrett Republican Women's Club will hold its first meeting of the year on March 26 at 7 p.m. at Hilltop Restaurant, Grantsville.

Twila Mae Fike, vice president, will lead the Pledge of Allegiance, and Lois Rowe, secretary, will report on upcoming meeting dates. A membership report will be given by Louise McKenzie. Members are reminded that club dues for 2002 should be paid the night of the meeting.

The club is donating the book The Big Difference by Dr. Ben Carson to all 15 Garrett County schools. School principals invited to attend the meeting to receive the books are Sheila Miller, Accident; Holly Diehl, Friendsville; Linda Buckel, Grantsville; Patrick Delaney, Route 40; and others as available.

"It is hoped that all teachers, students, and parents will be inspired by this highly motivating book by Dr. Carson," said a club spokesperson. "He encourages reading, reading, and more reading in the quest of self-education, along with the need to seek all educational opportunities that are available to us."

This project is part of the club's goal of participating in the Mamie Eisenhower Library Program. Dusty Stanton will help to deliver the books to some of the schools, along with club members.

All members are encouraged to invite friends of the Republican Party to join the club for its regular monthly meetings, held the last Tuesday of each month.

President Carolyn Ganoe will announce the yearly schedule of speakers for the programming events. The Easter basket fund-raiser will be held at the close of the meeting.

U.S. Chamber Honors Bartlett

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the world's largest business federation, this week presented Rep. Roscoe Bartlett (R-6-Md.) with its 2001 "Spirit of Enterprise" Award for his strong support for its pro-business legislative agenda in the first session of the 107th Congress.

"In the last session of Congress, Roscoe Bartlett was a true leader in helping build a favorable climate for business and the U.S. economy, consistently demonstrating support for legislation to increase productivity and improve jobs, bolster national security, and spur economic growth," said Thomas J. Donohue, U.S. chamber president and CEO.

The chamber awards the "Spirit of Enterprise" based on rankings it gives members of Congress for key business votes, set out in its annual publication, How They Voted. Votes included in the rankings are chamber-designated "key votes," recorded floor votes on issues established as priorities by the chamber's board of directors on which the chamber communicates its position prior to the vote.

Members of Congress who support the chamber's position on at least 70 percent of key votes receive the "Spirit of Enterprise" Award. For the first session of the 107th Congress, the chamber designated 14 Senate votes and 23 House votes as key votes.

Rep. Bartlett earned a 78 percent score with the chamber last year and has compiled an 88 percent cumulative ranking during his tenure in Congress. Key 2001 votes included granting the president Trade Promotion Authority, repeal of OSHA's costly ergonomics regulation, the Tax Relief Act, and bankruptcy reform.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce represents more than 3 million businesses and organizations of every size, sector, and region.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Some real signs of spring were sighted by me in Bittinger the past week. I saw two robins and also two red-shoulder hawks, one on Accident-Bittinger Road sitting on a high branch of a tree watching for any prey. The other one I saw on Rock Lodge Road on the Hockman Farm (formerly Kermit Glotfelty farm) and this one was diving for a bunny or other small wildlife.

Kevin Dodge spotted a flock of turkey vultures on Accident-Bittinger Road, which is another sure sign of the changing of the seasons.

Just today I saw my best clump of daffodils sprouting. They used to live in Ethel Buckel's garden, but last year she kindly shared her abundance with me. I just can't wait for them to bloom.

Along Rock Lodge Road are the first wildflowers to bloom, the small yellow dandelion coltfoot, and I also picked a couple tiny blue flowers from my lawn.

In spite of the Pittsburgh television channel talking about their drought conditions, we are luckier than they, as our water supply in Bittinger seems to have flourished and the ground seems to be pretty saturated. The streams are in the full spring rush and the glades are over filled with lots and lots of water. The Rock Lodge spring is in full-running, and was before the last few days of rain.

I got a real shock Sunday morning when I headed out to my car as my deck was an ice rink. Without a cane in my hand, and since I was home alone and not expecting my girls home from their Nanny and Pop Sussman's house until mid-afternoon, and with the freezing rain still coming down, I pictured me falling down and soon covered by an inch or so of ice. So, I just carefully inched back to the front door, shaking with relief that I made it in without any disaster. After a few minutes our dogs started to carry on, which was a sure sign that someone was here. I was glad to see the shiny face of Cindy Stanton, who popped in with her regular Sunday baked goodies for us. If I had fallen down on the deck she would have been a lifesaver for me. She noted that the condition of my deck was another Lottie Brenneman accident in waiting.

Lottie continues to improve from her seriously broken leg. She still enjoys lots of visitors bearing meals and cheer. Although I did not hear exactly who visited her last week, I suspect it was the same gang that I listed before. It was great to see Lottie out to the 4-H buckwheat and pancake dinner on Friday night.

Personally, the only place I went last week and this week was to doctors, with the worst case of flu bug that I ever had. I still feel like a limp rag. I was barely able to cheer on the Maryland Terps in their road to the Final Four. So far they have reached the Sweet Sixteen round. Several local Maryland fans were tied for the first round on the GCC Lakers' fund-raiser sheet. Among them were my mother Ruth, cousin Courtney, and nephew, Matthew Bass.

The baseball boys of Bittinger had a successful trip to a scrimmage in the Hancock Boonesboro area over the weekend. They defeated Hancock on Friday and then played another never-ending game, inning after inning, without keeping any real score. All the Northern Huskies pitched in the games. Greg Whittemore hit a home run against Hancock. The Huskies appear to be an up-and-coming team this year to beat.

The members of the varsity and junior varsity basketball teams and their guests were honored at an awards dinner Sunday evening at Point View Inn. About 75 players and their families enjoyed a great turkey dinner prepared by Tonya Beitzel. Landon Southerly won the Varsity Coach Award for his practicing and playing with severe pain from shin splits. Also on the varsity squad from Bittinger was Jensen Long of Foxtown Road. Representing Bittinger on the junior varsity team were Matthew Bass, Max Beitzel, and Brent Housley.

A few of the great dames of the Bittinger area will have some big birthdays this week, including Ida Reckner, who will turn 98 on the 20th, Lucretia Stanton, also in her 90s, and Edna Beitzel, who will also turn 93.

I wonder whether our grandmother's generation benefited from their families when they were expected to do chores!? What generations had easier lives is the question. In my mother's generation many of them worked outside the home, along with their duties of homemaking and raising their children. Although we are pushing the 50s, we still feel not really grown up.

Cindy is still hoping the bad weather hangs around so the schools would have another snow day. But I already feel older than how I perceive my mother must have felt at this stage of her life. Maybe when we are fully grown up we will get some rest and relaxation, but I doubt it, with the busy schedule of our children to deal with. I know it taxes my brain to keep up with three girls' soccer schedules, plus their 4-H activities, church duties, and the host of birthday parties that they attend.

When my children are out of sight of me, I can't stop worrying about them. The world today is a very scary place and more dangerous than ever before in at least the last 100 years, with international terrorists who crash airplanes into whatever they want.

Yes, when I was little I used to be scared when a plane flew over, afraid it might be the Russians, but it was unlikely that they would choose Bittinger to drop their H bombs. Nowadays we have biological terrorists and AIDS, while the greatest danger for the ladies who were young in the early part of the 20th century was the flu, which killed more Americans than WWI. As bad as I feel with the flu, I still do not feel like I am dying, except maybe I am dying of a broken heart. The ladies who turn 90 or more this week did not have to worry about divorce, as it was unthinkable at their time.

On another note, Landon Southerly, Robbie Glotfelty, Andrew Hady, and Derrick and Karla Buckel will participate in the Regional Science Fair at Allegany College this weekend.

Ida Reckner was honored at her home Sunday with a family dinner to celebrate her 97th birthday. Attending were Sheli Gray and daughters Ashlin and Abigail, Hanover; William and Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Charee Reckner, Michaele Puliti, Cheryl and Tim Glotfelty, McHenry; Adam Platter, Smithsburg; Tom Glotfelty; and Jim and Donna Glotfelty. Taylor Glotfelty, a student at West Virginia University, was an evening visitor. Some of Ida's relatives who had planned to attend the celebration were ill or were afraid to brave the ice storm which blanketed the area around noon.

RAISING MONEY WITH MATH — Students at Kitzmiller Elementary School recently completed a Math-a-Thon to raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Students in grades 3 to 5 raised a grand total of $2,312.80. The top money-raiser was Lisa Kifer, a fourth-grader who raised $242. The Math-a-Thon, now in its 22nd year, is an educationally based fund-raising program in which students obtain sponsors for the number of math problems completed correctly in special workbooks provided. The students who participated also learned the importance of helping children who are less fortunate than themselves, a spokesperson said. Children with more than 200 forms of cancer and other catastrophic diseases are treated at St. Jude Hospital. Pictured are the participating students who raised at least $35 for St. Jude. In the front row, left to right, are Tommy Wilson, Heather Wolf, Daniel Lambka, Amber Barnhouse, Kristi Warnick, Aimee Spiker, Becky Reckart, and Amanda Barnhouse. Second row, same order: Principal Barbara Baker, Tyler Whitacre, Keith Pennington, Lawrence Armstrong, Heidi Welch, Caitlyn Virts, Paul Tichnell, math teacher Kathy Klink, and Kristi Davis. Third row: Robbie Biser, Tiffany Matthews, Meghan Brady, Cory Stieringer, Jinwny Eichorn, and Kayla Evans. Fifth row: William Bircher, Brittany Whitacre, Miranda Evans, Bryant Whitacre, Katie Harvey, Lacey McRobie, Lisa Kifer, and Tommy Davis.

DeWitt Seeking Re-Election To Orphans' Court

Clifford C. DeWitt has announced his candidacy for a fourth term as judge of the Orphans' Court for Garrett County. DeWitt was first elected to that office in 1990, and in 1994 and again in 1998, he was appointed by the governor to his current position as chief judge.

DeWitt is a lifelong resident of Garrett County. He retired in 1990 after serving 30 years in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court for Garrett County, 12 years of which he served as the elected clerk of court.

DeWitt said he feels his many years of experience in both the Circuit and Orphans' courts qualify him to serve the public of Garrett County in matters brought before the Orphans' Court. As an active member of the Maryland Association of Judges of the Orphans' Court, DeWitt attends the organization's sessions in Annapolis.

A past president of the Garrett County Historical Society, DeWitt currently serves on its board of directors. He is also serving on the Garrett County Heritage Committee, which the County Commissioners recently appointed to establish a heritage plan for the county. DeWitt is an accompanist for several local gospel quartets and has been involved in other civic projects in Garrett County.

W. Dwight Stover is acting as DeWitt's campaign treasurer.

Correction Noted

In a story in last week's edition concerning a vehicle accident involving Edward A. Householder and Sharrol A. Harvey, a piece of another story concerning Chad W. Campbell was inadvertently printed at the end.

The two stories and the charges of those involved are unrelated.

The error is regretted.

Local Farmers May Participate In Angus Sale

Local farmers will have an opportunity to participate in an auction of Wye Angus cattle that will be held in Queensboro on Saturday, April 6, and they won't have to go to Queensboro to do so.

Area producers will be able to "attend" the auction and bid on the 29 performance-tested Wye bulls and 18 performance-tested MBEP bulls, as well as several cow/calf pairs and heifers, via the interactive classroom at Garrett Community College. All animals purchased that day will be delivered free of charge.

Registration for the auction will begin at 11 a.m. on April 6, and the auction will begin at noon.

According to Willie Lantz, agricultural management instructor at GCC, the Wye Angus herd was started in 1954 by Arthur Houghton. The closed herd was started with only eight blood lines, including seven black Angus lines and one red Angus line. The Wye animals are tall and lean, while most other breeds are short and stocky.

He explained that a dwarf gene eventually began to show up in the Angus breed, and producers had to find cattle without this dwarf gene to breed their cattle. One of the few breeders of cattle without this gene was at the Wye Plantation. Producers flocked to the Wye Plantation to purchase bulls so that they could produce taller cattle.

In 1978, Wye Plantation donated the Wye Angus herd, together with a substantial cash endowment, to the University of Maryland Foundation. Over the years, the Angus industry has undergone many changes, but the Wye Angus herd has not, Lantz said. Other than losing the red Angus bloodline, the Wye still has the same blood lines as those of the original herd. "These blood lines are still desirable to Angus producers," he said.

Persons with questions about the April 6 auction may telephone Lantz at 301-387-3331, or the Garrett County Cooperative Extension Service at 301-334-6960.

Preston Agency Notes Deadline For Forest Plan

The Preston County Farm Service Agency announces that signup under the Stewardship Incentives Program (SIP) will be taken through the close of business Monday, April 1. Interested landowners must have a Forest Stewardship Plan in effect for the woodland they wish to enroll.

Eligible forestry practices include: (1) Reforestation and Afforestation; (2) Forest and Agro Improvement; (3) Soil and Water Protection and Improvement; (4) Riparian and Wetland Protection and Improvement, (5) Fisheries Habitat Enhancement; and (6) Forest Recreation Enhancement.

SIP applications will be approved on a first-come, first-served basis. Limited funds will be allocated based on issue date and time of day the application is filed.

Interested landowners wishing to obtain a Forest Stewardship Plan for their woodland may still file applications. The West Virginia Division of Forestry will pay 75 percent of the cost for landowners to obtain a plan that will meet their

Legislature Passes Bill Giving Ag Secretary Right To Search Farms

by Hanah Cho
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland's Department of Agriculture could soon have direct power to search farms with Tuesday's passage of a bill to broaden the department's control over animal disease outbreaks. The House of Delegates approved the proposal giving the secretary of agriculture clearer authority to obtain administrative search warrants for farms when violations of animal health laws are suspected.

The bill — one of several proposals recommended by the Anti-Terrorism Task Force after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in New York and the Pentagon — gained Senate approval last week. The proposal now heads to Gov. Parris Glendening, who supports the package of anti-terrorism legislation.

"We're glad to see that these bills are moving through," said Raquel Guillory, a Glendening spokeswoman. "It's part of our major effort to address a new level of security that we unfortunately have to face."

With recent outbreaks of foot-and-mouth diseases abroad, the bill provides procedures to handle possible epidemics here, said Valerie Connelly of the Maryland Farm Bureau.

"We saw what happened in Europe where [foot-and-mouth disease] sat there for three weeks," she said. "We want to make sure a remedy is in place."

Under the bill, the secretary must first try to gain voluntary access to private

Farm Numbers, Acreage Stats Are Unchanged

Maryland farm numbers and land in farms remained unchanged for the third straight year. There were 12,400 farming operations in Maryland in 2001, unchanged from 2000, but 19 percent fewer than 10 years earlier.

The number of farms that reported between $1,000 and $9,999 in sales was 5,900. There were 6,500 farming operations reporting over $10,000 in sales for 2001.

Total land in farms was estimated at 2.1 million acres, unchanged from 2000, but down 7 percent from 1991. The number of total acres in farms that had between $1,000 and $9,999 in sales was estimated at 400,000 acres. For farming operations with over $10,000 in sales, total land was 1,700,000 acres.

Average farm size for Maryland farming operations was 169 acres, the same as last year.

National Dairy Farmers Assn. To Meet In KC

Members and guests on hand for this week's fourth annual national meeting of the Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) in Kansas City this coming week will be treated to programs that not only inform, but challenge, according to a spokesperson. The two-day event will bring together DFA leaders, as well as representatives of some of the nation's leading dairy companies, and the theme of the meeting is "a single member affects our entire organization."

"Just as our nation was challenged last year as

Crop Prices Are Noted For 2001

Marketing year average prices (MYA) in Maryland were up for corn, soybeans, and hay in 2001.

Corn was up 4 cents a bushel, while the value of the grain produced was $114 million, down 9 percent from the record 2000 crop. Soybeans were 40 cents below 2000, and value declined 17 percent to $82 million.

The MYA price of wheat was $2.45 cents per bushel, up 35 cents from 2000. Value increased to $27 million. Barley was down 10 cents a bushel and value fell just below $5.0 million. The alfalfa hay price was up $25 per ton, while other hay generated an average of $16 per ton more than 2000. Potato prices dropped 10 cents per hundredweight.

Maryland farm operators received more for their corn, soybeans, and cattle in February, compared with January, but had lower prices for wheat, hay, and eggs. Corn prices rose 2 cents per bushel, and soybeans were up 10 cents, while wheat was down 16 cents, and hay $8 per ton lower.

Egg Production Numbers Noted

Maryland laying flocks produced 75 million eggs during January 2002, of which 70 million were table eggs and 5 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 75.2 percent. The average number of layers on hand during January 2002 was 3,217,000.

On February 1, 6.5 percent of the layers in Maryland were being molted and 25.5 percent of all layers had been through a molt.

Invasion Of The Asian Lady Beetles

by James W. Simms
Garrett Co. Extension Educator
Agricultural & Natural Resources

The muhicolored Asian lady beetle is native to Asia, but occurs in many areas of the United States. This beneficial insect was imported and released as early as 1916 in attempts to naturally control certain insect pests. But the first populations were not found in this country until 1988 in Louisiana near the busy port of New Orleans.

Over the years, federal, state, and private entomologists released the insect at a number of locations. But it was not detected in these places until some years after it had became established in Louisiana. In addition, accidental entries have occurred via imported nursery items at ports in Delaware and South Carolina. Thus, it is uncertain whether the beetle's establishment resulted from planned releases, accidental entries, or both.

LIFE CYCLE

The multicolored Asian lady beetle is similar to other familiar lady beetles commonly found throughout the United States. Like the familiar lady beetles, the multicolored Asian lady beetle feeds on insect pests in orchards and forests, but may also occur on row crops and in gardens.

Lady beetles have four distinct life stages: egg, larva, pupa, and adult. The muhicolored Asian lady beetle adults begin laying eggs on host plants in early spring. Eggs hatch in about three to five days, and larvae begin searching on plants for aphids and other soft-bodied arthropods on which to feed. Adults and larvae typically feed upon the same prey. Larvae moh four times, becoming larger after each molt, and enter an immobile pupal stage after the last molt.

After several days, the adult beetle emerges from the pupal case. Development time from egg to adult requires 15-25 days depending on temperature and food availability. Later in the fall, near the time of killing frosts, the adult beetle seeks shelter to spend the winter.

MIXED BLESSING

This variably colored and spotted lady beetle is an effective, natural control for harmful plant pests such as aphids, scale, and other soft-bodied arthropods. Still, its tendency to overwinter in homes and other buildings, sometimes in large numbers, may make them a nuisance to many persons.

If agitated or squashed, the beetles may exhibit a defensive reaction known as "reflex bleeding," in which a yellow fluid with an unpleasant odor is released from leg joints. This reaction generally prevents predators, such as a bird, from eating lady beetles. But in a home, the fluid may stain walls and fabrics.

WHAT THESE INSECTS DO AND DON'T DO

Lady beetles are not structure damaging pests unlike insects such as termites and carpenter ants. Lady beetles do not chew or bore holes in walls or eat carpet or furniture. They do not lay their eggs in homes.

Asian lady beetles are attracted to lighter colors: whites, grays, yellows. So light-colored houses, especially on hillsides in forested areas, might serve as "homing beacons." Once the lady beetles enter the walls of a building through cracks and crevices, they may or may not proceed to the interior of the building. Most stay in the wall spaces.

During warm days of late winter and early spring, overwintering beetles in a wall space may become active. In their search for an exit, they may enter the home's living areas and become a nuisance. Warmer temperatures or lighting in the living areas may attract these active beetles as they search for an exit. Many may gather at the windows of a home.

PREVENTION AND CONTROL

Preventing the lady beetles from entering is the best approach to keeping them from becoming a household nuisance in fall and winter. Caulking exterior cracks and crevices, before the lady beetles seek overwintering sites, is the best way to keep them out. This will also keep out other unwanted insects such as wasps, and will save homeowners money on energy costs.

Sweeping and vacuuming are effective methods for removing these lady beetles from living areas. Using insecticides indoors for control of the lady beetles is not typically recommended, unless the infestation is very heavy, and professional pest control advice should be sought.

Lady beetles that enter living areas are typically attracted to light. A trap for indoor use that uses light to attract lady beetles and other flying insects was developed by Agricultural Research Services. Detailed technical instructions and diagrams for constructing the trap are available at the Garrett Cooperative Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

property before a warrant is required. The warrant would be limited in nature, scope, and location to prevent abuses.

At a Senate hearing last month, Secretary Hagner Mister told lawmakers the bill was needed to protect Maryland farmers against contagious diseases, including foot-and-mouth disease.

"This was definitely a subject of concern for the department," said spokesman Don Vandrey. "We are pleased to see this legislation moving forward."

The fast-spreading disease — which causes excessive drooling and blisters on the mouths and feet of cloven-hoofed animals such as cows and sheep — ravaged the European livestock industry last year. The outbreak in Britain forced officials to ban exports of all live animals and slaughter livestock suspected of the disease and in affected areas.

Spates of mad cow disease, a chronic, degenerative disease affecting the central nervous system of cattle, also have hit Europe in the last few years, devastating the farm economy. The disease bovine spongiform encephalopathy causes fatal neurological damage, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Maryland's economy also would take a hard hit if such a highly contagious disease spread in the state, according to the bill's fiscal analysis. The state's cattle industry is worth $202 million, while the dairy cow industry is worth $181 million, according to the Agriculture in Maryland Summary for 2000-2001.

dramatic circumstances dictated, our cooperative took profound steps toward serving the milk marketing needs of America's dairy farmers," said DFA board chairman Herman Brubaker, a dairy farmer from West Alexandria, Ohio.

Brubaker's report will cite cooperation between more than 25,000 U.S. dairy farmers as the single factor that led to the formation of DFA, the world's largest milk marketing cooperative, which is owned exclusively by dairy farmers.

"The willingness and desire to work together cooperatively is what has set U.S. dairy farmers apart from producers of other agriculture commodities — and that cooperation is the foundation for the future of DI·A," Brubaker said.

The meeting's agenda also includes s report on the agriculture outlook for 2001 delivered by Terry Barr, vice president of economic and legislative analysis, National Council Farmer Cooperatives. DFA President and CEO Gary Hanman will report on operations and financial highlights for 2001. The DFA member delegate body will discuss and vote on resolutions. DFA's resolutions process allows members at the grassroots level to have input in the development of DFA positions and policies that affect the dairy industry. The meeting will conclude with a "questions and answers" session with DFA executives.

The DFA is the nation's largest dairy farmer-owned marketing cooperative. Based in Kansas City, DFA annually markets and processes milk for its more than 25,000 member-owners across the United States. Through its extensive network of plants and joint ventures, DFA supplies milk, dairy products, ingredients, and food components to customers in the U.S. and around the world.

What's Happening with Electric Competition in Maryland.

As electric competition in Maryland begins to develop, the Maryland Public Service Commission will publish a series of update reports to provide consumers with helpful information. Today, most of Maryland is ready for electric choice—investor-owned utilities officially opened their markets to competition in 2000 and the Southern Maryland Electric Cooperative and Choptank Electric Cooperative opened to choice in 2001. As a competitive electric market develops, you will be able to choose the company that supplies electricity to your home or business. This competitive electric market will take time to develop, but offers a long-term strategy designed to bring many different benefits to Maryland consumers. Now is a good time to learn more about electric competition and to stay informed.

What Changes and What Stays the Same?

In the past, your entire electric service was provided by your local electric utility. With electric competition, the three main parts of electric service – generation, transmission and distribution – are separated. As the market develops, you will be able to choose the company that provides the generation of your electricity. This company is called an electricity supplier.

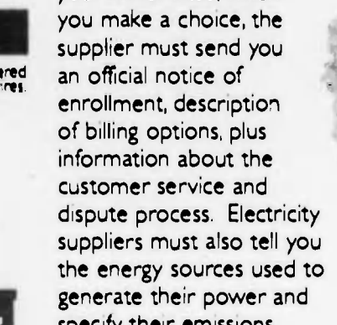
Transmission and distribution services are still regulated by the Maryland Public Service Commission. This includes the actual delivery of electricity over poles and wires and will continue to be provided by your local utility. Your utility is now called your electric company. You should call your electric company if the power goes out, just as you always have.

Benefits to Consumers

Electric competition offers the potential for several benefits to consumers. It gives you the power to choose the electricity supplier that provides your energy. You can choose that supplier based on price, terms and conditions of service, reputation, billing options or its use of renewable resources. Competition among electricity suppliers may also help lower prices over time, while encouraging the development of new products and services.

Some Consumers Are Already Making the Switch

As the market develops, more competitive electricity suppliers are likely to become active in marketing and advertising to Maryland consumers. Nearly 10% of residential consumers in the Potomac Electric Power Company (PEPCO) service territory have already switched electricity suppliers. Your choices and your options will develop over time, as more competitors enter the market across the State.



Safe and Reliable Service

If you do not choose an electricity supplier, you will still receive power from your electric company. This power is called standard offer service and is in place now.

Although the Public Service Commission will no longer regulate the price of energy, the delivery of energy is still regulated to help ensure that you receive safe power with the same service reliability you have always known.

Consumer Protections

Important consumer protection regulations remain in place. To begin with, all electricity suppliers must be licensed by the Maryland Public Service Commission to do business in the State. Once you choose an electricity supplier you have ten days to cancel if you change your mind. Also, when you make a choice, the supplier must send you an official notice of enrollment, description of billing options, plus information about the customer service and dispute process. Electricity suppliers must also tell you the energy sources used to generate their power and specify their emissions rates. Your electric service may not be switched without your permission. And if you ask a telemarketer to take your name off their call list, that marketer is not allowed to call you again.

Assisting Low-Income Consumers with the Electric Universal Service Program

Some consumers may need assistance in paying their electric bills. The Electric Universal Service Program helps lower-income customers pay current electric bills, settle past unpaid bills, and also provides guidance with energy efficiency measures. You may be eligible if your yearly income is $12,885 or less (add $4,530 for each additional household member) To find out more about the program or to get an application, call toll-free at 1-800-352-1446 (TTY/TTD: 1-800-925-4434) or visit the web site at www.dhr.state.md.us/maap. Applications are also available at your local energy assistance office.

Competition Takes Time to Develop – Learn More Now

A competitive electric market is just beginning to take shape in Maryland and will need time to develop more fully. Now is the time to get informed! Plug in. Get smart. To find out more about electric competition, call our answer center or visit our web site.

GCC To Host Allied Health Career Day

An Allied Health Career Day fair will take place from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, March 26, in Room 154 of Garrett Community College. The event is designed to give prospective students information about careers in various allied health professions and the education requirements.

Following a welcome by Dean of Academic Affairs Dr. Lillian Mitchell and an overview of the day's activities by biology professor Carolyn Deniker, GCC students and former students who are currently employed as allied health professionals will speak about their education and their particular careers.

Students and alumni expected to participate are Kristi Coddington-Durst, Dental Health Group hygienist; Eric Cvetnick, Garrett County Health Department nurse; John Jones, Garrett County Memorial Hospital radiology technician; Melissa Frantz, GCMH laboratory technician; Matia Vanderbilt, Appalachian Crossroads recreational therapist; and Laurel Wolf, a GCC graduate who is now studying exercise physiology at West Virginia University, Morgantown.

Crystal Roberson, GCC's director of enrollment development, and Mary Hartman, director of admissions at Allegany College of Maryland, Cumberland, will discuss the admissions and transfer process by which students can begin their education at GCC and complete it in one of ACM's allied health programs. Transfer opportunities to allied health programs at other colleges will also be discussed.

Lunch will be provided followed by a tour of the campus conducted by members of the Student Government Association. Stacie Upole, GCC's coordinator of career services, and Pat Bennett, director financial aid, will explain the services they offer through their respective offices.

The Allied Health Career Day program has been planned by Virginia Broaddus, director of arts and sciences, in conjunction with Deniker and Roberson. All those interested in allied health careers are invited to attend.

A TRULY EDUCATIONAL CUISINE — Several Garrett Countians traveled to Washington, D.C., recently to attend a benefit luncheon at the Chinese Embassy. Sponsored by the Maryland Association of University Women, the event raised funds for the Virginia Gildersleeve International Fund and China's Hope Project, which provides educational support for girls in rural villages on Yuan Province in southwestern China. Pictured, from the left in the front row, are Dr. Gail Herman, Tatjana Kravtauk, Raili Raud, and Haiku Sikka. In the back row are GCC president Dr. Steve Herman, Kalle Rattesepp, Betty Pritt, Marina Kravtauk, Terje Kaur, and Darlene Preston. The students are members of GCC's World View International Club. Also on hand, but not pictured, were Joan Crawford, Susan Crawford, and John Preston.

On Dean's List

Janet Cook has been named to the dean's list for academic achievement for the fall semester at Goucher College in Baltimore. A junior at Goucher, Cook is enrolled in the political science curriculum with a pre-law concentration.

Cook is involved in the mentoring program at Goucher and tutors at a local elementary school. This is her second year to sing with the school's a capella chorus known as "The Reverend's Rebels," who perform for functions at Goucher and for various community organizations. She was selected to perform a solo at this year's spring concert that hosted other a capella groups from the University of Pennsylvania and from James Madison University.

Cook works on campus at the Gopher Hole, the school's non-alcoholic pub.

Cook will fulfill her law clerk internship this summer to complete her off-campus experience for pre-law. She is a 1999 honor graduate of Southern High School and the daughter of John and Donna Cook of Oakland.

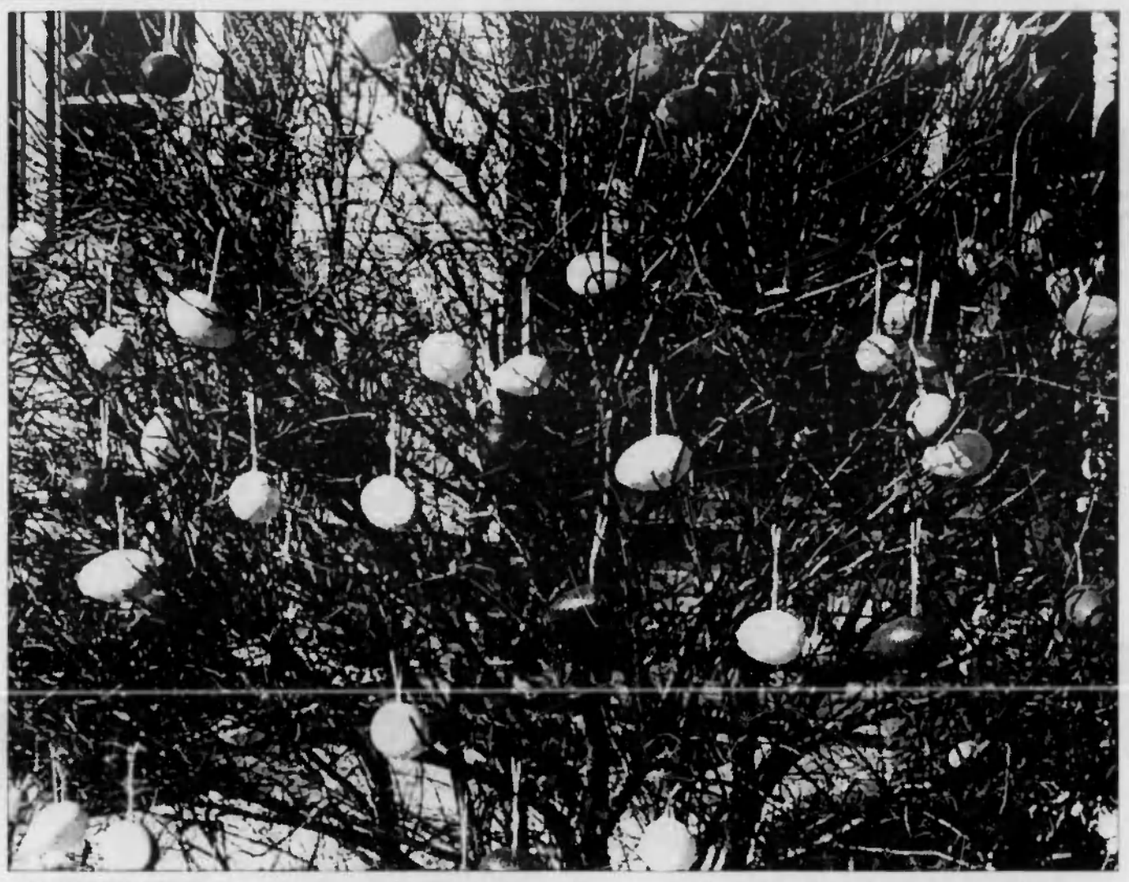
Man Arrested On Warrants, Driver Also Charged

A Mtn. Lake Park man, who was wanted on several outstanding warrants from Garrett and Worchester counties, was arrested after Garrett County sheriff's deputies received information regarding his whereabouts. The vehicle in which he was traveling was stopped and the driver was also arrested on drunk driving charges.

Joseph Ray Kisselovich, 47, the passenger in the vehicle, which was traveling along Route 219 north of Mayhew Inn Road, was arrested without further incident.

According to police, the investigating deputy detected a strong odor of alcohol on the driver, Charles Alfred Dean, 52, Oakland. Dean did not perform field sobriety tests to the deputy's satisfaction and was arrested and charged with driving under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI).

Dean was released on his own recognizance from the Garrett County Jail. Kisselovich is currently incarcerated in the jail awaiting a bond review.



AN EASTER TREE? The celebration of Easter is evident in the yard of Eileen DeVins, located along Bear Creek Road near Accident. This tree is just one of several eye-catching decorations on the DeVins property, which is also bedecked with lighted displays, religious symbols, and lots of bunnies and chicks, according to staff photographer John McEwen. Holy Week is now in progress for Christians across the world, with today remembered for many as Maundy (or Holy) Thursday, or the day of the Last Supper. Good Friday, tomorrow, will be celebrated locally with church services across the county. To catch the color of this egg-bearing tree, readers may wish to view it on our web site, located at www.therepublicannews.com.

Bear Task Force To Solicit Area Citizens' Input

The state-appointed Black Bear Task Force will consider the comments and opinions of Garrett County citizens before finalizing its recommendations for Maryland's management of the growing black bear population. The decision was announced at yesterday's task force meeting at Rocky Gap State Park.

"We have been commissioned to pay special attention to what the people have to say who live in bear country," said task force chairman Tom Matthews, a retired wildlife biologist who spent his career with the Department of Natural Resources. His group intends to formulate a set of preliminary recommendations by late summer and host a public meeting in Garrett County in October to present those items and ask for the public's input. Residents from across the rest of the state will be given the chance to comment via e-mail.

Garrett County's farmers, the group most impacted financially by bear misbehavior, will be afforded the opportunity to provide their input as the preliminary recommendations are being drawn up. Local Farm Bureau member Brooks Hamilton will be preparing a report for the May task force meeting that will assess the current crop bear damage program from local farmers' vantage point.

Residents Voice Concerns About Plan To Close 14 County Roads

The Garrett County commissioners recently held a public hearing on the potential closure of 14 county roads. Several residents who live along some of those roads were opposed to the closings, primarily for safety reasons. County attorney Gorman Getty said the roads would be designated as "Other Public" (O.P.) roads and would not cut off anyone's rights to use the them.

"We've been evaluating all the county roads," said Fred Polce, superintendent of the county roads department. Various factors — such as traffic count, the number of residents living along the road, and safety — were used to determine which roads could be potentially dropped from the county's list of properties, according to Polce. The superintendent said some of the roads were "basically, driveways," only 200 to 300 feet long.

L. Dean Savage spoke on behalf of his elderly mother Gladys, who is the only resident along Old Pysell Road. She has lived there for 52 years. "What's she getting for her tax dollars?" Savage asked. He was concerned about rescue personnel being unable to reach his mother, due to a snow-covered road.

Donald Umbel, who has lived along Paul Fisher Road for 25 years, was also concerned about his road being dropped from the county properties list. He explained that he has a heart problem, and that the other three families along the road were also in poor health. Umbel was also concerned about getting out during emergencies in the winter. He added that more families may be living along the road if four rental trailers become occupied in the future.

Two spokespersons for an elderly man in his 90s, who lives along Alan Fike Road, were also concerned about his welfare if his road is not maintained by the county.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg told the residents that there is a county policy that allows county road crews to plow any road or driveway during an emergency. Residents may alert

Pa. Man Jailed By MSP On DUI, Weapons Charges

A Pennsylvania man who was stopped for speeding in Accident early Saturday morning was arrested for driving while under the influence and illegal transport of a handgun in a vehicle by Maryland State Police.

Benjamin James Shaffer, 21, Amity, was stopped along Garrett Highway at Industrial Park Drive at 2:11 a.m. After the DUI arrest, a vehicle search uncovered a loaded handgun hidden under the driver's seat of Shaffer's truck.

Shaffer was subsequently released from the Garrett County Jail when he posted a $1,000 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

In other state police arrest activity, three Pennsylvania residents were handed drug charges Saturday evening in the wake of a traffic stop just south of Oakland.

Christopher John Gubala, 20, Bridgeville, and his two 18-year-old passengers, Justin Guy Chaussard of Cuddy and Rebecca Marie Dryer of McDonald, were

Deer Park Youth Continues To Recover At CMH

A 15-year-old Deer Park area youth is making slow but steady progress at Cumberland Memorial Hospital, according to a family member, as he recovers from injuries sustained in a Friday, March 15, all-terrain vehicle accident.

Dustin Tyler Smith of Pysell Cross Cut Road was driving a 2001 Polaris Sportsman on a path in a wooded area near his home when he lost control of the ATV shortly after 7 p.m. The loss of control was for unknown reasons, according to the Maryland State Police accident report, and he was ejected from the vehicle and struck an unknown object, fracturing his skull.

Smith was flown to Cumberland by MSP helicopter Trooper 5. The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene. No charges were filed by state police.

Smith is the son of Robin and Denzil Smith.

Southern High Gearing Up For Weeklong 50th-Year Celebration

Students and staff at Southern High School are gearing up for a weeklong celebration April 8-12 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Southern Garrett High School. The first class to graduate from the school did so in the spring of 1953, making the 2002 class the 50th to receive SHS diplomas.

Each day of the designated week will be devoted to a particular decade: April 8, the '50s; April 9, the '60s; April 10, the '70s; April 11, '80s; and April 12, the '90s to the present. Music representing the decade will be played over the loud speaker system before and after school each day, as well as during lunch in the cafeteria. There may also be student bands performing music of each decade on the stage during lunch, according to a school spokesperson.

A showcase in the school will depict some of the music and clothing of the various decades. Students and teachers are encouraged to dress in the style of each decade day, and prizes will be awarded for the best costumes.

Videos that depict what was going on at the high school during each decade will be shown to the student body during the week.

As students arrive at school, they will see two cars representing the decade of the day. They will also be able to view high school pictures of current teachers who graduated from Southern, which will be on display, and students will be asked to guess their identities.

Southern's art honorary students are working on murals to add to the ones

Local Students Noted As State Service Stars

Two Garrett County high school seniors, Amanda Hahn of Northern High and Joseph Graham of Southern High, have received state recognition for completing outstanding Service Learning projects. The pair were honored as "Service Stars" during a recent awards ceremony at the College of Notre Dame of Maryland, Baltimore, which was attended by dignitaries including Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend and Maryland Student Service Alliance executive director Luke Frazier, both of whom presented plaques to each of the honorees.

Each year two students are selected from each county in the state for recognition as having completed quality Service Learning projects. Service Star award recipients must be enrolled in high school, exceed expectations for Service Learning in their district, and serve as role models for other students. All Service Star award winners and their families attended a breakfast in their honor on the Notre Dame campus, which was followed by the awards ceremony during the 11th annual Maryland Service Learning Conference.

Both students intend to enter college in the fall while continuing their service to others.

Swanton Man Arrested For Alleged Assault

A Swanton man was arrested Saturday night after deputies responded to a residence in Bloomington for an alleged assault.

Upon arrival, the deputies found the victim with a laceration by a knife on the left forearm. Keith Franklin Douglass, 22, was located a short distance from the scene, and deputies apprehended him on a traffic stop.

According to police, Douglass was found in possession of a small pocket knife. He was charged with first degree assault, reckless endangerment, second degree assault, and disorderly conduct.

The victim was treated at the scene by Bloomington fire department personnel.

Douglass was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $1,500 bond.

Leaders Provide Monthly Reports: Peer Center Renamed Harvey House

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing from 13 different departments and agencies. Trish Yoder, director of the local Core Services Agency (CSA) — Mtn. Top Mental Health Associates — reported that the Consumer Drop-In Clinic, which is a peer-support center, is undergoing changes. Part of the center's operations will move to Third Street in Oakland and will be known as Harvey House, in honor of local mental health advocate Louise Harvey. An open house will be held in May.

The center will also continue to maintain an office at its present location along Weber Road, Oakland, and will eventually be known as Right Step Advocacy Center, according to Yoder. The center provides transportation and a meal to mental health consumers four days a week.

Other issues discussed at this month's staff meeting were tourism, the library recovery project, department budgets, and economic development.

Chamber of Commerce

Ken Wishnick, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, reported that data on requests for information about the county from potential tourists had been compiled. Appalachian Crossroads has been contracted by the chamber to process the requests from its web site, advertisements, and vacation guides.

In February, which is usually a slow month, 1,000 requests were processed, according the president. He said the researched showed that most of those requests were, predictably, from residents in the Pittsburgh, Washington, and Baltimore areas. However, surprisingly, there were more requests from the New York City area than from Virginia.

Wishnick said the NYC

"HOW NOW, GARRETT COUNTY COW?" — Nearly 100 very high ranking military and government officials from several Central Asian countries, who are studying at the Germany based George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies, visited Garrett County recently for an introduction to real-life democracy and free enterprise in rural America. The tour, which was coordinated with the assistance of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, included a stop at the Oakland-area Dell Ridge Farm of Terry and Jill Hauser. Tour coordinator and former Oakland resident U.S. Army Lt. Col. Jack Riley forwarded this photo from the farm visit that he titled "Romanian Cow Maiden." Following the dairy farm tour, the visitors enjoyed bottles of chocolate and plain milk which had been donated by Fike's Dairy of Uniontown, Pa. (No word on whether this picture was snapped at the 4 a.m. or the 4 p.m. milking.)

Shrine Circus Coming To FSU

The Ali Ghan Shrine Circus will come to Frostburg State University on Sunday, April 14, to present two performances, at 2 and 6:30 p.m. Tickets are now available at Naylor's Hardware, Get-N-Go, and Marvin's Men's Wear in Oakland.

The George Hubler International Circus hails from Dayton, Ohio, and features acts involving clowns, elephants, tigers, dancing dogs, aerialists, and various other performers.

The Murray Family will lead their trained elephants through a number of new tricks, and will also make elephant rides available before each performance.

Other animal acts will include those of Kay Rosaire and her Royal Bengal tigers, including a rare white tiger; the Dazzling Darnells, who make Egyptian hunting dogs "appear and disappear"; and the dancing dogs of the Dior Sisters, dressed in Parisian Easter Parade costumes.

Among the clowns will be Sr. Maurice the Mad Hatter and Tommy Terrific on the trampoline. The Sensational Sladek will provide aerial thrills, and Spider Man Jr. will build a "stairway to the stars" with his special tables.

Ticket prices are $8 for adults and $5 for children, with a family pack including two adult and two child tickets for $21.

All proceeds from the circus, which will be held in the FSU Arena, are used to finance the operation of the Ali Ghan Shrine Temple in Cumberland. For more information, persons may telephone 301-722-5970.

Extreme Youth, Communities Conf. Slated At GCC

The "Extreme Youth, Extreme Communities Conference," designed to promote positive youth development and build community assets, is slated for April 6 from 10 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in the Garrett Community College auditorium.

The keynote speaker will be Tim Duffy from Search Institute, a non-profit research organization, who will give a presentation titled "Introducing Developmental Assets" to approximately 100 adult and youth leaders. Duffy specialized in positive youth development within communities.

The conference is geared toward middle-school age youth through adults. Workshops will be available for all ages, and students may earn service learning hours by attending the free conference. Persons are encouraged to pre-register by calling 301-334-7730.

This event is being sponsored by the Garrett County commissioners, the health department, the Partnership for Children and Families, and the Garrett Youth Council.

According to Susan Athey-Oxford, director of the Partnership, the conference is a beginning component of a several-year plan developed by her organization and several other community partners. The project is designed to fortify local communities with the skills to "assess, build, and sustain healthy community assets," she said.

The leaders hope to help build a countywide network of adults involved with youth in environments such as neighborhoods, schools, and churches, and to help them foster experiences, relationships, and opportunities that will help the area's young people mature into healthy, caring, and responsible adults.

CAMPAIGNING IN GARRETT COUNTY — Congressman Bob Ehrlich, 2nd District, who announced his candidacy for Maryland governor last week, made a quick visit to Garrett County Tuesday evening. Considered a moderate Republican, Ehrlich is hoping to become Maryland's first GOP head of state since Spiro Agnew took office in 1966. His Democrat opponent in the race will most likely be current lieutenant governor Kathleen Kennedy-Townsend. Bloodmobile To Visit Oakland And Grantsville

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will make two trips to Garrett County within three days, with the first slated for Friday, April 5, at St. Peter's Catholic Church parish hall, and the second set for Monday, April 8, at the Grantsville fire hall.

Donors at the Oakland visit will be welcomed from noon to 6 p.m., and the collection at Grantsville will be from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m.

The need for blood donors in the region increased this past week, as flooding in areas of West Virginia, Kentucky, and Ohio forced cancellation of several visits. Donors of all blood types are needed, particularly those with Rh negative types, as there is a less than two-day supply. The ARC is working to expand inventory levels of all blood types from three days to a week's supply.

In order to be eligible to give blood, donors must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, be in generally good health, and not have donated blood for at least 56 days.

SHS Band Boosters Postpone Meeting

The meeting of the Southern Garrett Band Boosters, normally held on the first Monday of each month, will not be held Monday, April 1, since there is no school that day. President Richard Hill announced this week that the meeting will instead be held Monday, April 8, at 7 p.m. in the band room. Parents of all band members are urged by Hill to be present.

Meeting Set To Discuss Safe Haven For Pets

Heather Hanline, director of the Dove Center, will be the guest speaker at the April 3 meeting of Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety (PAWS). PAWS and the Dove Center are exploring the need for a Safe Haven Program in Garrett County to shelter the animal victims of family violence. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in Room 308 of the Continuing Education building at Garrett Community College.

Because animal abuse and family violence are so strongly linked, interviews and forms completed by the county's victims of domestic violence and their case workers have, in the past year, begun to include questions about abuse to pets within the household.

Data collected by the Dove Center indicates that some women do report that their assailants are also abusive to the family pets. Cases do exist where women are afraid to leave an abusive situation to seek shelter for fear of what their abusers will do to the family pet, according to a PAWS spokesperson.

A Safe Haven Program would provide temporary shelter for the pets of families who are themselves seeking shelter as a result of a violent crisis. The program might, in the future, include a kennel facility at the Dove Center, so that families can stay close to their pets. But currently the Safe Haven Program will rely on volunteers willing to open their homes to these animals until the crisis is resolved.

Persons interested in this program are encouraged to attend this meeting. A brief order of business will precede the program. All PAWS programs are free and open to the public.

GOP Committee Slates Annual Lincoln Dinner

ROSCOE BARTLETT

The Garrett County Republican Central Committee will hold its annual Lincoln Day Dinner on Friday, April 26, in the McHenry House at Wisp Mountain Resort beginning at 6 p.m.

Sixth District Congressman Roscoe Bartlett will be the speaker. Bartlett was first elected to represent the district in 1992. He serves on the Armed Service Committee and is chairman of its Panel on Morale, Welfare, and Recreation. He is also chairman of the Energy Subcommittee of the Science Committee and is vice chairman of the Small Business Committee.

Dinner tickets are being sold by members of the Republican Central Committee, the elected officials, the Northern and Southern Republican Women's clubs, and Friends of the Republican Party. Tickets are $25 per person. For more information, one may call Brenda Butscher, chairperson, at 301-334-5151 or 301-334-4500.

Off-Duty Officer Aids GCSO With Arrest Monday

An off-duty Oakland City police officer observed a subject trying to gain access to several vehicles in the Browning's Foodland parking lot around 10:30 a.m. on Monday.

The officer contacted the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Robert Lynn Pyles, 37, Oakland, was placed under arrest by the deputy and was charged with tampering with a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

Pyles is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail on $500 bond.

In other police news, an accident involving two vehicles sent both drivers to the hospital early Monday morning.

The collision occurred at approximately 6:45 a.m., and according to police, the operators were unable to summon help because there was no traffic along the road at that time.

Russell Paul McMannis, 25, Keyser, W.Va., operating a 1988 Ford truck, was traveling north along Savage River Road. McMannis was following a left curve in the road and went into the south lane, police said.

Nicholas Jay Hardy, 23, LaVale, operating a 1991 Chevrolet truck, was traveling southbound when he collided head on with the McMannis vehicle.

According to deputies, visibility of both operators was obstructed by a steep hillside along the roadway.

McMannis was found at fault and was charged with failure to drive right of center.

Both operators were transported by Tri-Towns Rescue to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where they were treated for injuries.

Bloomington and Barton fire departments also responded to the scene.

GCC Job Fair Is Cancelled

The Garrett County Job Fair, slated for April 6 at Garrett Community College, has been cancelled, according to a release received this morning from the GCC Career Services office. The fair was cancelled because so few local employers registered to participate.

"Although unemployment rates are high for the nation, unemployment rates for Garrett County are currently relatively low," the release said. However, businesses and prospective employees desiring information from the Career Services office are invited to contact the office at 301-387-3132 to arrange for an individual appointment.

Driver Injured In Accident Caused By Icy Roadway

Diana Lee Grubb, 45, Oakland, received injuries from a single-vehicle accident Friday afternoon along Gorman Road near Chisolm Road, north of Gorman, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

According to the report, she lost control of the vehicle due to the icy roadway, struck an embankment, and overturned.

Grubb was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for her injuries.

Gorman Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the 3:02 p.m. incident.

Later that same day, another accident sent one driver to GCMH for treatment.

Rebecca Jean Clary, 27, Baltimore, attempted to turn onto Sand Flat Road from Route 135 when she struck a vehicle which was stopped at the intersection.

Henry A. Baker, 50, Keyser, W.Va., was the operator of the 1988 Ford truck that was hit.

Clary was charged by deputies in the 5:28 p.m. incident.

Responding to the scene were Southern Rescue Squad and Deer Park Community Fire Department.

SGHS ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HOSTING SPEAKER — Bobby Petrocelli, a motivational speaker, is scheduled to come to Southern High School on April 18. His presentation is being sponsored in part by the Southern Garrett High School Alumni Association. Petrocelli uses his personal story to inspire and motivate audiences, and to stress the importance of decision-making, according to a spokesperson. The photo above was taken when the SGHS Alumni Association presented a check for $1,000 to the SHS Peer Helpers to help pay for the presentation. Pictured from left are Michele Pavelko, student advisor; Kathy Greaser, alumni association member; students Christy Sherwood and Shayla Collins; Rob Sharps, president of the association; and student Andrea Beachy.

SHS Alumni Association Striving To Connect With Today's Students

The Southern Garrett High School Alumni Association, formed about five years ago, is gaining momentum, both in membership and in accomplishments. The fairly new organization is operated through the efforts of an 11-member board, under the leadership of president Robert Sharps, a 1967 graduate of SHS. Sharps said the response to a preliminary mailing last fall has been favorable.

"We've had well over 100 responses so far, which is very promising," Sharps said. "And with the celebration of the 50th graduating class this spring, it's a great time to get the word out about the association." He said he hopes to succeed in enlisting into the association 5% of the school's entire alumni in this first year, followed by another 5% next year, and finally achieving at least 15%.

The first mailing attempt by the association was completed in November of last year, and letters were not sent to the entire alumni of the school. More mailings will follow, with information about the association, an outline of its goals, and an invitation to join the group.

Sharps said one of the top priorities of the association members is to make connections with the current student population. The aim is to sponsor programs and activities for Southern students that will motivate high achievement. Recently the association donated funds to the school to host motivational speaker Bobby Petrocelli, who will speak to the students on April 18.

"Without giving too much away about Mr. Petrocelli, he will address the students on the issue of decision-making and of how important that is at this time in their lives," Sharps said.

In addition to sponsored events such as Mr. Petrocelli's talk, the organization hopes to support career-oriented programs that involve Southern alumni.

"It's important for current students to learn that many alumni have very successful and distinguished careers, and that part of that success can be attributed to the education they received at Southern," Sharps said.

Other goals include the following: to provide academic scholarships, to recognize and honor successful alumni for achievements, and to reunite graduates with each other and to introduce them to current students. The last goal is being accelerated via the use of the Internet, on which a web site for the association has been established. The address is www.ga.k12.md.us/schools/-SH. A newsletter is also in the works, Sharps said.

The database being built at the web site will be a help to all alumni planning class reunions, Sharps noted. When members of a class are in need of addresses, the association's collection will be there for their use.

"We definitely feel that it is the board of education's responsibility to provide the essentials for our students," Sharps said, "but there are many enriching opportunities we can pursue to support the current students." With the help of designated donations, association members hope to offer support in areas that are important to the total education needs of Southern students, such as the arts, athletics, and other curricular or extra-curricular activities. Sharps said the organization hopes to eventually host an annual alumni association meeting.

The SGHS Alumni Association is currently planning to host a 50th anniversary all-class reunion for Southern graduates on Sunday of the Autumn Glory Festival in October. Sharps said there will be a classroom designated for each graduating class so that alumni may visit their own classmates as well as those graduating a few years ahead or behind them.

The members of the association board in addition to Sharps are as follows: alumni members Martha DeBerry (1959), William Grant (1971), Kathy Greaser (1972), James Murray (1971), Traci Royce (1987), Beverly Sincell (1973), and Lisa Thayer Welch (1978); Christopher Csonka and David Mayfield, both SHS teachers; and Tom Woods, SHS principal.

For more information about the SGHS Alumni Association, persons may visit the web site as noted above, or call 301-334-9447.

HOLY WEEK OBSERVED — Palm Sunday observances were held in Kitzmiller just as they were throughout the world this week. It's the holiest of weeks for the Christian religion, and Father Donald Paraon of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, is shown above conducting the ceremonies outside. Father Paraon held similar ceremonies in Oakland and McHenry. Thuraday and Friday also mark the celebration this year of Passover, the deliverance of the Jewish people from Egypt.

Woman Flown To Hospital In Wake Of Friday Crash

A Grantsville woman was helicoptered to Cumberland Memorial Hospital after her car struck a tree along Bittinger Road late Friday afternoon. Her three passengers escaped injury, according to the Maryland State Police, and she has since been released from the hospital.

At approximately 4:30 p.m. Katherine Miller, 67, lost control of her 1995 Hyundai Sonata on the snow-covered roadway south of Dung Hill Road. Her car struck a tree, and she was subsequently trapped in the vehicle for a short time until emergency services personnel freed her. MSP helicopter Trooper 5 transported Miller to Cumberland, where she was hospitalized over the weekend before being released.

Assisting at the accident scene were the Bittinger and Grantsville volunteer fire departments, and the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. No charges were filed by state police.

Man Faces Many Charges After Vehicle Accident

Steven Clark Rader, 41, Oakland, was arrested and charged with many offenses just after midnight on Monday concerning an accident that occurred around 2 a.m. on Sunday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Investigation revealed that Rader's vehicle, which was headed west on Hutton Road, failed to make a turn at the bottom of the hill, missed a telephone pole, crossed over Dilley Road, and struck a parked vehicle at a residence belonging to Ann Dalton.

The following day Rader was arrested and charged with driving while under the influence (DUI), leaving the scene of an accident, reckless driving, negligent driving, failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision, failure to drive right of center, and driving an uninsured vehicle.

He was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting $2,500 bond.

In another incident, deputies responded to a residence along Maryland Highway around 11 p.m. on Sunday and arrested Frederick William Holtschneider.

Holtschneider was charged with two counts of second degree assault and two counts of child abuse. He was released from the jail after posting a $5,000 unsecured bond, police said.

Searching vs. Living...

Every year as Holy Week and the Jewish Passover approach, television and periodicals are usually loaded with programs and articles having to do with the "historical scarch for Jesus" or "what really happened" when Moses was working to free his people from Egyptian rule. While these searches are interesting and often fascinating, they really aren't very important, or shouldn't be so important, to people of faith.

Human beings seem to have an absolute need to know all of the answers, to have an explanation for everything that happens. And we want evidence; we want proof. This is not always a bad thing, for it is this desire which drives the scientist, for example, to continue his quest to discover cures for illnesses. In matters of faith, however, such a need can become a hindrance.

Faith, of course, is believing without the proof, and this is extremely difficult at times. Those who believe in God want him to always answer their prayers by providing what is requested, and not necessarily with what God may decide is best. They want him to "fix" things when they are not going the way they believe they should be. And when God does not respond in the desired manner, one's faith tends to be shaken.

Far too much energy is expended by human beings on the search for proof and self-gratification, and not nearly enough on simply trying to live a good and decent life. Whether or not one believes that Jesus Christ is the Messiah, the son of God, there can be little dispute even by atheists that his way of life, that of total service to others, treating others as one desires to be treated, is the key to peace and contentment. Fortunately, the majority of world religions are based upon a similar prescription. Unfortunately, there are a relatively tiny number of fanatics who use their warped religious beliefs not to serve, but to destroy others. Heaven knows we have seen horrendous examples of this in recent months and days.

Too many Christians think that all that is required of them is that they simply believe in Christ, and how they live their lives is relatively unimportant. Really believing, though, truly being a follower of Christ, includes working hard each and every day to try to live as he lived. So we should just try to forget about finding conclusive evidence to justify our faith, not only because it probably does not exist, but also because it draws our attention away from living our faith.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

On Saturday, March 23, 255 people came out to Par-Matt Lanes to Bowl for Kids' Sake in support of Big Brothers Big Sisters in Garrett County. In addition, many businesses and individuals from across the county and West Virginia gave their financial support as well as donating many wonderful door prizes and goody bag items.

Because of this generosity, more than $20,000 was raised! This will enable us to continue our community based mentoring program and school-based mentoring program (Lunch Buddies) throughout Garrett County by making a positive difference in the lives of children and youth through professionally supported one-to-one relationships with caring adults.

Children encounter a maze of changes and challenges during childhood and adolescence and research has shown that having a Big Brother or Big Sister or Big Couple or Lunch Buddy is enormously effective in preventing risky behavior among youth.

So, on behalf of Rae Ellen Finn, Community Case Manager, Betsy Herbel, Lunch Buddy Case Manager, all the Big volunteers, and all the Littles whose lives have been enriched through Big Brothers Big Sisters mentoring, a very warm and sincere THANK YOU for your support of Bowl for Kids' Sake.

Sincerely,
Joan L. Johnson
County Coordinator

P.S. Anyone interested in finding out more about Big Brothers Big Sisters should call the Garrett County Office at 301-334-3591 or 800-400-0735.

To the Editor:

Social workers promote community health — both physical and mental health. Social workers know that mental health is fundamental to physical health, just as physical health affects mental health. Social workers advocate for quality healthcare and mental health parity for everyone.

Social workers are the nation's leading providers of mental health and therapy services. They also provide direct services in healthcare settings to patients and their families. They are a key part of an interdisciplinary healthcare team providing for follow-up services, such as discharge planning and evaluation, as well as administration and research.

In the unprecedented report on mental health, Dr. David Satcher, surgeon general of the United States, says that nearly one in five Americans are affected by mental illness in any given year. Social workers are among the many who support these individuals both by providing direct service and by advocating for parity with insurance companies.

In Garrett County, social workers are vital to the comprehensive type services we provide. Our local social workers are all master-level clinicians who work diligently to provide many types of individualized services to residents of Garrett County. Social workers provide services in the center location, at families' homes, in the schools, and a variety of other places based upon the needs of those they serve.

Our community is stronger and more vibrant due to the contributions of local social workers.

Respectfully,
T. Brooke Schneider
Director of Mental Health
Garrett County Health Department

To the Editor:

I really don't know where to begin and I suspect that this will end up as a rambling letter, but believe me, all of this is related.

First, the economic development plan meeting on Thursday, March 21. Many people showed up and contributed dozens of good ideas, but the one that sums it all up is: "Free market dictates economic development." Simply stated, I believe the contributor means that taxpayers are tired of business owners feeding at the public trough, i.e., a cessation of well-fare for "The Club" is a prerequisite for true economic growth. Furthermore, if a bank won't fund it without guarantees from the taxpayers, the project probably shouldn't be done. A classic example was mentioned several times, a boondoggle if ever there was one, the Adventure Sports Center. I challenge the commissioners, Jim Hincbaugh, and any experts that they want to include to a public debate on this, any place, any time.

Second, the claim that there isn't any money available for basic services like water for Deer Park and a decent library system for the people. Commissioners and company didn't seem to have a problem arranging for that big water tank at the top of Marsh Mountain, and I believe there just might be reasons other than aesthetic that it was buried. What's that phrase? Oh yes, "out of sight, out of mind." As for the library system and available money, at a recent public hearing, Duane Yoder said, "The governor has money that he has to get out the door." I, as the only member of the public in attendance, had the commissioners cancel the hearing because it was conducted incorrectly. The hearing is rescheduled for Tuesday, April 9, at 10 a.m. There will be two public notices buried in the back of the newspaper on 3/28/02 and 4/4/02, but it is highly unlikely that you will see anything else. There is about $100,000 of your money available. Post this letter on your refrigerator as a reminder, then show up at the hearing and demand that your money be used for pressing needs. Who knows, it is an election year; they just might throw you a bone.

Third, the flow of your tax dollars. The main ingredients in that economic pie are local, state, and federal tax dollars i.e., your money. Briefly (very briefly), here's how it works. After the bean counters get through, some of the total receipts end up in the G.C. Economic Dvelopment Dept. and then, please pay attention — it is shifted to the Economic Development Corp. or Community Action or some other quasi-public agency (with acronyms ending in edco) where there is usually no public oversight. Revolving funds are then used to bankroll, or prop up, certain business entities. Here's the kicker — your public officials sit on the boards of these organizations or they appoint others to join The Club and sit on their behalf. This is sure to surprise you (joke); very often you will find the same people sitting on more than a few boards!

Fourth, the average working stiff, or unemployed person, is rarely, if ever, found sitting on any of these boards. The youth in the county aren't even considered; another broken campaign promise. Hurry up, guys, appoint a young person to something for God's sake; this is an election year! And a photo please!

Finally, the size of government in this county. We have all heard the rhetoric that goes back and forth between Democrats and Republicans regarding big government, etc. With just 30,000 people (not even the pop. of an average size city), this county is in a class by itself. We have enough government people to run a third world country — do they think that's what this is?

I can't help it! I just keep thinking about George Orwell's The Animal Farm and how the pigs end up with everything while those who produced it end up with nothing but backbreaking work.

Voice Concerns

9-1-1 that their roads need cleared. "Our people have always been cooperative," added Commissioner Wendell Beitzel, about road crews plowing during emergency situations.

Three of the six full-time residents who live along Fox Den Road also spoke out against its closure. Twenty-five-year resident Bill Deckman was concerned about his road not being plowed in the winter time. "It only takes five minutes to plow," he said. He added that even if his road were plowed only once a day, travel would still be possible. "But if they don't plow it at all," he said, "we'll be stranded."

Larry Lewis, general roads foreman of the Accident Garage, said that the safety of road crews was the main reason for Fox Den being considered for closure. He acknowledged that the road did not take long to plow, but it was hazardous to do so. The foreman explained that in order to plow it, the truck has to enter the roadway at Bill's Marine Service, off U.S. Route 219. After plowing, the truck then has to back up and exit the roadway onto busy 219, since there is nowhere to turn around on Fox Den Road. Lewis said an extra crew person is needed to stop traffic and direct the plow driver safely back onto the dangerous highway.

"To do this [close the road] is ridiculous," said part-time resident Harry Brown. "It's a county road; it needs to be maintained by the county." He was concerned about his neighbors being left without alternative ways to maintain the road, especially during the winter.

Some residents at the hearing were concerned about how the closures would affect their property lines. Beitzel explained that if the county dropped the roads, it would have no further claim on the properties and ownership would revert back to those who granted easements.

Gregg said that the commissioners and Roads Department personnel would discuss the road closures, before making a final decision on the matter on Tuesday, April 2.

Other roads that may also be dropped from the county's properties list include all or portions of the following: CCC Camp, Vindex, Tenth Street (Mtn. Lake Park), Dennett, Deer Park Avenue, Haines, Boiling Springs, Edgewood Drive, Bert Reams, and McHenry.

The residents were notified by mail of the potential closures prior to the public hearing. A list of the roads and the date and time of the hearing was also published in the Republican for two weeks.

Man Arrested

Kelly Ann Myers, 21, Aurora, W.Va., was arrested and charged with driving under the influence (DUI) and failure to drive right of center after she was stopped along Garrett Highway near Chloma Lane, south of Oakland.

She was released that night on her own recognizance, police said.

Another stop was made along Vista Square in Oakland early Saturday morning. Jason Richard Reckart, 21, Oakland, was arrested and charged with DUI, speeding, reckless driving, and negligent driving.

He was released on his own recognizance.

In another incident, Sandra Lee Romesburg, 37, Oakland, was also charged with DUI after she was stopped along Underwood Road just after midnight on Sunday.

She was also released on her own recognizance.

Two hours later another traffic stop along Route 135 near B Street led to the arrest of an Albright, W.Va., man.

James Roger Kelly, 39, was arrested and charged with DUI and consuming alcohol while driving. He was released on his own recognizance that same night.

MAUNDY THURSDAY

Two years ago my son Nick and I visited Israel together. Holy Week will never be the same again for me because of that visit. We stood upon the Mount of Olives, looking across the Cedron Valley toward the city of Jerusalem proper. We walked the road of sorrows where Jesus was led from place to place until finally he was crucified on Golgotha, the place of the skull.

We visited the medieval building, constructed by the crusaders, on what is thought to be the site of the Upper Room. We also toured the church built upon the ruins of Caiaphas' house and more importantly, the underground cellars of that house which date from Jesus' day. The house sits on a steep hillside overlooking the Cedron Valley opposite the Mount of Olives.

A small, poor village stands below the house. While standing on the portico at the bottom of the house and surveying that landscape which has changed so little in 2000 years, I heard a rooster crow.

Facing certain and excruciating death, Jesus said to his disciples, "A new commandment I give you, that you love one another as I have loved you" (St. John 13:34). He loved us to the point of dying for us, and commands us to love one another to the point of dying for one another. The Latin word for "commandment" is "mandatum," from which the word "maundy" comes. This is the Thursday of the new commandment.

Not only has Holy Week taken on a greater historical reality for me, so has the news. Hearing about the conflicts among Jews, Moslems, and Christians in the Middle East, I remember what we saw. There was the bedouin in full robe and head-dress leading his sheep and goats through Jerusalem.

There were the rocks everywhere. When I hear that Palestinians have stoned a bus — let alone when I read about the stonings of St. Stephen and St. Paul — I know that people could close their eyes, reach down at their feet, and pick up stones — eyes closed because the stones are so bountiful.

When Jesus said that "the stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner" (St. Matthew 21:42), illustrations abounded, both destructive and constructive. When Jesus told St. Peter, "You are Rock" (St. Matthew 16:18), everyone could see whereof he spoke.

On the night which western Christians commemorate this evening, Jesus said something new. Most of his teaching, he claimed, was not new, rather a clearer understanding of the old. As far as I can remember this is the only time that Jesus actually told his disciples to do something new.

The old law taught that a person should love God and his neighbor as himself. Jesus gave a radically new commandment. In this instance he steps forward from the tradition of Moses to speak with the authority of God, for who can give a new commandment save God? "Love one another as I have loved you."

Suicide bombings continue in Jerusalem — the city of peace. Though there is active warfare in over 100 countries on this globe, there is no piece of real estate more fought over for a longer period of time than Jerusalem. It is the holy city, and yet no one can possess holiness by killing for it.

How can we expect there to be peace in the rest of the world when there is war in Jerusalem? That is what leaders of Arab countries have been asking our president and vice president. Though we differ about what that peace should look like, we agree that the peace of Jerusalem is an essential for the peace of the world. Jew, Christian, and Moslem alike can and should take to heart the admonition of the Psalmist (122:6), "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem."

Numerous times Nick and I have discussed that we would not feel safe making our pilgrimage to Jerusalem today. I remember in the months prior to our going there was violence in Jerusalem that worried his mother. Even then she came close to calling off the trip. There was a sufficient pause in the violence that she felt comfortable about letting him go. A few weeks later Pope John Paul II made much the same pilgrimage.

Then violence closed the door on pilgrims. There have now been bombings in places where we were. We can imagine dying in Jerusalem.

Jesus did die there, victim of the world's sin, victim of the violence that is now thousands of years old. Facing that death he commanded something new, "Love one another as I have loved you."

House Budget Bill Maintains Final Two Percent Of Tax Cut

by Kathleen Johnston Jarboe
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland House of Delegates passed its version of the $21.6 billion state budget Tuesday, diverging little from the Senate's document. The measure passed, 105-34.

Like the Senate version, the House kept the final 2 percent of an overall 10 percent tax reduction begun in 1997, which Gov. Parris N. Glendening had proposed to eliminate.

The House version also leaves a $764 million projected deficit for fiscal year 2004, shaving just $3 million from the Senate's estimated shortfall. The House achieved the difference through making deeper cuts to various programs, such as a program to limit revenue disparity between poor and rich jurisdictions, and by estimating larger savings from state hiring freezes.

With its savings, the House injected more funding into some of Glendening's priority programs. Higher education received a 1.4 percent increase. Higher education spending was flat in the Senate plan.

The House document also preserved about $4.4 million more Smart Growth and Land Preservation money than the Senate. And it saved about $42 million worth of higher education capital projects from the chopping block.

The budget is "fiscally prudent" and "socially responsible," said Delegate Howard Rawlings, D-Baltimore, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

But Republicans criticized the plan.

The budget doesn't solve the deficit problem, said Delegate Robert Flanagan, R-Howard. "[The House will] be in the same place next year — only tax increases will be on the table," he said.

The Glendening-Kathleen Kennedy Townsend administration has been more interested in stoking their pet projects and national reputation than in funding core needs, said Minority Leader Alfred Redmer Jr., R-Baltimore County. He cited Smart Growth spending, staff increases at the lieutenant governor's office, and mental health funding shortfalls as examples.

Rawlings called Redmer's criticisms a campaign effort for the newly announced Republican candidate for governor, U.S. Rep. Robert Ehrlich Jr. of Timonium.

"Don't campaign for the next governor with your vote; campaign for yourself," Rawlings said.

During the session, delegates thwarted several budget amendments. One called for canceling a $4.2 million magnetic levitation train study. The sponsor called the project a "boondoggle."

The technology has been around for 40 years, said Delegate James Rzepkowski, R-Anne Arundel. The reason it hasn't been built anywhere in the world is that it isn't commercially viable, he said.

A round-trip ticket from Camden Yards in Baltimore to Union Station in Washington, D.C., on the 250 mph train is projected to cost $52. The $500 million in state spending for the $4 billion project would do little to get commuters off the road, Rzepkowski said.

Defenders of the project said it was key to a larger vision of connecting the train to Boston and securing Olympic attention.

The move was defeated, 44 to 86.

Other amendments called for postponing the tax cut and tying excess lottery revenue to school funding. Both moves were defeated. Only 23 delegates voted to delay the tax cut.

The budget now advances to a conference committee, which will work out differences between the Senate and House versions. Once the work is completed, the budget must be approved once more by the General Assembly.

Although the governor cannot veto the final budget, he can veto the bill that transfers the necessary reserve funds to balance the budget. Such a move would require lawmakers to revisit budget decisions because of balanced budget laws.

State Legislators Seeking Stiffer Penalties For Dangerous Truckers

by Tim Keefe
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — State transportation officials Tuesday urged harsher penalties for trucking companies and their drivers who cause serious or fatal accidents by knowingly operating unsafe vehicles.

The bill, which passed the House 88-39 March 8, received a hostile reception from Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee members, who said such a law could put drivers' jobs at risk and unfairly punish them when they may not know their vehicles are unsafe.

Penalties for such offenses are usually insignificant fines cheaper than the cost of repairs, said Maryland Transportation Secretary John D. Porcari.

Such lenient penalties can be an incentive for trucking companies to make a "business decision" to keep unsafe vehicles on the road and risk only minimal fines rather than invest in costly repairs, thereby endangering lives, Porcari said.

"The intent here is to tip the balance to where it's easier [for commercial vehicle companies] to fix the truck rather than getting caught and having to pay the fine," he said.

Under the bill, trucking companies and drivers could be fined up to $10,000 for causing an accident resulting in life-threatening injuries, while the penalty for causing a death could reach $25,000. Existing penalties range from $500 for first-time offenders to up to $3,000 for repeat offenders.

But opponents argued the bill, which makes the offense criminal, places severe burdens on drivers without affording them job protection. Drivers could lose their jobs by refusing to operate dangerous vehicles if their employers order them to do so. Such a scenario saddles a driver with too much accountability and with little authority to act responsibly, said Sen. Timothy R. Ferguson, R-Carroll.

"You want [a trucker] to save lives — save his job," Ferguson told officials. Drivers with families to feed may have a particularly difficult time risking their jobs, he said. "It's a two-way street."

In addition, drivers may be unaware their trucks are not safe to operate, yet would still be accountable under the bill.

"You're mixing apples and oranges," said Sen. Leo H. Green, D-Prince George's, committee vice chairman. "[Truckers] are not mechanics."

Commercial vehicle companies have gotten away with paying as little as $500 for fatal accidents, Porcari said.

But Ferguson called the bill "dead," and others said they would not support it unless amendments were adopted to absolve drivers of such strict accountability.

The committee did vote to approve higher-profile House bills that would make it a felony for drivers to flee the scene of a serious or fatal accident, and prohibit open containers of alcohol in passenger areas of vehicles, punishable by a $25 fine.

This was the committee's second approval of such legislation, and both bills were expected to pass the Senate later this week.

Waiting Period Bill "Smokescreen" For Pro-Life Agenda, Critics Charge

by Diana Mota Morgan
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Proponents of a Maryland House bill requiring an 18-hour waiting period for women seeking an abortion say it is not a pro-life bill, but opponents call it a "flimsy smokescreen" to take away a woman's right to choose.

"It doesn't bar abortions," said Delegate Diane DeCarlo, D-Baltimore, who is pro-life, as are most of her 17 co-sponsors. "It's about making an informed decision," she said.

The Women's Health Protection Act would require a woman to wait 18 hours before an abortion after receiving materials that describe the "unborn child," list agencies offering alternatives to abortion, and note available medical assistance for prenatal care, childbirth, and neonatal care. The materials also would inform the woman the father is responsible for child support.

"Eighteen hours doesn't seem like a short time or a long time for a woman to wait [to decide]," DeCarlo said, considering abortion counselors told lawmakers they only spend 20 minutes with a woman prior to the abortion.

"Twenty minutes isn't enough time, especially if it's her first [abortion]," she said.

Opponents, she said, are making this an abortion bill and, "it's not." But, "intuition" tells her the bill will die, DeCarlo said.

"My feeling is it's not going to even make it out of the drawer" of the Environmental Matters Committee, which is what happened to a similar bill last year.

Both sides of the debate at the hearing questioned the other's motives.

"Planned Parenthood opposes it [the bill], because they're pro-abortion, because they profit from it," said Nancy E. Fortier, associate director of Justice, Pro-life and Human Rights of the Maryland Catholic Conference.

Planned Parenthood does oppose the bill, because it's "bias counseling," not medically necessary information, said Medical Director Carole Meyers of Planned Parenthood of Maryland Inc.

Other opponents said the bill clearly singles out abortions from other comprehensive reproductive health services and procedures, and that makes them suspect of the bill's intent.

"Maryland law already requires informed consent for abortions and other medical procedures," according to written testimony from the Governor's Office for Children, Youth and Families.

Opponents are also concerned about the risk of delay to a woman, because many clinics perform abortions only two or three days a week and have waiting lists. A delay could compel a woman to undergo a later abortion, increasing risks to her health, according to written testimony from the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland.

The bill, the diocesan testimony said, "might better be named the Women's Health Endangerment Act."

It also insults women by suggesting women "make the decision lightly," said Ann Ciekot, lobbyist for the Maryland National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League.

"It's not an insult," said David Lam of Maryland Right to Life, "but an affirmation by giving information to women to make an informed decision."

"[The bill] provides a little breathing space and good information to think the process through before making it irrevocable," said the Rev. Blair Paul Raum of Project Rachel, an organization that counsels men and women who regret their abortion decision.

Of the 18 sponsors, only one — Delegate Nancy Hubers, D-Baltimore — said she is pro-choice. Women need to have the information before making a decision, she said.

Several sponsors said they wouldn't support abortion under any circumstances, but most said it would be acceptable for rape, incest, and to save the mother.

Delegate Kevin Kelly, D-Allegany, withdrew his name as a co-sponsor when he understood what the bill does, he said, because "I'm pro-choice."

In Loving Memory Of Butch Wilt

3/27/1954 – 3/29/2000

"Loving Memories"

Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall.
you had a kindly word for each and died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
that loved us well and true.
ah, bitter was the trial to part from one so good as you.
You are not forgotten loved one nor will you ever be.
as long as life and memory last.
we will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore
As time goes by we miss you more
Your loving smile, your gentle face
No one can fill your vacant place

"JESUS and MAMA always loved you"
Sadly missed Dad, Mom, Brothers, and Sissy

Those we love never leave us. I feel your presence in everything I do. There's your special song being played. There are those special memories that time cannot erase, only make them more precious day by day.

Then there's that special love we had for each other that will never change. So, until we meet again, my heart is breaking and the tears are flowing for you. I will always hold those memories of you close to my heart forever. I will always love you.

SHOWTIME

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:35 - Released 3/15/02

The problem with Showtime, written by Keith Sharon, Alfred Gough, and Miles Millar (based on a story by Jorge Saralegui), and directed by Tom Dey (his second film, after Shanghai Noon), is that in trying to make fun of showbiz and so-called reality" TV shows, it is guilty of just the kind of dumbed-down Hollywood overindulgence it is supposed to be lampooning. Rather than creating a stark contrast between real life and movieland cliché, which would have better served the film's satirical goals, Dey dishes up the same ridiculous high-octane foolishness we have grown to loathe from big-budget action films. Pairing no-nonsense actor Robert De Niro and comedy king Eddie Murphy may have been a clever idea rife with possibilities, but they are working for a creative team that ultimately misses its own point.

De Niro is Mitch Preston, a veteran L.A. investigator who takes his job seriously. "I've never had to choose between the blue wire and the red wire," he states in an opening monologue. "I've never jumped from the roof of one building to another, and I've never seen a car flip over and burst into flames." Real life, he claims, is very different from what is seen in the movies; in fact he holds all media in low regard. Trey Sellars, on the other hand (played by Murphy), is a simple beat cop who wants to be an actor. He's never participated in a "real" investigation, as his job primarily consists of putting up the yellow caution tape at the crime scene, but he desperately wants to think of himself as an action hero, even saying to himself, "It's Showtime!" before he approaches a possible criminal situation. These two cops could not be more different, and the one who decides to bring them together is Chase Renzi (Rene Russo), a TV producer hoping to save her floundering network, Maxis, by creating a reality program starring two real-life LAPD partners. At first Mitch refuses, of course, but he's pressured into the project by his superior, who wants to avoid litigation after Mitch shot a hole in a Maxis videographer's camera.

The unhappy partnership is formed, with Trey offering Mitch acting suggestions and Mitch returning the favor with "Stay out of my way and I won't shoot you." Thrilled with Trey's love of the camera and Mitch's crusty "real" quality, Chase dubs the show Showtime and launches a massive advertising campaign. Ignoring the series director's (Willam Shatner) pleas to exhibit more action-hero behavior (Shatner's old TV character, T.J. Hooker, is even mentioned), Mitch tries to investigate the dealings of a sinister arms smuggler (Pedro Damián), but his work is hindered when the show becomes a huge hit and he and Trey turn into national celebrities.

This is an example of a clever idea squandered by the short-sightedness of Hollywood producers. Even after Mitch's opening monologue about the movie industry's misrepresentation of the life of a cop, he is then forced through the same hoops to capture the moviegoer's dollar. High-speed car chases careen through the narrow back alleys of L.A. Cars and other objects regularly burst into flames upon impact, just like on The Simpsons. Cops and criminals alike shoot indiscriminately in crowds. And the final action set piece is so far-fetched it defies the imagination. Murphy and De Niro are both talented and they handle the material with ease, but they're being criminally misdirected. If Dey wanted this movie to be a straight action film, he should have dispensed with any attempt at comedy. And if he wanted it to be a biting satire about Hollywood's tendency to overindulge, then he should learn to practice what he's preaching. ★★★

BLADE II

Rated R - Running Time: 1:54 - Released 3/22/02

From Mexican director Guillermo del Toro comes Blade II, the marginally bearable sequel to Stephen Norrington's marginally bearable 1998 film Blade. It again stars Wesley Snipes as the titular vampire half-breed superhero who has sworn himself to ridding the world of bloodthirsty modern-day Count Dracula wannabes, even though he is almost one himself. He's a cool, black-leather-wearing, silver-bullet-shooting baaaaad dude (kinda like Shaft, but with pointed teeth) who has lots of nifty equipment to fight those ever-persistent bloodsuckers, and who must inject a special serum every day to keep his own bloodlust down. In this story, however, written by David S. Goyer (based on the comic book character created by Marv Wolfman and Gene Colan), Blade must join forces with his vampire enemies against a common foe: the reapers. Reapers are the next step up on the proud ladder of vampirehood; they are white-skinned, waxy-looking supervamps with piercing eyes, horizontally hinging mandibles, and multi-forked tongues, who feed voraciously on regular vampires, thus turning them into reapers, too.

At the beginning of the film, these nasties-of-all-nasties have been so merciless in their attacks, they've forced the officials from the Vampire Nation, which is apparently some sort of governing body run by overlord Damaskinos (Thomas Kretschmann), to ask Blade for help. Two members of the Nation, Asad (Danny John-Jules) and sexy vamp Nyssa (Leonor Varela), who belong to the elite reaper-fighting team known as the "Blood Pack," arrive and explain the situation. It seems the reapers are led by Nomak (Luke Goss), a relentlessly violent type who plans to populate the entire planet with his kind, thus eventually gaining complete world dominance in the highly lucrative sucking industry. Blade's got other problems, though. His inventor pal Whistler (Kris Kristofferson) has been bitten and is now a blood addict himself, which puts his loyalty in question, and he and his replacement, "Scud" (Norman Reedus), share a mutual animosity that threatens to upset our hero's whole operation. Despite these personnel management issues, Blade agrees to an uneasy partnership with the Blood Pack (mainly because he would like to share some neck-biting time with Nyssa), so while Whistler and Scud bicker over things like what wattage U.V. lamp to use in the super-powered vampire-killing silver-stake-shooting high-powered rifles, Blade and the others go to infiltrate the reapers' hideout and take their leader down.

This is one of those movies whose overly complex plot hinders its ability to come off as even remotely credible. The idea of the superhero joining forces with his sworn enemies is all right as a premise (it's been done a million times), but Goyer's story includes so many double- and triple-crossings its hard to remember who's with whom. But director del Toro's style is visually distinctive, and Snipes's performance is, as before, intentionally melodramatic, stoic and monosyllabic almost to the point of unintentional humor. Indeed the film works much better as a tongue-in-cheek comedy than a thriller, but I doubt del Toro intended that. It's got some cool effects, of course, which help blind the viewer to the story's high level of logical discrepancies.

If nothing else, Blade II follows its predecessor properly as an antiheroic folk tale and a veritable cornucopia of high-end effects and first-class stupidity. I have little doubt we'll see Snipes again in Blade 3: I just hope I'm napping in my coffin when it comes out. ★★★

RESIDENT EVIL

Rated R - Running Time: 1:40 - Released 3/15/02

Word has it that well-known horror director George Romero, helmsman of numerous slasher films including the 1968 classic Night of the Living Dead, was supposed to direct this film but quit the production due to "creative differences." That's code for "realized the film was crap." Written and directed by Paul Anderson (the perpetrator of such unconscionable dreck as Mortal Kombat and Soldier), Resident Evil is the latest proof that trying to adapt a film from a video game is a bad idea. With ultra-loud metal music and a jump scene every two minutes like clockwork, it provides Ukranian-born model/actress Milla Jovovich (Messenger) with another dubious resumé entry, and me with another massive headache.

The story takes place around the end of the 21st century, when the Umbrella corporation, the largest purely evil conglomerate in the world, takes care of all your medical needs as well as any biological weapons you might require (you know, aspirin, anthrax—whatever you're into). Its headquarters is a huge compound called "the hive," located ½-mile underground and run by a supercomputer called the Red Queen, personified by a hologram of a young British girl who looks like Alice in Wonderland. But something has happened that killed all 500+ employees, and a recovery team has been dispatched to investigate. It consists of above-ground sentries Alice (not in Wonderland) (Jovovich) and her husband Spence (James Purefoy), a girl called Rain (Michelle Rodriguez), and a few other bodies (Eric Mabius, Pasquale Aleardi). Together they investigate the hive and find that a secret weapon called the "T-virus" has been released and all the Umbrella employees (even the dogs they used for testing) have become flesh-eating zombies. Well, it was in their contracts, if they had just read the fine print.

Although Alice and Spence have both had their memories erased by a nerve gas accident, Alice begins putting the pieces together with the help of some dream-like flashback memories. But she'd better think fast, because not only are all her friends getting eaten by rejects from Michael Jackson's Thriller video, but there is some truly weird creature stalking the halls of the hive with sharp claws, a long tongue, and pointy teeth.

It is clear director Anderson is going for a sort of Alien style here, as his film visually resembles Ridley Scott's 1979 classic, but it's more like Alien with the acting of Debbie Does Dallas. It would qualify in the so-bad-it's-good category (some of its shock scenes are quite funny), but it's just too boring. There are only so many times you can endure things popping out of corners, accompanied by a huge jolt of scary music, before you say, "enough already." Jovovich's acting is perfectly in line with the film's video-game heritage; I think she must have studied under Super Mario. The ending leaves the possibility open for a sequel, but if one should come to pass I think I'll take my residency elsewhere. ★½

George Hanst: The Voice Of The Republican For Over 30 Years

by Mary Sincell McEwen

The choice to become a newspaper editor is not one to be made lightly. The responsibility, if taken seriously, is great, and criticism, founded or not, is inevitable. But immense satisfaction can be found in exercising the privilege we have in this country to speak and write freely, to publish information interest to the citizenry, and to bring important issues to the attention of the public. The editor must have qualities of dedication, love for his home, and a keen interest in his community.

George Herbert Hanst, 1904-1991, possessed these qualities. He carried the yoke of editorship at The Republican for over 30 years, seeing the publication through the end of World War II, the birth of the Cold War, the Korean War, the civil unrest of the 1960s, the Vietnam War, and the Nixon years.

George came to the newspaper in the late 1920s following his graduation from West Virginia University, where besides being an honor student in journalism, he played basketball and pole-vaulted for the school. He was the brother of Elsie Hanst Sincell, who was the wife of Donald R. ("Mose") Sincell, son of then-editor B.H. Sincell. George joined the small staff, which was composed of B.H., Mose, and Marie Little, a type assistant. He and Mose served as associate editors.

In a deadline business, there is no time for "easing into" the job. George leaped into the ever-moving current and did not stop until his retirement in the late 1970s.

"It was his life," said Polly Hanst, his wife of 61 years. "If there was a fire, he was there. If there was a meeting, he covered it. He worked late into the evening and went in early in the morning." Although brother-in-law Mose was also an associate editor, he worked chiefly in the printing operations of the shop. This left almost all the writing and reporting to George, especially when B.H.'s health began to fail in the late '30s and early '40s.

In the early days of his career, George wrote a light-hearted missive titled "Scoop's Column by Scoop Himself." It can be found in nearly all the papers of the 1930s, on or around page 4. Its content ranged from sometimes pointed sarcasm to the hilarious. Some choice items, a mere few out of thousands, follow:

(Jan. 16, 1936)

Curious Facts

By diligent research Archihaldson has uncovered a number of curious facts for curious people. Only the curious are expected to read these, and it's your own fault if you're disappointed.

Anyway it's time to quit and the paper is ready for press:

The American Indians did not use bath mats.

Mice are afraid of bass drums, firecrackers, and men with pink beards.

A rowing machine can be made much more comfortable if equipped with an outboard motor.

Fourth of July falls this year on July 4.

There are 32,657 bones in a shad, most of which may be found in the portion served you.

The average electric cigar lighter lasts six months unless you become disgusted sooner.

The cow flicks its tail 675,000 fewer times during the winter than when it is fly time.

Napoleon Barnaparte did not care for fruit gelatin.

The happiest people in the world are members of a tribe in the interior of Africa. They have never heard of contract bridge.

Ninety-seven per cent of all automobile owners never talk about testing the air in the spare tire until they have a blowout nine miles from nowhere.

A straw hat blown off in a wind will roll under a truck in seven out of ten cases.

Watch fobs are gradually disappearing from American life. This is also true of buggy whips.

In January of 1936, a severe winter storm hit Garrett County, making front page news. The temperature was 20 degrees below zero and nearly 20 inches of snow came down. For whatever reason, all through this history of The Republican, snowstorms like this were referred to, and still are sometimes, as "old-fashioned." The winters of the past, at some point, were apparently always more brutal for the citizenry than anything that befalls the present population.

George apparently saw this even in 1936, and wrote about it in his column:

Garrett County weather, taken as a whole, is not so bad. What's fourteen inches of snow? Just so much rain, if you ask me.

A lot of people might be inclined to holler about the weather until they meet an old-timer.

"This ain't nothin' like it used to be," says the old-timer every time.

"Why, way back in '86, the mercury went so low our whiskers would break right off and nobody had to shave. If we'd meet a friend on the street and try to talk, the words would freeze and fall at our feet. We used to have to take a wagon along to gather up the conversation and take it home and thaw it before the fire. That's the way we spent our evenings, listening to unfrozen conversation. And boy, there were some mighty powerful cuss words let fall now and then about the weather.

"Why, I've seen the snow so deep that all animals learned how to walk on their hind legs. One time on a sled-ride to Aurora our horse got his leg caught in a hole in the ground. Upon digging him out we discovered he had fallen in Weber's chimney, at the greenhouse.

"And blow! Why, I've seen it blow so hard on Hoopole Ridge that all one had to do was to hold out his arms and he could fly from here to Paradise church. It used to blow so hard that instead of drifting, snow just couldn't stay in the county.

"One time the mercury went so low that the cold pushed it clear out of the bottom of the thermometer, and hung there like an icicle. These kind of winters are for softies."

Soft or not I expect to continue to wrap up my ears when coming down from Quality Hill on these windy mornings.

The weather talk went on for several weeks, as winter raged on the mountaintop. The groundhog and his celebrated emergence from his den was an annual topic around this time of year. References were made to the animal for weeks, before and after Feb. 2.

Excerpts of Scoop's Column, January 30, 1936:

And speaking of weather, the group in Harned's drug store is planning to sally forth to Sang Run on the night of February 1, no matter what the thermometer says.

They are taking along some cotton and adhesive tape. They are going to take along also one mattock and a shovel, probably a scoop shovel. They are expecting to surprise Herr Groundhog and Mrs. Groundsow in their nice warm bed and prepare the way for the end of winter. They are going to blindfold them both so that no matter if the sun shines the following day or not, there won't be a chance of them seeing their shadows.

Now if that doesn't make for an early spring, then maybe these weather men can do something about it. This snow and sub-zero weather does get monotonous after a couple of months of it.

The Baltimore Sun this week termed Oakland the "ice box of Maryland." Now if we would get this much publicity about the weather in the summer time, we should have quite a list of summer residents.

Scoop's Column disappears after the '30s, as George was most likely far too busy to keep it going. His responsibilities grew enormously when B.H. became ill in the early 1940s. The senior editor died on Jan. 11, 1947, leaving George and Mose in charge. They were soon joined by Mose's son, Robert Sincell, who remains today as the general manager.

With the passing of B.H., George assumed the editorship. He eulogized B.H. in his editorial dated Jan. 16, 1947. Excerpts of that column follow:

"UNCLE BEN"

Few people have labored so long in one community as did Benj. H. Sincell, editor for more than a half century, affectionately known to hundreds of friends as "Uncle Ben," who has now passed on to his reward.

Church worker, booster of the community and every worthwhile program of the area, there is hardly a person who can surpass him in length of service for his fellow man. Although it sounds a little trite to say so, his passing is a distinct loss to his community and his place will be a hard one to fill.

GEORGE H. HANST, pictured here as a young man at the start of his career, and again as a seasoned editor close to retirement.

His graciousness in his home was known to hundreds, as was his reputation for honesty and integrity in his business relations. Many acts of kindness went by unknown to the public as he was not one to crave particular public credit for a Christian or gentlemanly act.

Throughout his lifetime he has sown the seeds of good living which will take root in those with whom he was associated. Had work was his motto, and he was never more at home and in his glory than when hard at work in the business which he loved.

The older business men of the community declared this week he had been a symbol of strength and was consistent in his continuous fight for the better things of life. Oakland has had a number of such individuals who have left the town a better place in which to live than they themselves found it. Such people are always missed greatly.

But if those who are left can continue in that direction, we will also perform our duty and receive the commendation of our neighbors and associates, like those who have gone before us. It is examples like "Uncle Ben" that spur us on to greater accomplishments.

George did indeed follow in Ben's footsteps over the next 30 years. He, too, was a worker in the community, serving his church in a number of capacities, working with youth, and being an active member of the Masons and Rotary. He and Polly had three children, one of whom went on to write for the Baltimore Sun.

He stood for what he believed in, which often pitted him against one particular senator, Mr. Clifford Friend. The two debated for years, George supporting the growth and expansion of Garrett County and Mr. Friend in favor of a more conservative approach.

The following editorial in support of the construction of Deep Creek Lake State Park shows George's accurate vision of the future. It was published on Jan. 20, 1955:

The Task Ahead . . .

With coal and timber business on the decline for the past several years, it is important in Garrett county to foster any enterprise that brings in real money.

That is why increasing the recreational facilities to attract more vacationers is one of those projects to be encouraged. The Maryland Board of Natural Resources declares there is little doubt that Deep Creek Lake is Maryland's most important reservoir from a recreational standpoint. It has a great private property development, with over one thousand cottages around the lake with their owners spending large sums for their living expenses in summer, repairs, taxes, etc.

But we need to give a lot of thought to the transient pleasure seeker, the ordinary run of mine person, the one who will come for a day or two or a weekend, with his family, if there is some place where he can go without being ordered away.

Governor McKeldin saw this need and with the help of interested local people provided in his budget $85,000 for a public park. Last year the legislature added $40,000.

Acquiring a proper site in an area easily accessible from the main arteries of travel should be the concern of all good citizens. The Board of Forests and Parks is now preparing to make a final survey. Its decision should be looked upon as an effort to help this county's economy, not as another grab for more county land by a state agency, as a few seem to regard it. The state is interested this time in obtaining enough land to provide the county with a public park that has a potential of bringing thousands of dollars to this county annually. That would mean real money to the area and have a distinct tendency to eliminate the causes of articles in city newspapers which point out that Garrett county jobless face foodless days.

Added recreational areas and small industries for this county would provide a big boost to the county's economy. It is most peculiar that there are people who try to buck both.

As George shouldered the responsibilities of editor-in-chief, his wife Polly offered her writing to the paper and thereby kept up the humorous, hometown column themes. She wrote a missive for several years titled "It Runs Through My Mind." A short excerpt from the Jan. 5, 1955, column is as follows:

I almost feel like the little boy who asked his father how to spell "ratnow."

"I don't know the word," he replied. "How do you use it?"

"I want this done ratnow," he explained.

So there are thoughts for "ratnow" and thoughts for later. For instance, when the seed catalogues arrived with the last Christmas cards, it almost made me lose my Christmas spirit and my temper as well.

It was untimely. Same with the magazines. Most every one has colorful new petunias or pansies or something else that will bloom six or ten months from now.

Oh, I know — those editors aren't any different from the rest of us — they have to scratch around to find something to write about that will look exciting after the buildup of Christmas.

But I for one refuse to drool over cantalopes that taste absolutely perfect anytime they're picked (picked in late summer that is) when there's a carcass of a Garrett county turkey still hanging around to be picked.

A deadline job tends to speed up the passage of time for those involved. Surely the 30 years passed before George knew it, even as his career spanned years of great change and historical milestones. He remained at the post with fortitude, dedication, and courage, and finally left it in the hands of his great-nephew Donald Sincell, who this fall will be at that helm for 25 years. And so it goes.

by Joan Sussman

Guess what? The first full day of spring brought a heavy rain, which started out with a mix of rain and snow. Hey, March came in like a lion; and how about going out like a lamb!? It sounded like thousands of BBs hitting our windows.

I just heard from Sheila Southerly, who saw a blue heron on her pond. I always loved to see one of those big blue birds around here. Years ago one was hanging around the Beachy pond and sometimes on the Peat Bog lake. When I heard about it I wanted to run out to my car and see if it was still there, but it would take more than birdwatching to go out in this deluge.

I was shocked when Sheila told me that the beaver dam was almost dry and as low as she has ever seen it. Today as I drove along Rock Lodge Road I saw several new marshes or ponds in low places, and I even saw a new spring near the old one near Rock Lodge. Both were pouring out a large stream of water. These rain storms will hopefully fill up the beaver dam. It makes me very uneasy to hear it is about dried up, especially since I was so pleased with the water supply this spring, in spite of the low snow fall last winter. Hopefully we will get a few more rain storms.

Sheila also was sad to see the mate of the Canada goose that died along Peat Moss Road last fall. He was hanging around in the field where his mate died. Sheila did see him join a small flock of other geese, so maybe he will find a new mate.

When I wrote this, the ground was already white, so am sure this is the real robin snow because I saw five robins in our hayfield. Last week we certainly got some real snowfall, as it looked like January was still here.

The residents of Rock Lodge Road are shocked and appalled at the rude behavior of some people who drive along the road and pitch out their empty beer bottles and cans, and also soft containers. But the beer containers are much more sleazy looking and makes it look like a backwoods, redneck, hick area. Look around at the beautiful scenery along the rock before you pollute the area with your trash. It is a real disgrace! Of course, the perpetrators of these acts do not care and are illiterate. A few years ago someone threw a beer bottle in one of our pastures, and a very dear little pony of ours almost cut her foot off when she stepped on it. The cut was about a three-inch deep gash on her heel. It is not an excuse that you were drunk and not thinking. If you have to drink beer, act like a responsible adult, or if you are underage, you have no right to have beer at all. If you should crash into some innocent persons, you would not just be a slob-litterbug, but you may be a killer.

Excuse me for being so harsh, but for the last week as I drove past your mess, I got a real head of steam about it. No decent person could throw out their dirty trash along some beautiful place in God's country.

Monday felt almost spring-like, as my little wild birds are singing and lining up for a fresh thistle seed load in their feeders. Of course, another sign of spring is that our dogs are gnawing on a piece of deer leg they found in some neighbor's field. When my brother Scott died, lots of friends stopped by to offer their help. One was Craig Phillips with The Republican. When he asked me if he could do anything to help, I reluctantly asked him if he could rake up the pieces of deer bones, hide, and hair that were scattered around the lawn. That job you could not ask just anyone to do. Craig was delighted to do it.

The same week, a vet school friend of Scott's stayed with Lesa Whittemore and saw a piece of deer bone in Lesa's lawn and asked her if she could have it. Of course, Lesa said yes, since there are plenty more where that came from.

By the way, Scott's death was on March 23, just 14 years ago. We still mourn him, but celebrate the good life he lived and had on this earth.

It couldn't seem like the Easter season in Bittinger without a few lingering snow drifts, just to make outside Easter egg hunts interesting. One of my favorite Sundays of the year is Palm Sunday. This year was as nice as any I nave ever attended at Emmanuel Lutheran Church. We not only had our usual palms leaves to wave, but the congregation also had a full procession. The only complaint I had was we did not sing "Ride on, Ride on in Majesty." I know several other persons who felt the same way. My girls were busy during church doing what they learned from me, when I had two hands to use, and made little crosses with their palm strands. They already are very good at it. My mother Ruth took some to the Goodwill Nursing Home Monday afternoon and gave a few to some of the patients there. The Women of the Church of Emmanuel presented a short program and had delicious goodies for the patients.

Last week I bought an Easter lily at Foodland and intended to take it over to the Maust family, who lost their father and husband, Elmer, last Tuesday. He died from a second heart attack. I put it off, as I dreaded to confront a family in mourning, and the lily I got was already a little beat up, so I need to get another one.

I just got a piece of bad news on the phone from my mother. Her oldest brother, Wayne Buckle, died Sunday night. He and his wife Wilma lived in the Washington House in an assisted living apartment.

Wayne was about 86 years old and has been mostly confined to his home for a few years. He was a great inspiration to me, although you couldn't have known a more straightlaced person than Wayne. He also was a great liberal in political terms. He served on the Democratic National Legislative Platform Committee several years ago to establish their platform for the presidential election. He was quite a humanitarian, and even got arrested when he marched in Washington, D.C., with Martin Luther King Jr. in 1960. He was an active leader in the Democratic party in Virginia. He has donated his body to science, and a memorial service will be held on April 6 at 2 p.m. at the Arlington Church of the Brethren in Arlington, Va., where he and his wife were very active. I always felt so proud of Uncle Wayne, as it made the civil rights struggle seem very real, and even I felt a part of it. I always tried to live up to Uncle Wayne's standards.

Elmer Maust and Wayne, who also lived in Bittinger once, were real Godly men, but still different. Wayne turned out to be a "city-slicker," while Elmer was just pure country. I know Wayne probably never voted anything but Democrat, and I doubt if Elmer ever voted anything but Republican. But I know they are together now in Heaven. Elmer's funeral was last Friday, and when I dropped off the Easter lily, I asked one of the Maust girls how her mother was doing. Right now when the children and their families are all home it is not as difficult as it will be when the families go home and the loneliness sets in.

Why couldn't people be more like birds? Right now I have four species of wild-birds, all colors and races, and yet in some way they can share the same living space and they eat together in peace. Even though the black-cappedchickadees are in the majority, they allow birds of yellow, brown, pinkish, and red hues to share their meal.

Last week I spotted the first lamb on Rock Lodge Road in the pasture belonging to Maggie and John Hockman on the way home from picking up another Easter lily for the Mausts. That little fellow is already growing big and bold enough to slip out of the fence. His appearance put my theory about lambs in place, as I believe they do not come until some green grass appears. Something about new grass causes labor in the ewes. Not too much green grass though in Bittinger, but actually I looked out on my lawn between the patches of snow and I do have some green grass.

I don't know why, but my girls recently talked a lot about how much they wished we would get a thunderstorm. We did get a small one this Tuesday morning. I don't know whether it extended to the Accident area where they were in school or whether it will continue this evening. It certainly is a drab and gray day today. I am a little concerned about the thunderstorm, because outside of summer they often come before a major snow event. Sheila Southerly just told me they do predict snow for tomorrow. My girls have a debate about when our daffodils will bloom. Claire is sure she is right in that she predicts they will be blooming by Friday, as yesterday she saw some good formed buds.

Adorable Adoptables

PUPPIES, PUPPIES EVERYWHERE — The Animal Shelter currently has two litters of puppies available for adoption. One is a litter of 8-week-old beagle/Lab mixes, and one is a litter of 9-week-old beagle/spaniel mixes, shown below. Ginger, pictured above, is a 9-month-old brindled-colored mixed breed. She is very sweet, has been spayed, and is housebroken. According to the shelter staff, she would make a wonderful pet for a very energetic owner. Persons interested in giving these adorable puppies a new home may contact the shelter at 301-334-3553.

The primary reason I called Sheila today was to find out how Landon did at the Regional Science Fair last weekend. He won second place in the Computer Science Category. Robbie Glotfelty was probably the biggest winner from Bittinger. Besides taking second place in the Earth and Science Category, he won a $500 scholarship for Frostburg State University given by the American Soil Conservation Agency. He also won an Army Youth Achievement Award.

Ralph Buckel tripped over a fallen branch in his driveway on his way to look at their crocus blooms. Luckily, he only suffered minor facial injuries. We did miss him at church on Sunday, as he is a regular attendee.

Sheila has a great bird-watching area in back of her home in the woods. She is treated by a regular visit of pileated woodpeckers. That is the kind of woodpecker that "Woody Woodpecker" was based on, which is a big bird with large bright red crest.

Something I got too late for last week's news is about the Northern basketball awards banquet. Not only did Landon Southerly win the Coach's Trophy for varsity, but two other guys from Bittinger shared that honor for the junior varsity, as Brent Housley and Max Beitzel were co-winners. See, I always say what great kids we raise in Bittinger.

The annual Easter Sunrise service, which is an interdenominationalservice, will be held at the Bittinger fire hall on Easter Sunday morning at 6:30 a.m. Since Caitlin's schedule is for acolyte service at Emmanuel and the other girls are also involved, that is enough pressure for us, so we probably won't make it to the early service. Caitlin is joined in a lead role with Robbie Glotfelty, who will carry the cross for the processional.

The youth of Emmanuel participated in the Bowl for Kids Sake at Par-Matt Lanes, Oakland, on Saturday, with three teams of 12 bowlers, and raised $390. Thanks for all the contributions, and to Meredith Vagnetti for coordinating the event. The youth also plan to organize a yard sale at Bittinger fire hall on May 18, along with a pig roast, to benefit the church's building fund. Donations of yard sale items will be greatly appreciated.

Sam, Cindy, Aaron, and Lea Stanton and Ferne Beachy visited Sam's mother Lucretia on Saturday evening to help her celebrate her 93rd birthday, which was March 24. She received 140 cards and messages including one from President and Mrs. Bush. Thanks to all who remembered her with greetings.

Lea Stanton and Grantsville resident Jennifer Wiley, roommates at Towson University, visited family and friends in the area Saturday and Sunday. Jenny was celebrating her 22nd birthday anniversary.

Ruth DiPaolo and Earlenna Tressler, Grantsville, attended the Garrett County Commission for Women's 8th annual Hall of Fame breakfast at the Will O' the Wisp on Saturday.

Connie Beachy and Mary Simpson met with Ferne Beachy in her home last Thursday to plan their program for Church Women for the month of April.

Ida Reckner and Hamill Glotfelty were Tuesday dinner guests of Jim and Donna Glotfelty at the Towne Restaurant in Oakland in celebration of their birthdays. Ida was observing her 97th birthday, and Hamill, his 69th.

Julius and Karmen Carey, Frostburg, were Wednesday evening visitors of their grandmother, Ida Reckner.

MEALS ON WHEELS SERVES UP ADVOCATES — The Garrett County Community Action Committee's Area Agency on Aging hosted an appreciation dinner for the staff of U.S. Senators Barbara Mikulski and Paul Sarbanes recently. Major donors to the county's Meals on Wheels program were invited, and both senators were recognized for the key role they played in securing federal funding which is helping the program continue serving meals five days a week. The dinner was prepared and served by the agency staff, and the food was also donated. "The dinner was our way of saying 'thank you,'" said Adina Brode, director of the Area Agency on Aging. Shown above is Brode, left, as she presents Pam College of Mikulski's staff with a certificate of appreciation. Below, Brode is preparing to present Sarbanes staffer Tim Magrath with the same recognition.

Jim and Donna Glotfelty traveled to Smithsburg Sunday to help celebrate the 11th birthday of their granddaughter, Amanda Platter. Jim was treated recently for a fracture in his back, suffered while lifting a silo unloader on his farm.

Bosley, Liller Pace Rams To 3-0 Opener Win At FH

The defending state champion Southern High School varsity softball team picked up where it left off last season, as ace pitcher Jennifer Bosley twirled a two-hit shutout and star shortstop Ashley Liller belted a two-run home run to boost the Rams to a 3-0 debut win over Fort Hill. Scheduled outings at Keyser and Northern were postponed because of inclement weather.

The contest was a hard-fought battle, a good test of Southern's abilities in ensuring the Rams had not grown soft by resting on their championship laurels over the off season. Both teams remained scoreless through the first three innings as Bosley and the Sentinels' Becky Vance locked horns in a masterful pitchers' duel. Bosley herself broke the ice by leading off the fourth inning with a triple, and catcher Gina Reeves sent her home on a run-scoring single.

SHS got two more runs in the next stanza after Megan Bernard led off with the game's lone walk (firm evidence of the mound mastery of both squads' pitchers). Liller then blasted the ball deep into the outfield, splitting the rightfielder and centerfielder, and rounded the bases behind Bernard to notch her two-run round-tripper. The blast made the tally 3-0, where the score remained for the rest of the game.

Bosley, Area Player of the Year for three years running, dominated the FH batters in what has become typical fashion for the blazing righthander. She kicked off her final year in Rams' red by recording 18 strikeouts, leaving only three outs to her work-starved fielders, while not relinquishing a single walk. Vance, her counterpart, allowed just five hits while striking out four Rams and gave up just one walk.

Southern's five-hit batting output, while meager by Ram standards, produced the runs needed to win. Bosley was her own best friend with a two-hit performance as she stroked a triple and a double, Reeves punched out a pair of singles, and Liller whacked her home run to account for all of SHS's hits off Vance. The Sentinels' Lauren Whitacre knocked a rare double off Bosley, and teammate Becky Beeman connected for a single.

The Rams' junior varsity squad took it on the chin in its debut the same day, as the host Sentinels strode to a 10-7, 14-4 doubleheader sweep. Southern has just 12 players on its JV unit.

SHS tallied seven hits in the first game off winning pitcher Cari Reed, who recorded eight strikeouts. Southern freshman Julia Bosley paced the Rams with three singles; and sophomore Brandi Arnett added a pair of singles. Stephanie Brenneman was tagged with the loss on the mound.

The Southern jayvees were completely stymied in the nightcap as Sentinel hurlers Tori Lease and Liddy Quinn combined to hold the Rams to two hits. Sophomore Alexis Storey smacked a double for SHS's lone extra-base hit of the twinbill. Sarah Mullenax took the pitching defeat.

The published schedule of this week's coming action is rather sparse, although the possibility of make-up games remains open. The Rams' varsity unit travels to Urbana tomorrow, then on to Calvert for Saturday's Calvert High Easter Tournament. Rounding out the tourney's three-team field will be Patuxent, which handed Southern one of last season's two losses via a no-hitter during the 2001 Calvert Tournament. The Rams will be itching for revenge, especially Bosley, who gave up just one hit and struck out 19 batters during a timeless pitchers' duel with Patuxent's Heather Turner.

Southern's JV squad takes on the Northern jayvees tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. at NHS, then the Rams travel to Westmar for a 1 p.m. match-up Monday.

A PERFECT REGULAR SEASON, the first in the history of Southern High School girls' basketball, was recorded by the 2001-02 varsity, and the members of the team were among all of Southern's winter sports athletes who were honored at the recent winter sports awards ceremony. The Rams finished the season with a 24-1 record, were 22-0 in the regular season, won the All-Area and Western Maryland Interscholastic League titles, and were a West Region 1A finalist. Pictured above, from left, front are: Robbin Gregg, Most Dedicated Player, and Jennifer Bosley, Most Outstanding Player. In the back row, same order, are: Becca Flanagan, Coach's Award; Justine Pagenhardt, Most Improved Player; and Ashley Liller, Most Valuable Player. Liller is also pictured below with Coach Don Stemple, as her jersey #21 was retired and presented to her. It was the fourth straight year Liller was named the team MVP. In her varsity tenure, she was the team's leading scorer all four years, led the Rams to a combined 72-27 record, is first all-time in career steals with 377, first all-time in career assists with 479, second all-time in career points with 1,625 (second only to SHS and WVU star Jenny Hillen), and holds the most points scored as a senior with 550. She led the area in scoring this season with a 22 ppg average. She is only the third player in SHS history to have a jersey number retired, the other two being Hillen and Brett Rice.

ALSO HAVING AN OUTSTANDING SEASON were the members of the Southern High varsity boys' team, who finished with an overall record of 21-4, the All-Area and WMIL titles, and were a finalist in the West Region 1A tournament. Many of the team members received individual honors at the school's recent winter sports awards ceremony. Pictured from left above are: Matt Stephens, Best Perimeter Player; Chad Panther, Co-Most Valuable Player; Dennis Tressler, Best Free-Throw Percentage; Ricky Reams, Co-Most Valuable Player; and Bryson Meyers, Best Post Defender. The junior varsity Rams also had another winning season. Jayvee honorees were, pictured below, from left, front, Robbie Stemple, Coach's Award, and Karl Hillen, Best Free Throw Percentage. In the back are: Cory Bosley, Best Offensive Player; Anthony Ablonczy, Most Valuable Player; and Corey Tressler, Most Improved Player. Not present for the photo was Derek Steffan, Best Defensive Player. At the bottom are freshmen standouts Brad Reese, Most Valuable Player, and Aaron Louden, Most Outstanding Player.

Lakers Fall To Germantown, Westmoreland, And Allegany

Both games were close, but the Garrett Community College Lakers ended up on the short end of the scoreboard in both Sunday afternoon, falling to host Montgomery Germantown in the first match-up, 8-7, and losing to Westmoreland (Pa.), 9-7, in the second contest.

The Lakers then dropped to 4-6 yesterday with a 10-3 loss to host Allegany College of Maryland in a make-up contest.

GCC was slated to play several more games this past week, but wet weather conditions forced their postponement. They are scheduled to play a doubleheader at Anne Arundel CC this Saturday and meet Allegany College again next Tuesday for a single game.

The Lakers had a 5-1 lead midway through the third inning of Sunday's game against Germantown, but the home team scored five runs in the bottom of that inning to take a 6-5 edge. Germantown added a run in the bottom of the sixth, and the Lakers then knotted the score at 7-7 with two runs in the top of the seventh when James Funk stroked a two-run shot. But Germantown recorded the winning run in the bottom of the seventh on a two-out RBI single by Drew Reiners.

The Lakers finished with a 9-6 advantage in hits, and had four home runs, including Funk's two-run shot, two solo homers by Brian Rockwell, and a three-run blast by Dean Altavilla in the third.

Altavilla also had a single, and Josh Bosley provided a triple and a single for the Lakers.

Mike Massino hit a two-run homer for Germantown, and Jeff Haeder recorded a double and a single.

In the contest against Westmoreland, the Lakers rallied from a 4-0 deficit with one run in the third and six in the fourth to take a 7-4 lead. However, Westmoreland put the game away with four runs in the top of the sixth, two of which were via a home run by Chris Minarzin.

The Lakers managed only six hits, including a double and a single each by Funk and Joe Walker, and a double by Altavilla. Funk's double accounted for two runs in the Lakers' six-run inning.

The Lakers, who were out-hit by a 14-7 margin yesterday against Allegany, enjoyed a 2-0 lead after the first half of the first inning and were up 2-1 going into the bottom of the third. But that's when the Trojans recorded three unearned runs on pitching errors to take the lead for good.

AC also put three runs on the board in the sixth to basically seal the victory.

Josh Bosley hit a double and a single for the Lakers, Dean Altavilla provided two singles, Jeremy Shaffer rapped a solo home run in the seventh, and Ryan Wetzel contributed a double.

Leading Allegany's offensive effort were Dan Miller with a double and two singles, Scott Kintz, who hit three singles for two RBI, Doug Lucsko with two hits and two RBI, and Nick Gozzard, Derek Megargell, and Dennis Hine also with two singles apiece.

The win was the 14th in 15 starts for the nationally ranked Trojans. Mitch LeMasters, who pitched the first seven innings, earned his fifth win in five starts, while Bosley took the loss for the Lakers.

Flames Record Dozen Victories In Tournaments

The Frostburg Flames of the Allegany Soccer Alliance, a team which includes several Garrett County players, competed in four indoor tournaments this past winter season and finished with a record of 12-4-2.

The Flames won twice in a Clarksburg, W.Va., tourney, placed second in a Morgantown tournament, and finished third in a tourney at Altoona, Pa. The Flames out-scored their opponents by a 56-24 margin, and all four of their defeats were by a one-goal edge.

The Morgantown tournament was the largest and most competitive, featuring 11 teams from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. The Flames finished 3-2 in that event and outscored their opponents, 16-8. They held a 1-0 lead over the Eagle club of Wheeling in the championship match, but lost, 2-1.

Players included: Mike Bishop, Jake Hay, Matt Parsons, Zach Lipscomb, Elijah Lais, Randy Wilhelm, Jared Lopez, Aaron Patterson, Lance Cooper, Sean Nolan, and Jared Green. Jim Lopez and Ron Lipscomb are the coaches of the Flames.

NHS Baseball Squad Downed By Wildcats

Baseball season got under way for the Northern High School varsity program Monday as the Huskies dropped a 9-4 debut to host Westmar Monday, a contest that had been rescheduled from the previous Friday. NHS was held to four singles over seven innings of play, and scored three of its runs in the final stanza.

Northern pitcher Greg Whittemore got off to a rocky start at the outset as the Wildcats scored five times in the bottom of the first inning. The Huskies responded with a single run in the fourth inning, a score answered in kind by Westmar in the bottom of the same stanza. The hosts then reeled off a three-run sixth inning, which NHS answered with three runs of its own in the seventh and final stanza.

Westmar's Richie Dellinger tossed 6 1/3 innings for the win, striking out six and walking just three batters. Whittemore, who was relieved by Dan Vagnetti in the sixth inning, was handed the loss.

The Huskies' scheduled season opener, which was to have been played last Thursday at Allegany, was postponed because of the weather, as was Saturday's home opener against Mapletown. Looking ahead, Northern is slated to travel to Mapletown tomorrow and Hancock on Saturday to participate in that school's Easter Tournament, before visiting Fort Hill Wednesday.

Huskies Drop Softball Debut To Alco, 7-2

The Northern High School girls' varsity softball squad opened its season last Thursday, March 21, with a 7-2 loss at Allegany. The contest was the first outing for both teams.

The first scores of the game came during a second-inning four-run Camper flurry, which was centerpieced by Jessica Smith's three-run single. The Huskies answered with a run in the top of the fifth before Alco's Bethany Sindy drove in two runs with a fifth-inning single. Both teams traded lone runs in each half of the sixth stanza.

NHS catcher Amanda Frantz punched out two singles, half of the Huskies' offensive output, and scored a run. Despite being tagged with the loss, Northern pitcher Jolene Brenneman limited the Campers to just six singles over her six-inning complete game effort. Allegany's Jen Cook recorded the victory, striking out nine batters along the way.

The Huskies' scheduled homefield contests against Beall Friday and Southern yesterday afternoon were both postponed because of the weather, with no make-up dates announced. Northern is slated to visit Beall this afternoon before traveling to Smithsburg Saturday for that school's Easter Tournament. The week rounds out Tuesday at Fort Hill.

Mtn. Top Hoop League Playoff Action Noted

The Mtn. Top Basketball League's version of "March Madness" got under way recently with quarterfinal action that narrowed the field to four teams in search of the league crown. (See separate story for semifinal results of this past Sunday.)

Plaza Hobby defeated the Skiles Bunch 76-71 in the opener. Skiles had jumped out to a 16-10 lead, but Plaza pulled back into contention and had taken a 19-13 lead by the end of the first quarter. It was all Plaza from then on, as the squad never relinquished the lead. Johnny Orendorf led Skiles with 22 points, including six three pointers, and teammate Jeremy Skiles added 10 points. Plaza Hobby was led by Mike Browning's 18 points and Billy Martin's 16.

In the second game, sixth-seeded Midas used some hot shooting to down three-seed Copeland's 74-52. CJ. Getson netted a season high of 28 points for Midas, while teammate Joey DiSimone canned 27 points. Doug Copeland led Copeland's with 23 points, followed by Jamie DeWitt with 10.

In the final game, second-seed Smiley's triumphed seventh-seeded 84 Lumber in a 95-69 romp. Smiley's ran up a big 38-20 lead in the first quarter on its way to placing all five of its starters in double figures. Joe Refosco led the way with 28 points, followed by Mike Harvey and Chris Ewing with 20 points each, Jonathan Price with 15, and Scott Shahan with 12. 84 Lumber's Greg Mortimer recorded 22 points while teammate J.C. Whitehair contributed 20.

Midas, ConDoerr Win In Mt. Top Semifinal Round

Midas upset Smiley's and ConDoerr topped Plaza Hobby, despite having only four players, in semifinal action of the Mountaintop Basketball League played Sunday.

Midas recorded a 52-49 victory in the first game, and top-seeded ConDoerr defeated Plaza Hobby in the second semifinal, 71-61. The two teams met each other last evening to determine the league champion, but details of that encounter were not received this morning.

Joe DiSimone spearheaded the Midas upset of Smiley's, as he poured in 24 points and recorded a game-winning steal in the waning moments. Smiley's held a 24-22 edge at halftime, but Midas out-scored the favored team in the third stanza by a 16-8 margin to take a 30-25 lead into the final quarter. Smiley's tied the game with less than a minute to play, but DiSimone's big steal set up the winning basket. A three-point attempt by Smiley's with just three seconds remaining fell short.

Leading Smiley's were Joe Refosco with 20 points, Scott Shahan with 15, and Mike Harvey with 10.

Dennis Gibson ripped the nets for 39 points to lead ConDoerr's team of four players to their victory over Plaza Hobby. The other three also reached double figures, with Pete Brosnihan netting 12, and Poke Winters and Mike Saturday each scoring 10.

The Plaza Hobby players seized the early momentum, and it appeared that they would run away with the game, as they hit five three-point buckets in the first six minutes of action. But Gibson and Saturday took control of the inside game, and ConDoerr trailed by just one point, 21-20, at the end of the first quarter.

ConDoerr then deployed a match-up zone to help hold the league's leading scorer, Mike Browning, to only six points in the first half. ConDoerr had a 32-20 halftime lead, and stretched the advantage to seven points by the end of the third stanza.

Plaza Hobby cut the margin to two points with two minutes to play, but Brosnihan responded with some fast-break lay-ups to ice the win for ConDoerr. Brosnihan scored nine of his 12 points in the fourth quarter, and also finished with six steals.

Finishing in double figures for Plaza Hobby were Mike Fazenbaker with 14, Jon Hegeman with 12, Ryan Adams with 11, and Mike Browning with 10.

Local Woman Designs Multi-Purpose Gear

Avid outdoors woman and hunter Bonnie Friend, McHenry, has designed and has patent pending the Convert-A-Muff™ by Ravenwear.

After spending years trying to find a way to keep her hands warm while spending all day in a stand or still hunting, she decided to design a product that would enable her to keep her hands free and could be converted into other uses if needed.

Friend made the original muff from polar fleece and sheepskin. "I found that it was able to stand up to the cold weather well, and I was able to stay in a stand or the woods all day very comfortably, which is our goal," she said.

After some researching, she discovered that the materials and products used in the outdoor clothing that Ravenwear of Canada produces gave her the same quality and warmth as her original materials.

This design converts from a hand warmer into a seat warmer, rifle cover, tree shirt, or a pack to carry a coat or hunting gear. It has a zippered compartment for heater packs that can keep the hands or kidney area warm or to store small hunting items.

Friend suggests that the Convert-A-Muff™ be used for more than just hunting. It could be used for ice fishing, football games, or any cold weather outdoor activity, she said.

The muff, which is windproof and water-resistant with heavy webbing and an easy-open buckle, can be ordered in a variety of camo fleece colors. Persons interested in the item may place an order by calling 1-800-387-2836, or checking the web site at www.ravenwear.ca.

Bonnie and her husband Alan operate Meadow Mountain Services, McHenry, and are caretakers of Rock Lodge Trust.

MODELING HER OWN CREATION — Bonnie Friend of McHenry is shown above modeling her own creation, the Convert-A-Muff™, which converts from a hand warmer into a seat warmer, rifle cover, tree shirt, or a pack to carry a coat or hunting gear. See story for more details about Friend and her multi-purpose gear.

Oral Cancer Survivor Will Speak At GCC

Rick Bender of Roundup, Mont., an oral cancer survivor, will be in Garrett County to speak to students at Southern Middle and Northern Middle schools on Friday, April 5. A public session is planned for 11 a.m. at the Garrett Community College auditorium.

"I started chewing tobacco at age 12, and by age 26, I was diagnosed with oral cancer and lost half of my jaw and part of my tongue," said Bender. "I was a ball player, Little League, All Stars. It was considered cool, and a safe alternative to smoking.

"I'm lucky to be alive, and want to warn as many people as possible about the dangers of using tobacco.... The biggest myth about spit tobacco is thinking it's a safe alternative to smoking. Take it from me, it is not."

Oral cancer is the 10th most common cancer in men and the 14th most common in women. Each year in the United States, 30,000 new cases of oral cancer are diagnosed and more than 8,000 deaths result from oral cancer. In 1998, there were 144 oral cancer deaths in Maryland, with 542 new cases reported, according to the University of Maryland Statewide Health Network (MSHN).

"The Maryland Adolescent Survey and the Youth Tobacco Survey results indicate a slight decline in smokeless tobacco use from 10.8% in 1996 to 7.9% in 2001. We are making every effort to reduce the rate of smokeless tobacco," said Bob Stephens, director of Community and Family Health of the Garrett County Health Department.

MONIES DONATED FROM SOUP, STORY NIGHT — The Dove Center and the American Association of University Women Garrett Branch Scholarship Fund recently benefited from the Soup and Story Night, which was held at the Savage River Lodge. Gail N. Herman, storyteller from Swanton, and Sally Stephenson from Frostburg gave two benefit performances of storytelling and music at the lodge. Jan Russell of the Savage River Lodge, on the right, presents a check to Herman, on the left, and to Stephenson. The Dove Center received $200, and the AAUW scholarship fund received $100.

"The county ranks among the top three counties in the state on use of smokeless tobacco among youth."

To promote awareness of the oral cancer initiative, supported by the Cigarette Restitution Funds, and to provide information to youth and the community, several organizations have collaborated on this event. Garrett County Board of Education, Minority Outreach Technical Assistance (M.O.T.A.), and the MSHN are sponsoring Bender's appearances.

Other collaborating organizations include the American Cancer Society, Garrett County Health Department, and Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

requests were the result of just one small advertisement that the chamber had placed in a northern New Jersey publication. "This tells us we have more work to do," he said. Chamber members will be attending a travel show on Long Island and advertising in a New York publication to promote Garrett County tourism even more in that area.

Ruth Enlow Library

Cathy Ashby, director of the Ruth Enlow Library, reported that the meeting room in the Oakland branch was being used for the data recovery project. The room will only be available to small groups of less than 12 people during evenings and on weekends. Persons may call to reserve the room. The children's storytelling program, which usually has 20 to 40 participants, will be held in the main part of the library, said Ashby.

The recovery process will take about five or six months to regain the library's data base that was lost several months ago, due to a programmer's error. Insurance will cover the data entry workers' salaries, the director added.

Finance Department

All the county department heads have submitted their proposed fiscal year 2003 budgets, reported Wendy Yoder, director of the Finance Department. Yoder said her department will meet with the commissioners on Monday to go over the proposals.

The director added that the county's delinquent tax sale will be held earlier this year. It will take place on Friday, May 10, at 10 a.m. at the courthouse. Yoder said about 303 properties were originally listed as delinquent, but about 21 percent of those owners have paid their taxes, so far.

Economic Development

Jim Hinebaugh, director of economic development, reported that David Iannucci, secretary of the Department of Business and Economic Development, recently visited the county. The secretary toured Phenix Technologies and Garrett Container in the Central Garrett Industrial Park in Accident. Iannucci was "impressed" with the operations, said Hinebaugh.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg added that when Iannucci talks to officials in other counties, he uses Garrett as an example of what can be accomplished when people take the initiative to help themselves.

BRADLEY COGLEY RECOGNIZED — Cub Scout Pack 70 of the Oakland area recently held its annual Blue and Gold Awards Banquet at St. Peter's Catholic Church. After the banquet, eight dens within the pack received awards. A total of 52 Cub Scouts received their awards and advancements that they had been working on during the past year. A "crossover ceremony" was also conducted for several Cub Scouts who completed the Cub Scout program and chose to advance to a Boy Scout troop. Special recognition was given to Cub Scout Bradley Cogley (above right). A plaque was awarded to him by Mike Kozier (above left), assistant Cub master, for designing the 2001 Webelo-Red patch for the Potomac Council. Also recognized at the event were den leader Debbie Crabtree, den leader Jeannette Fitzwater, and Kozier. "All three are moving on from Pack 70 leadership after many years of dedicated service," said a spokesperson for the pack.

Man Jailed

stopped at 5:50 p.m. along Garrett Highway south of White Plains Lane when Gubala was observed not wearing his seat belt. The trooper noted the odor of suspected burnt marijuana coming from the 1989 Buick, and a probable cause search located suspected marijuana in the car.

Each subject was arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and when two cases of beer were discovered in the car, civil citations were issued to all three charging them with underage possession of alcohol. The trio were later released on their own recognizance after appearing before a District Court commissioner.

An early Monday morning traffic stop at Keyser's Ridge resulted in the arrest of an Accident man on drug charges.

Shortly after 1 a.m. a Ford Mustang was stopped for speeding along National Highway at Keyser's Ridge Road. In speaking to the driver, David Ryan Wampler, 19, the trooper detected the odor of suspected burnt marijuana emanating from the car.

A probable cause search of the vehicle ensued, and when suspected marijuana and drug paraphernalia were located Wampler was charged with possession of marijuana and the paraphernalia. He was subsequently released on his own recognizance after a hearing before a District Court commissioner.

Amazing Grazing Fund-Raiser Set To Benefit GLAF

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's gala benefit "Amazing Grazing" will take place from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday, April 13, at the Will O' the Wisp near Deep Creek Lake. A centerpiece of the fund-raiser will be a silent auction featuring over 70 items that have been donated from throughout the community.

The silent auction items range from a number of paintings, drawings, and ceramic works by local artists, gourmet dinners at area restaurants, get-away weekends, rounds of golf, ski passes, Pirates and Orioles baseball tickets, ballet tickets, a boat tour, a concert, floral arrangements, sports memorabilia, and many services.

"We have received a wonderful variety of donated objects and services this year," remarked GLAF executive director Beth Johnson. "Our Garrett County merchants and businesses have been exceedingly generous with their donations, for which we are very grateful."

In addition to the silent auction, guests who attend the gala will be entertained by noted local musicians Murial Franc on piano, Keith Roberts and Rob Smith on banjo and guitar, and the popular Celtic group Sang Run.

The event will be catered under the direction of Martin Heise, and the menu will feature an array of American regional tastes from New England, the South, and the Southwest.

Tickets for Amazing Grazing are $35 a person and must be purchased in advance by contacting the GLAF office at 301-387-3082. The GLAF office is located on the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College. Members of the gala planning committee are Heise, who serves as chairperson, and Wayne and Jackie Johnson, Pat Mullinax, Fran Reynolds, and Joan Crawford.

GLAF BENEFIT TO FEATURE SOME "AMAZING GRAZING" — An array of fine foods, live music, and a silent auction featuring over 70 varied items will be featured during the upcoming "Amazing Grazing" fund-raiser for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Shown are GLAF administrative assistant Debra Parandhamala, left, and benefit committee member Joan Crawford as they admire two of the items donated for the silent auction — a basket of wines, sauces, and other culinary delights donated by the Markwood convenience center, and a Jan Florist floral arrangement. The event is slated to get under way at 6 p.m. Saturday, April 13, at the Will O' the Wisp. Tickets are $35 per person, and must be purchased in advance by contacting GLAF at 301-387-3082.

ACM Slates La Fille Mal Gardee Ballet

The Appalachian Ballet Theatre Dance Ensemble will present two matinee performances of La Fille Mal Gardee on two Sundays, May 5 and May 12, at 2 p.m. at Allegany College of Maryland Theater, Cumberland. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children 12 years and younger.

La Fille Mal Gardee is described as a lighthearted, comic ballet that takes place in France during harvest season. The ballet is full of intricate and colorful folk and ribbon dances. The ballet is about a girl named Lise and her widowed mother's attempt to arrange a marriage between her and Allien, an unusual but extremely rich suitor.

Allien, however, who is hopelessly shy, is more fond of a red umbrella than his prospective fiancée. Lise is in love with a handsome but poor farmer. In the end, true love triumphs, and the widow's plans are thwarted, but only after the hero and heroine have been involved in hilarious and touching episodes.

Town Hall

LOCH LYNN

The next meeting of the mayor and town council will be held on April 2 at 7 p.m. in the town hall.

• A public hearing will be held on April 2 at 6:30 p.m. at the town hall regarding Ordinance 2002-01, to regulate installation and repairs of utilities to streets and alleys.

• Voter registration will take place at the town hall on April 1 from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. and again on Tuesday, April 9, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

• The Easter egg hunt has been rescheduled for April 13 at 2 p.m. at the town pavilion.

It's Easter, and a time to think about our Lord, His sufferings, His death and His resurrection. Then, as families, we think of Easter baskets, hiding eggs and what to fix for Easter dinner. For some, it's a time to cry and to think about the losses we have suffered. Unfortunately, we are among this group.

In memory of my mom, Bessie Bowers, who passed away, April 7, 2000, and one of our precious grandsons, Jaron Michael Fulmer, who went to be a servant to the Lord on July 12, 2001.

When I lost my mom, my heart was broken. I thought nothing could hurt more than that. I was so wrong! Imagine the heartbreak we suffered when our little man was taken just 15 months later. The pain our family went through that day and the pain we are still going through is so unimaginable! Some days we think we may be getting better, then other days we can't stop crying. The Bible says God bottles our tears (he must be busy with us). So until the day God calls us home, we can only pray He will help our hearts to heal. We love and miss you both very much!

DR. ZAKALUZNY ADDRESSES LIONS CLUB — Dr. Ihor Zakaluzny, assisted by the nurse manager of Surgical Services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, JoAnn Forno, recently addressed the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club concerning colorectal cancer. Dr. Zakaluzny stated that early detection can provide prevention and reduced incidence of colorectal cancers. Although high-risk individuals should begin screening earlier, normally individuals over the age of 50 should have regular screening. Exercise, low-fat foods, and high-fiber diets are good habits to help avoid cancer, he said. "Colon cancer is preventable; check with your doctor to see if screening is appropriate for you," said Dr. Zakaluzny. Lion first vice president Luther Parrack presented a certificate of appreciation to Forno and Dr. Zakaluzny. Standing on the right is Lion president Robert Stocksleger.

FRIENDSVILLE

• The Garrett County commissioners met with the mayor and town council on March 21 to discuss matters of mutual interest. In lieu of a tax differential for fiscal year 2003, the town officials requested the county's assistance with the development of a paved walkway along Second Avenue from the Maple Street intersection to the county's Bear Creek bridge. Due to the large number of pedestrians who use this stretch of county roadway, the mayor and town council feel there is a strong need to enhance safety in this area. Additionally, the assistance of the roads department was requested for several areas on local roadways where there is pavement damage due to underground water problems.

• The Corps of Engineers has approved the town's annual maintenance plan for the section of Corps property that the town leases adjacent to the community park.

• Notice has been received from the Maryland DNR Forestry Service that the town has been awarded the "Gold Level" Maryland PLANT Community designation. Mayor Schlosnagle will attend the awards ceremony in Hagerstown on April 3.

• Wendell Keaton's letter of resignation as the Garrett County circuit rider was received and accepted with reluctance. The mayor and council members concurred that Keaton has been a very valuable asset to the town for more than 20 years.

• Notification has been received from Tri-County Council for Western Maryland that Michael Mullan has been named as the new circuit rider.

The April meetings of the mayor and town council have been scheduled for Monday, April 8, and Thursday, April 25, starting at 7:30 p.m. This change in meeting schedule is for April only.

already in the cafeteria, and large anniversary banners will be hung at the entrances of the school.

A corresponding exhibit representing each decade will be showcased in the First United Bank windows across from the Garrett County Historical Society Museum in Oakland.

The commencement exercises for seniors will include commemoration of the 50th anniversary, according to the spokesperson. Alumni from the first graduating class have been invited to participate in graduation, along with faculty members of the first staff. Many of them plan to attend, the spokesperson said.

Also in the planning stages is an "all-class" reunion, being organized by the Southern Garrett High School Alumni Association. The event is slated for the Sunday of the Autumn Glory Festival in October.

"Various faculty, administrators, staff, and students have been working hard to assure that this celebration will be meaningful, historical, educational, fun, and inspirational," the spokesperson said.

program has yet to fully compensate farmers who file claims hoping to offset agricultural damage caused by bears. The highest payout to date topped out at 70 percent of claimed damage, while the lowest payout has been 41 percent. The program is funded through sales of state-produced black bear stamps.

This past growing season has resulted in $36,389 worth of documented damage claims, according to DNR wildlife biologist Harry Spiker. As Hamilton observed, "Some farmers don't even report damage because it's not worth the trouble to just get paid for a small portion of it." One of the task force's goals in requesting a formal report from Hamilton is to help quantify how much crop damage actually goes unreported, Matthews said.

The next meeting of the Black Bear Task Force is set for 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 1, at the Rocky Gap State Park lodge. The public is invited to attend, although comments will not be solicited at that meeting.

THE SUN — In early April, the sun shines for 12.7 hours each day, which grows to 13.8 hours in late April. April begins with 6:02 a.m. (EST) sunrises and ends with 6:20 a.m. (DST) sunrises. During April the sun's peak height rises from 55 to 65 degrees. (45 degrees is ½ way up while 90 degrees is directly overhead.) During April sunsets advance from 6:42 p.m. (EST) to 8:11 p.m. (DST). The reason for the larger shift in sunset times is our changing to Daylight Saving Time on Sunday, April 7. Sunrises are creeping backward, but the Daylight shift causes the sunrise times to be pushed an hour forward. As sunsets creep forward, we add an extra hour to our clocks, resulting in much later sunsets.

THE MOON — April opens with a shrinking or waning moon in the morning sky. The moon is last seen at dawn on Monday, April 8, as a thin crescent low in the eastern dawn. The moon returns to the western dusk on Sunday, April 14, appearing near the brilliant planet Venus. The next night the moon appears near Mars and on Tuesday, April 16, the crescent moon is just over the planet Saturn. On Thursday, April 18, the moon appears near the bright planet Jupiter. The best time of the month to observe the moon's craters and mountains will be within a few days of Saturday, April 20, when the moon will be about half full (like a letter "D") with the maximum amount of shadows. The moon is fullest on the evening of Thursday, April 25. In the last few days of April, the moon will have retreated to the late evening sky.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine more steadily than the twinkling night stars. But if a planet appears very close to the horizon or if it's windy, even the planet's light may flicker. April evenings feature the very bright planet Jupiter high in the west. To the right and below Jupiter is the planet Saturn, appearing near the bright star Aldeberan (of Taurus). The planet Mars shines lower in the western dusk. In April, the brilliant planet Venus climbs out of the western dusk and is near Mars and Saturn as the month ends. The planet Mercury can be seen low in the western dusk at the end of April.

APRIL'S BEST SIGHTS — In April you have your last good looks at the winter evening star groups near the western horizons as it gets dark. Still striking is Orion's belt of three matched stars in a row. The belt points left to Sirius, the night's brightest star. High over Orion is the bright planet Jupiter, in front of the star group Gemini. During April the brilliant planet Venus slowly creeps upward, ending the month just below Mars and Saturn. In the north the Big Dipper is nearly upside down. The handle can be extended outwards to the bright golden star Arcturus.

APRIL ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES — On April Sundays the FSU Planetarium will present "Sky Gazers of Ancient America and the Tropics" with free public showings at 4 and 7 p.m. Also featured is a beginner's tour of the evening sky using our planetarium projector. These presentations typically last an hour. The planetarium is located just off the front lobby of Tawes Hall. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 20, at the planetarium to mark Astronomy Day. All interested sky gazers from the tri-state area are welcome, and persons may call 301-687-4270 for directions.

Dr. Bob Doyle directs the planetarium at Frostburg State. Since the mid '70s, Doyle has been writing sky columns for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure/map, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle also hosts "Skywatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM, Frostburg State's radio station that transmits at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland. Dr. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

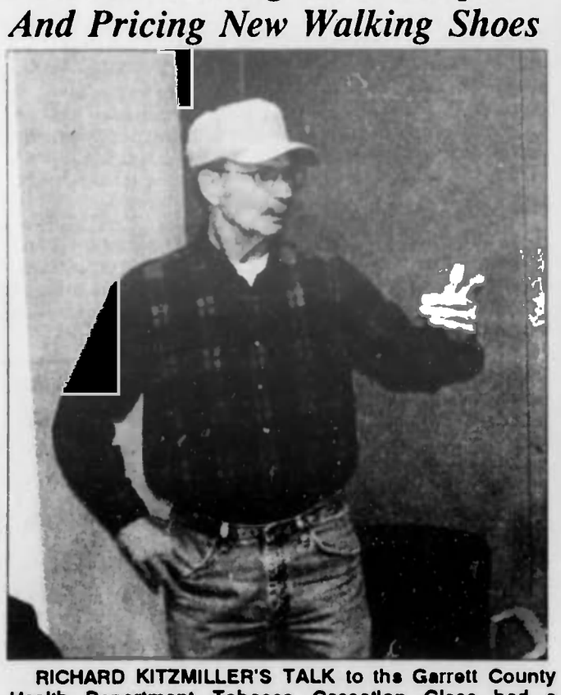
Part III: Dealing With Relapses And Pricing New Walking Shoes



RICHARD KITZMILLER'S TALK to the Garrett County Health Department Tobacco Cessation Class had a spellbinding effect on us all.

"IT'S YOUR CHOICE." — Garrett County Health Department's Amy Ritchie is a registered dietician who is shown here holding in her left hand a replica of healthy, human muscle, while in her right hand is a model of human fat. Ms. Ritchie was a guest lecturer at last evening's Tobacco Cessation Class and was emphasizing that our health is our own responsibility by our choice of lifestyle.

A series by Glenn Tolbert

When Richard Kitzmiller of Oakland spoke, everyone listened. He stood ramrod straight, his perfectly pressed, red flannel shirt tucked neatly into his jeans. Kitzmiller hesitated only for a moment, as if not quite sure how to tell his story of success. And in that instant those few heads in the audience of the Garrett County Smoking Cessation Class that were not already turned to him suddenly found their eyes riveted on an open, honest face. In the few seconds before he spoke, it was obvious that here was a man who lived by the code "No Brag, Just Fact."

"I smoked 43 or 44 years, at least a pack and a half a day," he said quietly. "Then one day I realized I was getting too old for this. I'm 61 now, retired from Bell Atlantic. So I threw away all the cigarettes that were left and the matches and the ashtrays and never looked back," he told us, the hushed crowd of nicotine addicts.

Richard Kitzmiller is one of the program's graduates and success stories. He says he'll always remember that it was while taking the smoking cessation course prior to this one that he quit smoking cigarettes: January 16 at noontime. Before taking the course he had tried to quit numerous times, but "this time," he told us all, "it was for good."

There were a hundred questions for him after he gave his soft-spoken presentation. Two of the first were: Did he gain weight? Didn't he still want a cigarette?

"Well, yes," he admitted, "I did gain six or seven pounds." And yes, never a day went by that he didn't think about a cigarette.

"But I figure that just because you want one doesn't mean you have to have one," he said. "I have no hobbies, so in some ways smoking was my hobby. But now I'll not go to the store if I think there's a chance I'm really just going out to get cigarettes."

The class was awed by this quiet man's success of beating a habit and an addiction that spanned nearly half a century. Some of us were feeling something else — like guilt and shame. Here was this man who had accomplished this incredible feat, while many, including yours truly, were having relapses that were still putting money into the deep pockets of the tobacco companies and the state coffers.

"That's bad thinking," assured our instructor, Mike Wilburn. "You can't go beating yourself up if you wind up smoking a cigarette or even two. It's still less than you were smoking before, isn't it?"

"Okay," I thought, "I'll buy that. I am saving money even though I've been using the stress of this week (including the writing of this column) as an excuse to sneak a cigarette once in a while."

In fact, if you've been hearing occasional loud thuds around the county, especially in the mid-afternoons, that's probably the sound of my guilt collapsing all around me as I sneak (yes, sneak) into my truck and light one up.

But Wilburn has a point. Smoking two or even three cigarettes a day is still better than a pack or two a day. And certainly easier on the wallet.

But then there's the problem of weight gain. Our second class addressed that this week, just about the time I was getting ready to use that as an excuse to continue my furtive forays into the parking lot. I am already sporting a bountiful bulge above my belt, and the last thing I needed was to add to its dimensions. Besides, my feeling about exercise is shared with Washington Post columnist Art Buchwald, who once stated, "Sometimes I get the most incredible urge to exercise, but if I sit around long enough it disappears."

Well, darn those people at the tobacco cessation classes at the Garrett County Health Department. They brought in one Amy Ritchie. Now, Ms. Ritchie's official title is "registered dietician," hut it should be something like "Someone who looks like she has never practiced any unhealthy habit in her life." (See photo)

Ms. Ritchie carefully (or may I say painstakingly) explained to all of us unhealthy slobs that yes, you may gain a few pounds when you finally light your last product containing the god nicotine. But that added weight doesn't have to be fat, it can be muscle. All you have to do is two things: eat right and, of course, exercise.

Some of us were concerned that we would then be expected to join in on a tough regime of jumping jacks and jointly cough out all those years of smoking. But instead, Ms. Ritchie said she believes that the best exercise equipment in the world is a good pair of walking shoes. And as far as diet, she explained some basics, like 3 grams or less per 100 calories is considered low fat food. And she also told us that the tobacco companies weren't the only ones out to fool those of us who now find ourselves in a "self-improvement" group. It seems some food companies are kind of into this deception thing as well. Some low fat foods are loaded with sugar and some low sugar foods are loaded with fat. It does get worrisome. (Or is that wearisome?)

Then to prove her point about fat and muscle, Ms. Ritchie pulled from some handy canvas bags two five-pound pieces of plastic. One was molded into the shape of a huge glob of fat, the other into a slender, aesthetically pleasing spindle of muscle. "Here's your choice," she said.

Me, I'm checking out some walking shoes. And I'm going to start walking before the urge to exercise leaves me. I'm also going to start reading that teeny weeny little print on the back of food packages where grams of fat are inked on by tiny-eyed elves.

Oh, and as far as that guilt crashing all around me . . . This is the week I give that up also, even if the worst happens and I find some probably very poor excuse to hght up a cigarette (or two).

P.S. Can't wait to see how this all ends up. There are two more classes left next week. Wish us all luck.

Van Burns After Striking Pumps; Riders Escape

A woman and two children escaped injury last Thursday evening when the van the woman was driving struck gasoline pumps at Imhoff's Service Center in Loch Lynn and caught fire.

According to a report from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Diane Lee Sharpless was operating a 1998 Ford van when she was unable to stop the vehicle at the intersection of Rt. 560 and Paull Street because of extremely icy road conditions. The van slid out of control, struck the gas pumps, and caught fire.

Sharpless and the children got out of the vehicle, which was then destroyed by the fire. The tanks under the gasoline pumps did not explode, as they were automatically sealed off when the pumps were knocked over.

Volunteer firefighters from the Oakland and Deer Park fire departments were called to the 8:10 p.m. incident and extinguished the fire. No charges were filed against Sharpless.

Katie Cathell To Attend Le Cordon Bleu

Katie Cathell will attend Le Cordon Bleu Paris Ottawa Culinary Arts Institute in June. She will pursue a degree in gastronomy and business administration. Cathell, who will be a 2002 graduate of Bishop Walsh High School, is the daughter of David and Jill Cathell of Mechanicsburg, Pa., Frostburg, and formerly of Oakland.

The Le Cordon Bleu evolved from a Parisian culinary school, established in 1895, into an international culinary network with more than 18 schools in 11 countries. The schools are located in Paris, London, Tokyo, North America, South America, and Australia.

Credits from the institutes are interchangeable, allowing the student a unique multi-cultural and educational experience. Students representing more than 50 nationalities reportedly find the cross-cultural experience of studying at the Le Cordon Bleu to be rewarding in terms of both personal and professional growth.

ACCIDENT

The fourth grade class will travel to Allegany College of Maryland on Tuesday, April 2.

"HE GIVES US THE VICTORY...!"

On a crude and cruel cross, amid jeers and tears, Jesus Christ, God's only Son, died. With blood and perspiration pooled on the ground beneath His feet, Jesus was taken down and buried. On the third day, Jesus had escaped the grave, the stone unmoved! Easter is not about defeat. Easter is all about victory!

Jesus' horrible death on the cross was never a defeat. It was God's divine plan for our salvation. He watched His Son die a slow and agonizing death to atone for our sins. In 1 Corinthians 15:57 we read... "But thanks be to God! He gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Yes, incredibly God loved us that much. He loves us that much today. If we but allow that one thought to dwell in our heart, we shall have the courage to conquer any fear and the gift of peace that comes with accepting God's will for our lives.

Won't you let God's love dwell in your heart? Please worship this Easter and each Sabbath. You, too, can emerge victorious!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE EASTER LIFE

March 31, 2002

Background Scripture: John 20:1-18; Romans 6.
Devotional Reading: Romans 6:9-13.

It is always interesting to me to find Mary Magdalene figuring so prominently in the gospel accounts of the resurrection.

In Matthew 28, there are only two disciples, Mary Magdalene and "the other Mary," who go to the garden tomb and find it empty. On their way to tell the disciples, they encounter the risen Lord. In Mark 16 there are three women—Salome is added to the two Marys—who find the empty tomb. Luke also lists three women, but, instead of Salome he names Joanna. In John 21, Mary Magdalene goes to the tomb alone, finds the stone rolled away and goes to summon Simon Peter and "and the other disciple, the one whom Jesus loved." When they find the tomb empty, they return to their homes. But Mary stays at the tomb and encounters, first two angels, and then the risen Christ.

I would have expected that certain other disciples would have played the prominent role in these accounts Simon Peter, because of his leadership role among the disciples. James, the brother of Jesus, as future head of the Jerusalem church. John, because he was almost certainly "the other disciple... whom Jesus loved." Mary the mother of Jesus, in light of her role in Roman Catholicism. Altogether, Mary Magdalene is mentioned only a dozen times in the four gospels.

Mary Magdalene

To me, this is a revolutionary note, indicating that the experience of the risen Christ is not governed by human priorities. The Magdalene was not one of the Twelve, but even more shocking is the fact that she was a woman! Jewish men and women were not permitted to worship together in the main portion of the synagogue, but the gospel records make it clear that the first Easter greetings from human lips came from her.

There is another sense in which Easter is for everyone. To be sure, the Easter story is focused on Christ's victory over sin, death and the grave. But we must understand that Easter is not only about Christ's victory, but also ours. Easter is not only about the resurrection of Christ. Easter is also about us, our death and resurrection.

Paul uses the analogy of Christian baptism: "We were buried therefore with him by baptism into death..." (6:4). Paul also says: "We know that our old self was crucified with him..." (6:6) and he goes on to say that we have "died with Christ" (6:8). In other words, when we become disciples of Christ it means the death of our former way of living. You cannot follow him without something changing significantly in your life. If, after you have committed yourself to Christian discipleship your life is not somewhat different, then you probably are not his disciple.

The New Life

Easter is about both the death of the old life and the birth of a new life: "...so that as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, we too might walk in newness of life" (6:4). Life without Christ is life under the "dominion" of death. Our mortality colors and structures everything. Humanly speaking, death is the one experience to which all creatures are subject. Money, position and power do not shield us from the grave. What we think of death has a controlling effect upon the way we live.

"But if we have died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him." (6:8). This is not a matter of being lucky enough to be resurrected as Christ was, nor of being good enough so that we may make the same claim on God. If we "live with him" we will share the Easter victory. Getting "resurrection" or "life eternal" is not the goal: living with him is and then life eternal is one, but only one, of the results. Just as Jesus promised, "... seek his kingdom, and these things shall be yours as well, so Paul is saying "live with him" and you will experience the resurrected life both before and after death.

The Easter faith is for both conquering death and living life

Saw Palmetto for an Enlarged Prostate

Problems related to an enlarged prostate (called BPH or benign prostatic hyperplasia) most often occur in men after age 45. However, symptoms typically do not appear until age 60 or later. Up to 40 percent of men aged 70 years and older have symptoms that include an urge to urinate and difficulty emptying the bladder completely. If BPH is allowed to continue without treatment bladder infection and possibly kidney damage can occur. Prescription medicines used to treat BPH symptoms include finasteride (Proscar) and terazosin (Hytrin).

According to a recent report in The Journal of the American Medical Association, an extract from the saw palmetto plant may provide a safe and effective alternative to treating BPH.

Side effects from the herb were mild as compared with prescription medicines. They concluded that saw palmetto was effective in improving BPH symptoms and the flow of urine.

Men's Disputes End In Not-Guilty Verdicts

Two local men who had formally accused each other of mutual harassment, including assault, were both deemed not guilty of their respective charges during recent Garrett County District Court hearings. Judge Ralph Burnett presided at the sessions.

Timothy David Hare, 30, Oakland, and Paul Kip Burns, 31, Mtn. Lake Park, were each arrested last fall by sheriff's deputies after an ongoing dispute. Hare was charged with a total of two counts of second degree assault, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest; three counts of harassment; and one count of disturbing the peace. He was acquitted of all charges except for the following single counts, which were not prosecuted: second degree assault, disorderly conduct, disturbing the peace, and harassment.

Burns was deemed not guilty of two counts each of second degree assault, trespassing, and disorderly conduct; three counts of disturbing the peace; and one count each of misdemeanor theft, harassment, and telephone misuse.

All charges stemmed from several confrontations between the two men that took place in late October and early November at the Pawn-It Outlet store, located along Garrett Highway. The charges faced by Hare that were not prosecuted involved an alleged assault upon a third individual, an acquaintance of Burns's who had accompanied him to the store during another Hare/Burns confrontation.

In other District Court news, an Oakland man was deemed not guilty of two second degree assault charges that stemmed from two separate arrests.

Austin Huffman Gardner III, 24, had been arrested in October by sheriff's deputies and in December by state troopers. On both occasions, Stacey Curtis made allegations that Gardner had assaulted her during domestic-relatedarguments.

Timothy John Ross, 20, a Friendsville resident being held at the Garrett County Jail, was exonerated of a second degree assault charge filed by another inmate. Randall DeWitt Jr. claimed that Ross had assaulted him while both were incarcerated. For his part, DeWitt was deemed not guilty of harassment, a charge levied by Ross at the time of their January dispute in the jail.

Mark Leroy Myer, 41, Mtn. Lake Park, and William Dillion, 20, Oakland, were each deemed not guilty of assaulting the other. Both men had filed for second degree assault charges in the wake of a September altercation at the Oak-Mar Motel that led to the pair's arrest by the Oakland Police Department.

Michael Gene Smith, 35, Fairplay, was exonerated of four counts of harassment and one count of telephone misuse. Sheriff's deputies had jailed Smith in January after Steve Weaver alleged that Smith had been making threatening phone calls to Weaver's residence.

Michael Christian Elliott, 28, Oakland, was deemed not guilty of harassment with a vehicle. He had been arrested by Oakland police officers in November after Carolyn Tasker claimed that he had come up behind her car at a high rate of speed, then allegedly followed her for a distance along Garrett Highway with his front bumper almost touching her rear bumper.

Dr. Whyte To Speak At FSU

Dr. Greg Whyte, an international leader in human performance, will speak at Frostburg State University on Thursday and Friday, April 4 and 5, as the 2002 Lillian M. Wellner Scholar, a program that brings acclaimed scholars to campus.

Whyte's presentations include "The Impact of Acute and Chronic Exercise on the Heart: Physiologic or Pathologic?" on April 4 at 9:30 a.m., "Performance in Extreme Environments" on April 4 at 2 p.m., and "The Role of the British Olympic Medical Centre in Elite Sport" on April 5 at 10 a.m. All programs will be in the Cordts Physical Education Center's Leake Room and are free and open to the public.

Whyte, now director of research at the British Olympic Applied Research Unit of the British Olympic Medical Centre in Middlesex, England, earned his M.S. in human performance from FSU in 1994 and was awarded the R. Bowen Hardesty Award. He came to FSU after completing his undergraduate degree at Brunel University in London, and returned to England for doctoral study at the University of Wolverhampton, where he served on the faculty until Dec. 2000. In Jan. 2001, he was named to his current post.

The Lillian M. Wellner Scholar Distinguished Lecture Series was established by Dr. Harold J. Cordts, former chair of the FSU's Department of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation. Named for the late Wellner, a former Frostburg State registrar and physical education instructor, the series is supported by an endowment established in her name.

Maryland's Exports Defy National Trend, Increase By 8% In 2001

Governor Parris N. Glendening announced this week that Maryland exports continued to grow for the second year in a row, despite the national economic slowdown and a slowing of growth overseas, with an 8 percent growth rate in 2001 as opposed to a negative 6 percent growth rate for the United States. According to the latest Census Bureau foreign trade statistics, Maryland now ranks eighth in the nation in export growth, exporting more than $4.9 billion worth of goods.

"The fact that Maryland export sales outpaced the nation in 2001 is further proof that our economy remains fundamentally strong and is well-positioned to prosper in the future," said Governor Glendening. "By working in partnership with local economic development officials, local chambers of commerce, and other public and private entities, the state is helping Maryland businesses compete in the global marketplace and create new opportunities for our businesses and citizens."

"While most of the nation is seeing a decline in exports, Maryland's exports continue to grow," said Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, chair of the Governor's Cabinet Council on Business, Economic Development, and Transportation. "The state has been and will continue to make every effort to help Maryland companies grow and succeed, offering invaluable assets such as the Port of Baltimore and Baltimore-Washington International Airport, and by providing international business support."

Growing export markets for Maryland products include Belgium, Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, Spain, China, Korea, India, Singapore, Saudi Arabia, Brazil, Algeria, and Croatia. Maryland exports to Algeria grew by 200 percent, rising to $280 million in 2001, and expanded by 1,965 percent to Croatia, rising from $1.7 million in 2000 to $35 million in 2001.

"Seven of Maryland's top 10 export sectors, which account for 84 percent of all exports, showed a positive growth in 2001, with Canada continuing to be the number one destination for Maryland goods," said David S. Iannucci, secretary of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED). "Many Maryland exporters are finding that the prospect for selling products in foreign markets is especially appealing now as there are many prosperous foreign markets in which to acquire new customers and expand profits."

Nearly 6,000 Maryland companies export on average 13 percent of their goods overseas. Some of the largest Maryland exporters are Hughes Network Systems, RTKL International, Maritime Applied Physics Corp., and Cohler Enterprises. Computer and electronic products are currently the largest Maryland export industry, followed by machinery, electrical equipment, fabricated metals, and textiles. Transportation equipment exports, which had declined significantly over the past several years from its peak in 1994 at $2.9 billion, made a partial comeback, growing from $629 million in 2000 to $802 million in 2001. Chemical exports, food products, plastic and rubber products, and miscellaneous manufactured commodities declined in 2001.

"The demand for our export assistance programs has never been stronger," said Pete O'Neill, director of DBED's Office of International Trade. "Whether attempting to shore up flagging domestic sales in the short term, or the simple realization that foreign markets need to be addressed in most companies' strategic plans in the mid- to long-term, many small companies are now moving fast to make international business connections. By helping to identify export friendly markets, and minimizing the cost and risk of market entry, our office can flatten just about any company's export learning curve."

The Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development offers export assistance programs for small and mid-sized Maryland companies and coordinates international trade and investment missions and trade show opportunities for Maryland companies. The department has a network of representatives in more than 11 foreign countries, including China, Singapore, Taiwan, Japan, South Africa, Israel, Chile, Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, and the Netherlands (which supports all of Maryland's European efforts.)

Currently, the department is assisting an inbound Dutch mission on bio-partnering opportunities with Maryland companies and soliciting Maryland telecommunication companies looking to explore new wireless, mobile, broadband Internet, and satellite communications opportunities in China. To obtain more information related to these and other trade and investment opportunities, persons may visit www.choosemaryland.org.

The state's per capita export sales increased 72 percent from 1993 to 2001, rising from $548 for every person residing in Maryland to $943. The national growth rate was 57 percent, giving Maryland a 15 percent growth rate lead over the nation.

The World Trade Center Institute (WTCI), working in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development, offers a full range of international business training, research, and services for the business community in the Mid-Atlantic region. As a non-political private nonprofit organization, WTCI is part of the WTCA, the association of over 300 World Trade centers around the world.

The attendance to our international business seminars has grown steadily over the past two years, a trend that seems to mirror the export success of the region at large," said Deborah Kielty, president of the WTCI. The next "Inside" series programs sponsored by the Regional Manufacturing Institute and WTCI will be held at Unilever on May 9. This program gives executives from small and medium-sized businesses the opportunity to discover the latest learning from the state's most successful international companies. For more information on WTCI and its programs, persons may visit www.wtci.org.

GCMH'S MAMMOGRAPHY UNIT RECEIVES ACCREDITATION — Garrett County Memorial Hospital's mammography unit, administered by the hospital's Radiology Department, has been accredited by the American College of Radiology (ACR) and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). To be accredited, a facility must meet certain requirements — including a peer review evaluation of the facility staff qualifications, equipment, quality control and quality assurance programs, image quality, and breast dose. The accreditation must be renewed every three years. "Receiving accreditation from the ACR and FDA is confirmation of the quality mammography services that have always been provided by our facility," said Michael Reed, director of radiology at GCMH. "This certification — in conjunction with the teamwork of referring physicians, breast surgeons, radiologists, and mammogram technologists — provides the basis of this service." GCMH will be listed in the ACR's Maryland Directory of Accredited Mammography Facilities. Pictured with GCMH's mammography unit, left to right, are Reed, and mammographers Jennifer Warner, Mary Norwish, and Rosalee Finch.

UPN throws a bone to Wolf Lake fans

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Lou Diamond Phillips

Q: An excited friend pointed out an Internet rumor that United Paramount Network had picked up Wolf Lake and would be presenting new episodes. I told her that seemed unlikely, but could it be true? –Marcie via e-mail.

A: It is true. When CBS dumped the low-rated werewolf drama after airing only a couple of episodes last fall, four episodes were left on the shelf.

UPN, which is now a corporate partner of CBS, would love to get the kind of ratings numbers that hadn't cut the mustard at CBS, so the smaller network will air an encore presentation of last fall's pilot episode as well as the four unaired episodes. However, there are no plans to produce new episodes, and the cast members, including Lou Diamond Phillips, have moved on to other projects by now.

Q: My friends and I are going crazy trying to remember the ventriloquist whose main character was a dog named Farfel. They did a commercial for Nestle's chocolate that became a kind of catchphrase for awhile. Can you shed any light? –Judy Kress, Williamsville, Ohio.

A: Ventriloquist Paul Winchell – at 79, still with us as of this writing – was the man behind puppets such as Farfel ("N-E-S-T-L-E-S, Nestle's makes the very best – chocolaaaaaate!"), Jerry Mahoney and Knucklehead Winchell also was a popular guest star on The Beverly Hillbillies, where he played elderly Homer Winch.

Q: Isn't the Judge with the surly little dog on Philly the same actress who played Mother Nature in those classic old margarine commercials? –Sheri Chazdon, Chicago.

A: Yes, veteran character actress Dena Dietrich, who plays Judge Ellen Armstrong on Philly, used to appear in those vintage Chiffon margarine commercials, in which a smiling Mother Nature was all sweetness and light until she sampled some Chiffon and mistook it for "my sweet, creamy butter." Told it was Chiffon, she snapped, "It's not nice to fool Mother Nature!" and summoned lightning and thunder.

Q: What actress played Reba's mom on Reba recently, and where have I seen her before? –M.M. via e-mail.

A: That was Daytime Emmy winner Dorothy Lyman, best known for her flamboyant work as Opal Gardner on All My Children and Naomi Harper on Mama's Family.

Jennings Lake Opening Schedule Dates Released

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers recently announced the opening schedule for the 2002 recreation season of Jennings Randolph Lake.

The schedule is: West Virginia Overlook, Maryland Overlook, Howell Run boat launch, and Maryland boat launch, April 1; Howell Run picnic area, April 8; and Robert W. Craig campground, April 27.

The West Virginia Overlook, home of the "Waffle Rock," a rare geological formation, is accessible from West Virginia SR 46, five miles north of Elk Garden. The Maryland Overlook, which has one of the most scenic views in western Maryland, features a half-mile long songbird trail complete with waterfall and pond. This overlook is accessible from Maryland SR 135 by either Walnut Bottom Road or Chestnut Grove Road.

Both the Corps boat launch on the West Virginia shore and the boat launch on the Maryland shore managed by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will open at 7:30 a.m. The Corps boat launch is alongside Howell Run just off West Virginia SR 46, three miles north of Elk Garden. The Maryland launch is along Mt. Zion Road off Maryland SR 135 near the salt shed along Backbone Mountain.

Both facilities will charge a $2 fee for launching a boat. An annual pass that will allow an unlimited number of launches at the Corps and Maryland launch is on sale for $25 at the Corps park office. Golden Age Passports (for senior citizens) cost a one-time fee of $10, and Golden Access Passports (for the physically challenged) are free. These passes allow for a half price reduction in fees associated with camping, the purchase of an annual launching pass, or for the daily boat launch fee at the Corps boat launch. For more information on the Maryland DNR boat launch, persons may call the Potomac-Garrett State Forest office at 301-334-2038, Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Howell Run picnic area offers a sand volleyball court, horseshoe pits, playground, 13 barbecue grills, 26 picnic tables, and two covered pavilions. The campground also features a 30x40 foot pavilion with grills and horseshoe pits nearby. The shelters may be reserved for $35 a day by contacting the park office.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q. I have a Victorian-era parlor lamp that has been in my family for at least a century. It is a Pairpoint lamp, and I assume it must have some value as an antique or collectible. — Sam, Memphis, Tenn.

A. First let me shed some light on the collecting of vintage lamps and antique lighting devices. From candlestick holders to railroad lanterns, there has always been a bright market.

In recent years, parlor lamps from the 19th and 20th centuries have been especially collectible. Many have appreciated dramatically because of the craftsmanship of famous glass and metalworking firms. For example, a Louis Tiffany lamp with a leaded glass shade could have been purchased 20 years ago for about $1,000. At a recent auction in New York, a Tiffany lamp with Dragonfly design sold for an astonishing $75,000.

Lamps featuring cameo glass have also captured the attention of serious collectors. Manufacturer names to be aware of include Handel, Dirk Van Erp, Steuben, Bradley & Hubbard, Jefferson, Emeralite and, of course, Tiffany.

The Pairpoint Manufacturing Company began in 1880 in Massachusetts, primarily as a maker of coffin fittings. Within five years, the company had diversified into hand-blown lampshades. Each shade was stamped by the company, and some were even signed by the artists who decorated them. The shades were phased out during the depression era of the 1930s.

Recent online auction results have included several Pairpoint designs, including a 12-inch rose shade with tree-trunk base, $15,370; a 20-inch shade featuring a farm scene with "rustic" base, $6,500; and an urn-shaped lamp with floral shade, $5,500.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• In the capital of Iceland, Reykjavik, it is illegal to own a dog.

• Ever wonder what a "snail's pace" really is? It's about 3 inches per minute, or about 15 feet in an hour.

• Do you cook? If so, you, too, have a patron saint: St. Martha.

• Until 1863, postal service in the United States was free.

• During the presidential campaign of 1960, between Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy, one bumper sticker read: "Thank God only one of them can win!"

• In high school, Harrison Ford was in the model train club.

• Ever wonder where the word "testify" came from? Well, the root word is "testis," the Latin term for "testicle." The Romans used to swear oaths by placing a hand over the testicles, which were considered the root of life.

• What's heavier — wet air or dry air? Wrong, dry. A molecule of water is mostly hydrogen and is very light. But you have to drag a lot more wet air into your lungs to get adequate oxygen out of it. That makes it "feel" heavy.

• The largest insect in the world is the goliath beetle of West Africa. It can grow up to 6 inches long, and its horns are a quarter of an inch long — and it can use them to peel a banana.

Readers Sound Off!

This week, I want to feature responses from you, my readers. I've gotten lots of feedback on some of my recent columns, and plenty of helpful information! I want to share some of it today in the hopes that you'll find something useful.

• Benjamin Lewis of Weaverville, Calif., e-mailed me about a reader whose dogs kept digging up the yard in a frantic search for rabbit droppings: "You missed the most obvious solution. The person had two dogs and a fenced yard. All they had to do was leave the dogs out at night (whenever it was not below zero). The rabbits and the worst of the digging problem would be gone very quickly."

Thanks, Benjamin. Readers looking for a solution to this type of problem can give this a try, and let me know the results.

• I also received quite a response for my article on professional pet sitters, especially from pet sitters themselves. Linda Norton, of Precious Pets Pet Sitting Service in Pawcatuck, Conn., wrote to say that sitters also specialize in birds, rabbits and other pets, as well as cats and dogs. Other pet sitters wrote to say that pet sitting organizations exist in many places around the country. Pet sitters can be found in the phone book, or look for their business cards in the waiting room of your veterinarian's office.

• And Jeanetta Sharp of the Thronateeska Kennel Club, Inc., in Albany, N.Y., put out the word about local dog shows. "The TKC has been putting on AKC-licensed shows in Albany since 1958. ... While we are certainly not at the 'Classic' level, we always draw top-20 dogs at our October events." She encourages readers interested in attending dog shows to check their local phone book's white and yellow pages, and to visit kennel clubs in their area.

Thanks to all my readers for their support and feedback. May you and your pets have many happy, healthy years together!

Eastern Star Meeting Held

Oakland Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star, met Tuesday, March 19, at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple. Worthy Matron Nancy Harsh and Worthy Patron Theodore Raynovich presided.

The Worthy Matron's opening thought was "Spring." She welcomed Lester Dempsey, Associate Grand Patron of the Grand Chapter of West Virginia; Dottie Csamer, Grand Esther of the Grand Chapter of Maryland; and Wilda Hile and Joan Morris, Deputy Grand Lecturers of Maryland. She also greeted Brenda Dempsey, Worthy Matron of Walter Chapter No. 43, Davis at Thomas, W.Va.

The Worthy Matron recognized Joy Lou Fogle, Past Matron of McKinley Chapter No. 12, Cumberland; and Keith Morris, Past Patron of Martha Washington Chapter No. 10, Lonaconing. She also recognized Grand Representatives Fogle to Oregon, Morris to Nevada, and Richard Csamer to West Virginia.

The chapter sang "Happy Birthday" to Charee Reckner, Laura Fridinger, and Lester Dempsey, who were celebrating March birthdays.

During the meeting, the chapter received a surprise visit from Kay D. Daniels, Associate Grand Matron, and Lester C. Bond, Associate Grand Patron of the Grand Chapter of Maryland. The Worthy Matron extended greetings to them.

The Associate Grand Matron and Associate Grand Patron announced that Bette L. Welch, Junior past Matron of Oakland Chapter No. 67, had received a Grand Appointment to the Grand Chapter of Maryland, Order of the Eastern Star for 2002-03. She has been appointed to the office of Grand Ruth. The Associate Grand Patron presented her with the official Appointment Certificate.

An Easter program was presented by the officers, with Deborah Raynovich singing "Ten Thousand Angels Wept." The Worthy Matron thanked her substitutes, Dottie Csamer, and the refreshment committee of Elizabeth Daniels and Theresa Keplinger.

She reminded the chapter of the honoring for Dottie Csamer, which will be held on Saturday, March 30, at 2 p.m. at the Masonic Temple.

The Worthy Patron's closing thought was "The Cross." The next regular meeting will be April 2.

SOLD

Dear Bob:

I would be remiss. Not to do this. To compliment your Coldwell Banker Arlene Murray for her professional handling of the subject sale to my wife Jerry . . . My wife and I have bought, sold, built, developed, renovated and designed for over a half-century. We have dealt with many Realtors and individuals. What I want to say here is that I cannot recall ever having anyone equal the professional all around courtesy, the prompt response given us by Arlene Murray. Arlene was most pleasant at all times. . . Oh yes, one other thing. After the closing Arlene called the next door neighbor (on the corner) to come meet with us. Jerry and I thought that was very nice. Jerry and our daughters and her sister are already hard at work planning and restoring this old house.

Digital Service From Cablevision

Oakland residents will soon have digital cable available as an optional service from CableVision Communications, the area's cable operator.

Comparable to direct broadcast (dish) service, digital cable will bring Oakland cable customers the option of extra video, music, and pay-per-view channels, but without the need to purchase equipment. The service does not require a digital TV set. CableVision provides digital receivers that convert the digital signals to be seen on existing TV sets. Local CableVision service technicians install the receivers.

"This is a product that competes head-to-head with the little dishes," said Cable Vision's operations manager Peter Brown. "And that fact that it's provided by the local cable company means the community receives extra franchise fees from the revenue generated by this optional service. The dish companies don't pay any local franchise fees, nor do they provide true local service that 'hard wire' cable companies can deliver."

Specifically, Oakland's digital cable includes 20 new channels added to the existing 60 channel analog expanded basic service. Digital customers will also receive 10 different formats of commercial-free digital music channels, access to 17 pay-per-view channels, and a "navigator" that provides in-depth, on-screen information about programming on all channels, both analog and digital. The price is $12.95 more per month. A digital receiver and remote are included in the monthly price.

CABLEVISION OFFERS DIGITAL SERVICES — Mike Sanders, chief technician for CableVision, is shown above with the new digital cable system. Digital cable will give Oakland customers more services without the need to purchase equipment. See story for more details.

Customers with premium services will also receive extra channels of their premium choices. For example, HBO customers will automatically receive an additional three HBO channels along with digital service. The extra channels, called "screens," deliver more options for viewing by showing different genres of movies. For example, if HBO is showing a war movie, HBO2 may have a comedy and HBO Family may have an animated feature. Premium service customers will receive a $2 discount on digital cable, lowering the extra monthly fee to $10.95.

"Now that CableVision has a service that's competitive with DBS, we've got a special offer for dish customers who want to come back to cable," said Mike Sanders, Oakland chief technician. "We offer a service credit for dish customers who surrender their dish and receiver in exchange for digital cable, or even cable without digital. It's designed to compensate dish customers for their expenses incurred getting into dish service. Any of CableVision's staff members can explain how it works."

Developed by TCI (now AT&T Broadband) and General Instruments (now Motorola), the technology has been deployed in cable systems nationwide. The fact that this is a tested product gives CableVision's technical staff a high degree of confidence. "The technology for digital cable has been thoroughly tested and we know it will be reliable," said Gene Wuchner, the company's regional engineer. "The digital mechanism allows us to deliver multiple channels in the space of one analog channel so we can substantially increase the total number of channels available. It's the future of cable technology."

Oakland residents may contact CableVision by calling toll-free 1-800-874-2915, or by visiting the local Oakland office at 12 South Third Street.

GCSO Reports Unusually High February Stats

Garrett County sheriff Dick Sanders recently released the agency's statistics for February 2002. According to the report, the office has been "unusually busy" for this time of year.

The statistics for the year revealed a total of 1,399 control numbers assigned for a variety of different incidents requiring officer action during the month.

Deputies also responded to 15 arrests for driving while intoxicated; 5 controlled dangerous substance complaints resulting in 4 arrests; 7 domestic complaints; 5 domestic assaults resulting in 4 arrests; 12 destruction of properties; 18 disturbance complaints; 39 motor vehicle accidents investigated; 79 traffic citations issued; 86 patrol checks; 344 court papers served by deputies; and 100 individuals arrested on a variety of 117 criminal charges.

Sheriff Sanders stated that in addition to these statistics, deputies have also participated in the local student DARE program, attended training seminars, and participated in other public awareness programs.

Potato Bar Proceeds Will Go To Library

There will be a potato bar at the Grantsville Elementary School on April 12, from 5 to 8 p.m. It is being co-sponsored by Lutheran Brotherhood Branch #8483 and the ReNew Library Fund. The Lutheran Brotherhood Challenge fund will match up to $500. All proceeds from the event will go toward the new Grantsville Library fund.

Tickets will be available at the following locations: Beachy's Pharmacy, Pine Accents, Herbs Etc., Grantsville Market, Shady Grove Market, and Grantsville Station. Tickets for adults are $5 and for children under 12, $2.50.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of my son "Dink" who died on Good Friday, April 1, 1983.

It is lonely here without you, so sad along life's way. Life does not seem the same to me, since you were called away. It broke my heart to lose you, but you did not go alone, for part of me went with you that day God called you home. They say time heals all sorrow and helps us to forget, but time so far has only proved how much I miss you yet.

Dearly loved, fondly remembered, and sadly missed.

W.Va. Man Gets 10½ Years For Vehicle Theft

A Hampshire County, W.Va., man was handed a jail sentence of 10½ years after he pleaded guilty to felony vehicle theft and driving while under the influence (DUI) during a recent Garrett County District Court hearing.

Thomas Kenneth Swisher, 38, Springfield, received the sentence from District Court judge Ralph Burnett, who suspended six years of the term. Swisher's charges stemmed from his November arrest by Maryland State Police troopers who were patrolling Interstate 68 on the lookout for a van that had been stolen from a Fort Ashby, W.Va., tavern.

Swisher, who was taken into custody without incident, told police that he had been drinking at the tavern, when he decided he wanted to leave. As he didn't have a vehicle of his own, he looked through vehicles in the parking lot until he found a van with its keys inside. He took the vehicle and eventually made his way west along I-68 into Garrett County, where he was apprehended.

In other District Court news, an Accident man who entered a not guilty plea to a second degree assault charge was nonetheless convicted and sentenced to jail.

Donald Clark Finnegan, 25, also pleaded guilty to an associated charge of malicious destruction of property. Both charges stemmed from a November domestic altercation at the residence he was sharing with his girlfriend. State troopers jailed Finnegan on allegations that he had punched and choked the woman, and ripped a telephone from a wall and smashed it on the floor. Alcohol was cited as a factor in his behavior.

QUILTING CLUB, GROUP HELP LIBRARY — The Heritage Quilting Club recently provided material and pieced together a log cabin quilt (shown above) that was later quilted by the Grantsville Senior Center quilting group. The quilt was donated to the Grantsville Lions Club, which will auction it and numerous other items off on Saturday, April 13, at the Grantsville fire hall, starting at 5 p.m. Proceeds from the auction will benefit the new Grantsville Library. Also pictured above are Stella Swauger, left, and Minnie Bittinger, members of the Grantsville Senior Center quilting group. The Heritage Quilting Club, which is composed of about 15 members, has donated several quilts to many causes, including the Dove Center, House of Hope, and area volunteer fire departments. The club also sent one quilt to Bosnia.

James Michael Stanton, 21, Oakland, pleaded guilty to a charge of harassment and was handed a three-month sentence by visiting Judge Milnor Roberts. Sheriff's deputies arrested Stanton in October for repeated instances of harassing contact with another person in regard to an upcoming court hearing. Not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office were additional charges of seven counts each of intimidating/influencing a juror and failure to comply with a peace order, and one count of stalking.

Joseph Allen Price, 25, Oakland, an inmate at the Garrett County Jail, was handed an additional three months of incarceration after he pleaded guilty before Judge Burnett's bench to violating an ex parte order. Sheriff's deputies filed the charge in August 2000 after it was learned that he was conducting an ongoing letter-writing campaign targeted at a woman he had been ordered not to have contact with. Four additional counts of the same charge were not prosecuted.

James Eston Sherbin, 29, Mc Henry, was convicted of marijuana possession by Judge Roberts despite entering a not guilty plea. Sherbin was handed a one-year sentence, 11 months of which was suspended, fined $305, and placed on one year of supervised probation. Sherbin had been jailed by sheriff's deputies following an October traffic stop in Mtn. Lake Park when a deputy who knew a warrant was on file for Sherbin's arrest observed him driving a vehicle through the town. A booking search at the jail uncovered a baggie of marijuana in Sherbin's shoe.

Judy Lynn Myers, 26, Martinsburg, W.Va., pleaded guilty to cocaine possession and was handed a six-month sentence by Judge Burnett, who suspended all but 15 days of the term, and placed her one year of unsupervised probation. Additional charges of possession of heroin and two counts of drug paraphernalia possession were not prosecuted.

State troopers arrested Myers after a traffic stop along I-68 in October. She was a passenger, and a metal cigarette case containing crack cocaine was found under her seat, while a vial containing crack cocaine was found on her person along with a smoking device bearing crack cocaine residue, and a vial and straw both bearing suspected heroin residue.

Christopher Ashley Harvey, 18, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but seven days of which was suspended, and was placed on one year of supervised probation and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service. An additional charge of drug paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted. Harvey's January arrest on the drug charges came after a bench warrant arrest, when a booking search located marijuana residue in a cigarette pack he was carrying.

Donald Eugene Carr, 33, Cumberland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and driving while intoxicated (DWI) and was handed a 90-day sentence, all but six days of which was suspended, and was fined $500 and placed on one year of supervised probation. Additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and several assorted traffic-related violations were not prosecuted.

State troopers had jailed Carr after a DWI traffic stop in September. An ensuing search led to the discovery of a burnt marijuana cigarette in his car ashtray and a smoking device bearing burnt marijuana residue in the console.

Jamie Edward Droppleman, 22, Swanton, pleaded guilty to second degree assault and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, and was fined $100 and placed on one year of unsupervised probation. Not prosecuted were additional charges of harassment and climbing onto a vehicle with malicious intent.

Droppleman had been arrested in November by sheriff's deputies after he assaulted the victim in the Short Stop store parking lot, and jumped on his vehicle's running board as the victim was driving away. A short time later Droppleman allegedly accosted the same person in Loch Lynn.

West Virginia residents Bernard Gale Travis Jr., 42, Tunnelton, and Christopher Greenlee, 23, Kingwood, both pleaded guilty to attempted felony theft stemming from their February arrests by sheriff's deputies. The men had been apprehended removing items from a vacant house located along Oakland Rosedale Road. Judge Roberts handed both men a six-month suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 64 hours of community service.

George David Moore Jr., 24, Oakland, pleaded guilty to trespassing and was handed a 90-day suspended sentence by Judge Burnett. Moore also received a $100 fine, one year of supervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service. His December arrest by sheriff's deputies came when he was apprehended trespassing at a Mtn. Lake Park residence after he had already been warned by the police not to do so earlier in the same evening.

Todd William Riley, 26, Oakland, pleaded guilty to violating an ex parte order and was handed a 90-day suspended sentence and placed on one year of unsupervised probation. Riley's January arrest came after a state trooper who had noticed him in the immediate vicinity of his former residence later located him hiding in a closet in the home. A court order was in effect at the time banning Riley from the premises.

Jamie A. Escobar, 22, Columbia, pleaded guilty to concealment of a deadly weapon and received a 60-day suspended sentence, a $255 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and 60 hours of community service. State troopers arrested Escobar after a July traffic stop near Accident when a search uncovered a butterfly knife and a pair of brass knuckles. A second weapons charge was not prosecuted.

Jackson Lee DeWitt Jr., 41, Oakland, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated to the point of posing a danger to himself. DeWitt had been jailed in December after a sheriff's deputy had located him lying in the parking lot of the Overlook Apartments complex. He was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $50, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

A charge of concealment of a deadly weapon faced by William Ewing Walker, 24, Oakland, was placed onto the stet docket. An associated charge of DUI drew a guilty plea which resulted in a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling and a $100 fine. State troopers jailed Walker following a December traffic stop near Deep Creek Lake. A search uncovered a martial arts fighting knife hidden under the front seat of his vehicle.

Michael Lindsay Thomas, 25, Oakland, faced charges of second degree assault and adult abuse, both of which were placed onto the stet docket. Garrett County Bureau of Investigation detectives jailed Thomas in November after investigating allegations that he had punched a mentally disabled family member.

Robert Gordon Cook, 27, Oakland, was handed a pair of stet rulings on two counts of second degree assault, along with an order to complete 20 hours of community service. Sheriff's deputies arrested Cook in December for allegedly striking and shoving two persons during a domestic altercation at a Boy Scout Road residence.

Robert Paul Bornschlegel, 62, McHenry, was handed stet rulings on charges of illegal firearms possession and illegal possession of an assault pistol. His July arrest by sheriff's deputies came after a search of his Deep Creek Lake area vacation home by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. Located inside the residence were two handguns, one a Colt AR-15 and the other a Cobray 11mm assault pistol. As a convicted felon (on an earlier drug charge), Bornschlegel is prohibited from possessing such weapons.

Milton Dent Canan, 56, Accident, was not prosecuted on charges of second degree assault, fourth degree sex offense, third- and fourth-degree burglary, and trespassing. The charges stemmed from his November arrest by sheriff's deputies after he was accused of forcing his way into an Oakland woman's apartment and allegedly attempting to sexually assault her.

Charles Foster Titchnell, 24, Swanton, was not prosecuted on three counts each of felony theft and second degree burglary. He had arrested by the GBI in December for allegedly taking items from two vacant Crellin area residences.

Rod Hamilton, 41, Oakland, was not prosecuted on two counts of second degree assault and additional charges of harassment, disturbing the peace, and littering. His July arrest by sheriff's deputies resulted from an ongoing dispute with his neighbors over the use of trash cans.

Brian Keith Bolyard, 28, Tunnelton, W.Va, was not prosecuted on charges of unlawful taking and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Bolyard's March 1998 arrest by state troopers came after he allegedly took a truck from the parking lot of Ken Friend's Tavern in Friendsville. The vehicle was recovered shortly afterward not far from where it had been taken.

In Loving Memory of Martha Jane Shaffer
12-1-24 to 3-27-00

It's been two years since you left for your new home. You traded in a body full of pain for one never again to be touched by death. The heartaches you went through during your earthly span are now forgotten forever in that land of endless peace. We wouldn't be so foolish to wish you back, because it would interrupt the unspeakable joy you're experiencing right now. Yet our hearts grieve when we recall what you still mean to us. The right poem, scripture or song would fail to capture your beauty and amazing spirit. We couldn't join you in crossing from this life to the next, but look forward to God giving us one eternal day to find you. Until then, you will always be...

Conservation Funds Available For Md. Farmers

David P. Doss, state conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Maryland, announced that Maryland received $388,500 in fiscal year 2002 conservation funding through the USDA Agricultural Management Assistance (AMA) Program. NRCS is USDA's lead technical agency for conservation programs.

Farmers should contact their local Soil Conservation District office for more information on the sign-up period, application process, and receiving conservation assistance through the AMA Program. The sign-up period for submitting an application for AMA funding of conservation practices ends on April 19. Applicants from FY01 who were not funded are encouraged to reapply for cost-share assistance.

"Now, in its second year, the Agricultural Management Assistance Program is a voluntary conservation program for agricultural farmers and producers that provides cost share payments for selected conservation practices," said Doss. In Maryland, four conservation practices are eligible for AMA Program funding: chemical handling facilities, livestock feeding and waste storage facilities, temporary in-field waste storage facilities, and tree planting for poultry houses.

Applicants will be notified in June 2002 by local NRCS district conservationists if they have been selected to receive cost-share assistance through AMA.

AMA is available in 15 states, as designated by Secretary of Agriculture Ann Veneman, where participation in the Federal Crop Insurance Program is historically low. Maryland, along with most of the northeastern and Mid-Atlantic states, was selected to participate in the program. AMA can be used to address the current unfunded backlog of conservation applications and other requests for Natural Resources Conservation Service programs, and to afford an opportunity for nontraditional program participants to apply for AMA assistance.

NRCS is the agency designated by the secretary of agriculture as being responsible for program management and leadership for the conservation provisions of AMA. The USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) will complete the "person" determinations and disburse the cost-share payments to the participants.

In order to be eligible for AMA Program participation, applicants are required to own or control the land, implement specific eligible conservation practices, meet the Food Security Act "person" definition, and maintain the cost-share practices for the life of the practice.

AMA Program participants enter into a five- to ten-year contract period. The total AMA cost-share payments paid per person shall not exceed $50,000 for any fiscal year. The federal share shall be 75 percent of the cost of an eligible practice, based on the percent of actual cost, with not-to-exceed limits, flat rates, or average costs.

Farmers and producers may contribute to the cost of a practice through in-kind sources. Eligible in-kind contributions may include: personal labor, use of personal equipment, donated labor or materials, and on-hand or approved used materials.

NRCS has worked hand-in-hand with farmers, producers, and landowners for more than 65 years to conserve natural resources on private lands. Maryland's landowners can learn more about conserving natural resources by contacting NRCS Maryland through USDA service centers collocated with their county's soil conservation districts or by visiting the NRCS Maryland homepage at www.md.nrcs.usda.gov.

Maryland Oyster Harvest Second Lowest Ever

by Hanah Cho
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — This year's oyster season is expected to be the second lowest in Maryland history, Department of Natural Resources officials said Friday. Disease and dry weather are contributing to an expected harvest of little more than 120,000 bushels when the season ends this Friday, officials told Eastern Shore lawmakers. That's down from 348,000 bushels last season. The lowest oyster harvest of about 80,000 bushels was in 1994.

"The three-year consecutive drought plus the warm weather have created the conditions necessary for the disease to expand," said Chris Judy, director of the department's shellfish division, in an interview.

Next year's oyster season could be even worse, Judy said.

The unusual weather conditions led to an increased presence of two parasitic diseases in oysters. As the infected oyster population increases, mortality continues to grow, he said. The mortality of oysters in the Eastern Bay, for instance, was 60 percent in 2001, up from 16 percent in 1999.

Although the state experienced a similar outbreak of oyster disease in the early 1990s, this time the prevalence of disease is broader, Judy said. In 1999, Maryland's oyster harvest recovered from its lowest point to hit nearly 424,000 bushels after long periods of intense rain.

"It's all about survival," Judy said. "As the survival of the oysters went up, the harvest went up."

It will take three or four years of the same wet weather conditions to significantly reverse the declining oyster population, Judy said. In the meantime, the department has continued with its oyster restoration program, which takes old oyster shells and plants them in areas where reproduction is most intense so oyster young have a safe place to attach and grow.

To counter the declining oyster population, the General Assembly has ordered the Department of Natural Resources to study the feasibility of cultivating a non-native species of oyster. The plan still needs approval from the governor.

Keep Your Onion Plants Dry

Many people choose to grow onions from transplants. These are often sold in garden centers as bundles of small onion plants tied with string. Onion plants are unusual in that they don't like wet conditions. Make sure to keep onion plants dry after purchase but stored in a cool location. Never put onion plants in a plastic bag or try to moisten them to prevent them from drying out. Onion plants have thin outer skins that keep them from drying out. Wetting down onion plants or storing them in wet conditions may cause them to rot instead.

Pruning Young Fruit Trees

Fruit trees planted this year should be pruned to begin developing a strong structure of the main or scaffold limbs. This will help prevent limb breakage over the years when the scaffolds carry a heavy fruit load. Trees that have no branches or those that have only one or two small branches should be cut back so the tree is only about 32 to 36 inches high. This pruning will promote branch development along the tree trunk. The lowest branch should be about 20 inches above the soil level. Newly purchased trees that have already developed branches should be pruned so there are no more than five to six branches for permanent scaffolds, plus the central leader, or main center branch remaining. The rest of the branches should be removed.

Young fruit trees generally are trained using the central leader system. The growth pattern for these trees is for a center branch to be dominant. This is generally the characteristic for apple and pear trees.

Young fruit trees may be trained using the central leader or open center method. Apple, apricot, cherry, pear and plum trees are generally pruned according to the central leader method. The growth pattern of these fruits is for the center branch of the tree to be dominant. The central leader training method promotes this characteristic. Peach trees may be pruned using either method because they do not have a strong tendency for one shoot or branch to dominate the growth of other shoots or branches.

The central leader system has a central trunk from which the scaffold branches develop. The scaffold branches should:

- Form wide angles (about 60 to 80 degrees) with the trunk.
- Be distributed on different sides of the tree for good balance.
- Be spaced about 6 to 10 inches apart on the trunk with no branch directly opposite or below another.

Training during the year of planting and the following year is important since the grower will select the scaffold branches.

Rain-Free Time for Postemergence Herbicides

Many of the postemergent herbicides are only effective when absorbed through the leaf of the weed; therefore, the active ingredient must be on the leaf long enough to be taken into the plant. An average rain-free period for most herbicides is 4 hours. There are a few that require 6 hours such as 2, 4-D, Accent, Basagran (8 hrs.), Hornet, Ready Master, Roundup Ultra Max, Stinger, and Ultra Blazer. Always refer to the label for instructions.

Quality Rating Of Wye Angus To Be Sold At Auction Explained

The 24th annual Wye Angus sale is scheduled for Saturday, April 6, at noon. It will be broadcast live, in interactive real time, at the Garrett Community College, Room 252. Registration will start at 11 a.m.

This year's sale will be offering 29 performance tested Wye bulls, 10 yearling heifers, 10 cow/calf pairs, and 18 performance tested MBEP bulls from Md. Central Bull Test Station.

The animals offered at the sale will have performance and EPD (expected progeny differences) information. All test bulls will be assigned a "Growth Ranking" based on 112-day ADG ratio of .90 or better, 365-day adjusted weight ratio of .90 or better, frame score of 4.5 or greater, and a 365-day scrotal circumference of 30 cm or greater.

Ratios and EPDs are two methods of measuring an animal's performance. Ratios are measures of an animal's individual performance calculated within a herd. They contain no pedigree or progeny information and are only appropriate for comparing animals within the same herd or contemporary group. EPDs, on the other hand, are calculated from all sources of information including pedigree, performance, and progeny. EPDs are comparable across herds within the same breed.

EPDs are a prediction of the difference between the average performances of future progeny of an individual and the performance of a theoretical reference ani-

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce
Home of Deep Creek Lake
UPDATE

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors met March 21, with Chairman Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler presiding.

Chamber president Ken Wishnick reported that the Vacation Guide production is running a little behind schedule, with delivery now expected during the third week in April. He also presented maps depicting the diverse geographic locations of people requesting vacation guides during February. Inquiries were received from all across the U.S., even into Alaska. The monthly database is available to members on a subscription basis.

Recreational Trails Task Force chair Steve Green displayed the map developed by the Pittsburgh consulting firm of Pashek Associates. He indicated pathways are being worked on to link Wisp to the Discovery Center, as well as along the Youghiogheny River and Meadow Mountain. Negotiations continue with the State Highway Administration on funding for the Rt. 219 sections.

Asa McCain described early planning that is under way for a possible local historic re-enactment event. Such events, he said, can attract thousands of people to an area. He also reported that some sponsorship is still needed for the Little Yough Summer Music Festival, set for June-August.

The board approved an amendment to the bylaws that reduces the minimum number of candidates for board seats from 10 to 7. The Nominating Task Force, consisting of Karen Myers, Hugh Umbel, Brenda McDonnell, and Len Eiswert, then submitted the following list of nominees: Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler, the Fun Zone; Bob Browning, Deep Creek Outfitters; Betsy Spiker, Mountaineer Log & Siding Co.; Judy Devlin, Book Mark'et; Jimmy Railey, Railey Realty; Keith Handyside, Black Bear Enterprises; Denny Glotfelty, Double G RV; and Sheri Mortimer, Deep Creek Brewing Co. The slate was unanimously accepted.

A task force was appointed to explore the benefits of creating a Chamber of Commerce foundation that would provide community service projects. It will be chaired by Hugh Umbel and include Marta Schroyer, Bill Meagher, and Bob Browning. Other members are welcome to join.

McCain proposed setting Autumn Glory dates through 2006 as follows: October 8-12, 2003; October 13-17, 2004; October 12-16, 2005; and October 11-15, 2006. The board unanimously approved the schedule.

The following new members were approved by the board: Mighty Oaks Pub, William Weeks, co-owner, Oakland; Maryland.com, Ann McGinnis Hillyer, manager, Annapolis; and Allegany County Convention & Visitors Bureau, Amanda Paul, manager.

The proof of the new county map was presented to the board. It should be printed and ready for distribution in the near future.

The next meeting of the board of directors will be held Thursday, April 18, at 8 a.m. in the boardroom at the Visitors Center in McHenry.

mal, an animal with an EPD of zero. To make this comparison fair, one assumes similar environments and mates of the same genetic value. An EPD is then a prediction of progeny performance relative to some standard. EPDs are calculated using statistical procedures that fall into a general category called Best Linear Unbiased Prediction, or BLUP. BLUP procedures properly weigh vast amounts of information on individuals and their relatives. It is expressed in trait units, such as weaning weights, maternal milk, etc.

For example, a particular bull might have an EPD of -3 for birth weight. This means that he is expected to produce calves three pounds lighter than the breed average. More meaningfully, this sire is expected to produce calves six pounds lighter than a bull with an EPD of +3. So, EPDs are designed to compare animals, nothing more.

The accuracy value reflects the amount and relevance of the information used to calculate an individual EPD. Accuracy values range from .01 (very poor) to .99 (extremely accurate). Accuracy measures the reliability of an EPD or the degree of risk associated with using a particular animal on the basis of its EPDs. Highly accurate EPDs are very reliable; there is little risk that the progeny performance of an individual with high accuracy values will, on average, be much different than the EPDs indicated. On the other hand, the average progeny performance of an individual with low accuracy values may be quite different from what his EPDs suggest.

The birth weight value predicts the difference in average birth weight of a bull's calves compared to calves of all other bulls evaluated. A positive value (+) indicates heavier-than-average birth weights, while a negative value (-) indicates lighter-than-average birth weights. The weaning weight value is a sire's expected progeny difference in pounds for 205-day, mature dam equivalent weaning weight. A sire's weaning weight EPD is an indication of growth to weaning. It does not indicate milk production. The maternal milk is the maternal ability of a bull's daughters. Expected progeny performance is expressed in pounds of calf weaning weight. The EPD value predicts the difference (due to maternal ability) in average 205-day weight of a bull's daughters' calves compared to calves of all other bulls evaluated.

A yearling weight EPD is the sire's expected progeny difference in pounds for 365-day, mature dam equivalent yearling weight. The yearling height value is a predictor, expressed in inches, of a sire's ability to transmit yearling height. Scrotal circumference is a predictor, expressed in centimeters, of the difference in transmitting ability for scrotal size.

Carcass data has been collected on each bull, by using ultrasound. The loin area is measured in square inches, and then adjusted to 365 days for easier comparison between animals. Backfat is expressed in inches and intramuscular fat in percentages.

All sale animals have up-to-date EPDs listed in the sale catalog. All cattle offered through this sale will carry a minimum starting bid of $1,000. Any animals purchased through the GCC site will be delivered free of charge.

Medicines Useful in Sore Throat

A sore throat (medical term is pharyngitis) is a common problem associated with the common cold, influenza ("flu"), infectious mononucleosis, thrush and strep throat. Sore throat sometimes is misunderstood to be due to bacterial infections, but more often is caused by a virus. Bacterial sore throat typically is associated with pus in the throat, a slight to moderately high white blood cell count, and mild to moderate fever. But with a viral sore throat there usually is no pus discharge, and the white blood cell count typically is normal.

There are many approaches to dealing with the pain and discomfort of sore throat. The over-the-counter medicines often provide a high level of pain relief. Local anesthetics in some throat lozenges also help relieve pain. And interestingly, frequent gargling with warm, salty water may provide dramatic sore throat relief. In the rare instances when sore throat is proven to be due to a bacterial infection prescribed antibiotics may be in order. Antibiotics are ineffective in sore throat caused by viruses.

General Permit for storm water and hydrostatic test water from petroleum terminals. This permit authorizes the discharge of storm water from storage tank diked and loading rack areas and hydrostatic test water from petroleum terminals to surface or ground waters of the State. This permit sets numerical limits on the concentration of the petroleum product contamination following treatment of the storm water or hydrostatic test water.

General Permit for discharges of treated ground water from petroleum contaminated ground water sources. This permit authorizes the discharges of treated ground water that has been previously contaminated by petroleum products as the result of leaks or spills. This permit sets numerical limits on the effluent concentration of the petroleum product contamination following treatment of the contaminated ground water.

Both federal (40 CFR 122) and State (COMAR 26.08.04) regulations require discharge permits for these activities. Specifically, State regulations require that discharges of any wastes or wastewater regardless of volume be authorized by a discharge permit. This applies to discharges to surface or ground waters. Federal regulations address discharges to surface waters only, requiring a permit for the discharge of pollutants. The limits for these permits are based on what has been demonstrated to be technologically achievable. Self-monitoring is required to verify compliance. The permits also require testing to verify that the discharges with a specified volume and duration be tested to verify that the effluent is not toxic to aquatic life, and if toxicity is present, the permit requires its elimination. This is a requirement of the federal Clean Water Act. This permit also sets operational requirements, such as inspection routines.

NAMED FIREMAN OF THE YEAR — Mike Phillippi of the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company recently named the Fireman of the Year by the Oakland Elks Lodge #2481. The award was presented at its fourth annual awards dinner, which recognized lodge members and citizens who have demonstrated outstanding commitment through their service to the community and lodge this past year. (Incorrect information was submitted that misidentified Phillippi in a group photo in last week's paper.)

Youth Famine Raises More Than $3,000

A 30-hour famine, sponsored by Mountain Top Youth for Christ to increase awareness among the students and the community about the problem of hunger throughout the world, was held recently at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church. For 30 hours the students went without food, including skipping a meal at school. Juice was allowed every hour. The event also included community service projects, a youth rally, and an all-night lock-in. A total of 37 students participated, and a total of $3,357.25 was raised.

Victoria Mosser collected the most money, $250.10, and Tessa Beitzel collected $250. Twenty participants collected $100 or more. All money raised will be sent to World Vision to help needy families around the world.

"It was amazing to see that many teenagers getting excited about not eating for 30 hours," stated Keith Probst, executive director of Mt. Top Youth For Christ. "This event really opened the eyes of the kids and made them more appreciative of the many things we take for granted every day."

Among the students participating were Natalie Beitzel, Victoria Moser, Allison Yoder, Brad Yoder, Jaquetta Brenneman, Vicki Atkins, Justin Beitzel, Kristina Zambrano, Larry Beitzel, LaDawn Yoder, Kalen Yoder, Shane Yoder, Corey Yoder, Lydia Maust, Laura Maust, Brittany Milbourne, Michelle Bender, Clinton Maust, Jeremy Beitzel, Hannah Tice, Ryan Graber, Levi Schmuck, Devyn Bender, Lindsay Schrock, Cassie Adkins, Tyler Brenneman, Erin Brenneman, Esther Schmuck, Marcia Brenneman, Delilah Miller, Tara Brenneman, Kali Grant, and Shari Yoder. Adults leaders for the event included Keith and Sandi Probst and Sheera Beitzel.

LIONS INDUCT MOSELEY — The Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, at its regular meeting, received Malvern Moseley into membership. He retired as an auto service manager in Gaithersburg after a 43-year career. Moving to Garrett County from Rockville in 1989, Moseley and his wife Jean reside along Cherry Lane Road near McHenry. Above, Lion first vice president Luther Parrack, on the left, welcomes Moseley, who is accompanied by his sponsor, Lowell Echelberger.

Ashby Receives Scholarship To Attend Frostburg

Chase W. Ashby, Swanton, recently received an Academic Excellence Award to attend Frostburg State University.

Ashby, a senior at Southern Garrett High School, plans to major in engineering. A Maryland Distinguished Scholar, he has received a National English Merit Award and a National History and Government Award. He is a member of the National Honor Society and served as a school representative in the Westvaco Engineering Program. Active in FFA, he serves as vice president, has received chapter awards, and has been the chapter representative to the FFA National Convention. His volunteer activities include maintenance projects at his church and fund raising for Swanton Community Center.

He is the son of William H. and Linda Ashby.

Meeting Room At Ruth Enlow To Close Temporarily

The meeting room of the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland will be closed to most community meetings until October 1, 2002, as it will be used for data entry activities during the next few months. The library's catalog is being converted into a computerized catalog that can be viewed over the Internet, a spokesperson said.

The meeting room may be available in the evenings for community groups of 12 or fewer. Interested persons may call the Oakland Library at 301-334-3996.
